Speed Is the Word

By John G. Norris

Senate conferees on the conscription bill yesterday offered to compromise the difference in age limits in the House and Senate versions of the measure by drfating men up to 40 years old.

Chairman Sheppard of the Senate Military Affairs Committee announced the compromise offer last night after the joint conference committee had been meeting all day behind closed doors. The House conferees, he said, would not accept the proposal but did not finally turn it down. They are to give an answer today.

Under the Senate bill the draft age limits are 21 to 30 inclusive, while the House bill provides 21 to 44 inclusive. The suggested compromise is 21 to 39 inclusive.

None of the other major differences—the Fish amendment delaying the draft for 60 days pending a trial of voluntary enlistments or the "draft industry" proposals—was discussed, Sheppard said. They are to be taken up today.

Meanwhile, the War Department sent "speed-up" letters to 21 manufacturers, authorizing them to proceed with tooling up and otherwise prepare for a $1,251,000,000 aircraft program.

The authorization anticipates completion of formal contracts with the companies for 14,394 planes costing $817,000,000, 28,282 engines costing $377,000,000 and propellers and blades costing $57,000,000. Funds

Red Cap Charges Mrs. Roosevelt Underpaid Him

Cincinnati, Sept. 10 (AP).—Two red cap porters testified today at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Judge Florence Allen, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, underpaid them for carrying their luggage.

Clinton McDuffy said Mrs. Roosevelt gave him 50 cents for a 70-cent service. He did not apprise her of the oversight and the Union Terminals Co. overlooked the other 20 cents, McDuffy said.

The testimony was given in a hearing to determine whether the method of paying for luggage handling—10 cents for each parcel—is contrary to the interstate commerce laws.

Ashurst Runs Behind in Early Returns

Inconclusive returns early last night weer disclosing trends in primary election battles vital in the political careers of several nationally known figures.

Veteran Senator Henry F. Ashrust (Democrat), of Arizona, whose vote against military conscription was criticizezd by rivals, was behind Judge Ernest W. McFarland, 338 to 907, on meager reports.

Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermant had jumped into a lead of nearly 2 to 1 over Ralph E. Flanders in the Republican race for the seat left vacant by the death of Seator Ernest W. Gibson.

Gov. Sam Jones of Louisiana was meeting with mixed success in his effotrs to defeat all of the State's Congressmen, whom he called stalwarts of the ousted "Long machine." Four of the seven incumbents were apparently defeated, with runoff primaries for the others indicated.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg and Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, aged crusader against vice in Michigan, led in their Republican renomination races on first counts.

In New Hampshire a close fight developed for the Republican nomination to succeed retiring Gov. Francis Murphy, Democrat. James C. Farmer had a narrow lead over Robert O. Blood, while Congressmen A. B. Jenks and Foster Stearns piled up comfortable leads for renomination.

Aiken Takes Big Lead

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 10 (AP).—Gov. George D. Aiken, a political veteran, leaped into a marked lead over Ralph E. Flanders, his businessman rival for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, as the ballots mounted tonight in the Vermont primary.

The two men were seeking the seat left vacant by the death of Senator Ernest W. Gibson, who was reelected in 1938. With 103 cities and towns counted out of a total of 246, the vote stood: Aiken, 9,261; Flanders, 5,350.

Senator Warren R. Austin was unopposed for renomination to a six-year term in the Republican primary. Named without contest also were Representative Charles A. Plumley (Republican), who is seeking reelection to Vermont's only seat in the House, and Lieut. Gov. William H. Wills, the G. O. P. gubernatorial candidate.

The Democratic candidates for all major posts ran without opposition.

Close Battle in N. H.

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 10 (AP).—A nip-and-tuck battle for the Republican gubernatorial nomination between Senate President Robert O. Blood and National Grange Lecturer James C. Farmer developed tonight as returns mounted from New Hampshire's State primaries.

A Scientist Talks Religion

Einstein Urges Abandonment Of Personal God Doctrine

Science and Religion Depend on Each Other For Progress, He Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 10.—Prof. Albert Einstein advised religious teachers today to "give up the doctrine of a personal God, that is, give up that source of fear and hope which in the past placed such vast power in the hands of priests."

In a paper presented at the Conference of Science, Philosophy and Religion, at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, the German refugee scientist declared that "a legitimate conflict between religion and science cannot exist. Science without religion is lame, religion without science is blind."

Einstein said, however, that he was required to qualify his conclusion with reference to the concept of God.

"During the youthful period of mankind's spiritual evolution," he wrote, "human fantasy created gods in man's image who, by operations of their will, were supposed to determine, or at any rate to influence,

Defeat 60-Day Draft Delay, Willkie Urges

G. O. P. Nominee 'Enormously Gratified' By Maine Victory

(Picture On Page 5.)

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rushville, Ind., Sept. 10.—Amid the bustle of final preparations for his 18-State Western stumping tour, Wendell L. Willkie urged today the defeat of the House-approved amendment to delay military conscription 60 days in favor of voluntary enlistment.

The Republican Presidential nominee said in a statement to newspapermen:

"I hope that as a result of the conference between the House and Senate conferees on the selective service bill the Fish amendment is eliminated."

This amendment, sponsored by Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, and supported by many House Republicans, passed the House and now is before a conference committee seeking to adjust differences between Senate and House conscription measures.

It would provide that the Army accept voluntary enlistments for 60 days before drafting men for a total of 400,000 new recruits.

Willkie's statement, drawn up at 6 a. m. and distributed to reporters two hours later, also said he was "enormously gratified" by the Republican victory in Maine.

Willkie said he had telegraphed his congratulations to Sumner Sewell, the Governor-elect, and Representative Ralph O. Brewster, who was elected to the Senate.

While the candidate spent a quiet day, additional members of his staff

Roosevelt Will Make 'Paid' Radio Speech

President to Open Campaign in Address From Washington

President Roosevelt will launch his speaking campaign for a third term tonight in a paid coast-to-coast broadcast, the first such speech labeled "political" by White House spokesmen since his nomination acceptance speech.

In a last-minute decision, the President announced through White House secretaries here that his first full broadside against Wendell Willkie would be delivered before the International Teamsters' Union convention at Constitution Hall in Washington.

The decision followed debate over the gift to the President of radio time, which has been criticized repeatedly by Republicans.

In Hyde Park, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters that the Democratic National Committee would pay for radio time on two networks—a sign the speech was considered political—and added:

"I expect the President in all probability tomorrow night will deliver the labor speech of the campaign."

In Washington, however, Daniel J. Tobin, president of the A. F. of L. Teamsters Union, announced that the teamsters would bear the broad-

London's Tea And Patience Grow Short

By Raymond Daniell.

London, Sept. 10.—It is not the dead and injured or even the extensive property damage which really counts in this Battle of London—a prelude to the battle for Britain. It is what is happening to the city's life and the nerves of its people that matters most.

They are standing up to the punishment being rained on them from the skies with a courage which makes the eyes of a neutral observer smart at times. There is no doubt about their bravery but one cannot help wondering how long any people's nerves can stand up under this kind of bombardment, in which everyone knows each breath may be his last.

Those long hours of darkness, with the hum of German motors almost continuous overhead, do something to the souls and minds of even the bravest men, especially since the great bulk of the people, even those in the army, can do no more than sit waiting for the man-made lightning to strike.

It is no wonder, then, that the people are growing more insistent for a stronger retaliation in kind against Germany and are becoming restive when long intervals elapse without audible reassurance from their own ground batteries and fighter planes.

Their Anger Grows

That does not mean that a defeatist attitude is growing. Far from it. These people are getting angrier by the minute. Many homes are without gas and water—the essentials for making tea. They are forced to undergo tremendous inconveniences getting to and from places where they earn their livelihood and their ingrained politeness is becoming a little strained.

There is hardly anyone who hasn't a friend who has been bombed out of his home or had a narrow escape from death and injury. Everywhere in the streets today snatches of conversations overheard dealt with this grim business, but in almost every instance comments on domestic tragedies were coupled with some gay remark like the one this correspondent overheard between two passersby. One said:

"Well, that solves their winter heating problem."

But it would be inaccurate to fail to report that these nightly raids designed to spread terror generally among the people of this capital are completely without effect.

This is still a war of nerves and the important leaders of this country, which is pasting Germany back as best it can with the weapons at its disposal, are gambling its existence as a nation on the ability of its people to withstand anything that the enemy which challenges its ideal of life can send against them.

Loath to Reveal Certain Data, U. S. Frees Nazi Agent Suspect

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Sept. 10.—Charges against Herbert Hoehne, 29, accused of being an unregistered German agent, were dismissed unexpectedly in Federal Court today on recommendation of the United States Attorney General's office.

Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich dismissed the charges on motion of United States Attorney William Fleet Palmer, who, only a moment before, had announced he believed he had a "complete case" against Hoehne and asked the latter if he wished to change his plea from not guilty to guilty. Hoehne declined.

[Justice Department officials in Washington said a trial would have forced the department to reveal certain sources of information it wished to protect at present.

[They said that they felt that inasmuch as Hoehne will be leaving the United States shortly there was little to be gained by prosecuting him.]

Hoehne, arrested here June 21 as he was about to board an airplane for South America, was prepared for trial.

Federal agents said they found in his luggage numbers of communications which had been entrusted to him by Capt. Fritz Weidemann, German consul general at San Francisco, for delivery to Nazi officials in Central and South American countries.

Dr. Hoehne was held in jail three weeks, after which he was released on $15,000 bail.

Palmer read a telegram from John Rogge, Assistant United States Attorney General, which said the arrest of Dr. Emil Wolfe, 52, German chemist, in Balboa, Canal Zone, on a similar charge and Wolfe's recent guilty plea accomplished "the object in view."

Wolfe was fined $2,000, payment of which was suspended.

Trouble for Cardenas

Mexican President Reported 'Impeached' by Almazanistas

By the Associated Press

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 10.—The San Antonio Evening News says the Almazanista Congress supporting Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan has impeached President Lazaro Cardenas, of Mexico and named Gen. Hector F. Lopez, soldier-journalist, provisional president of the republic.

Lopez was designated to serve until Almazan, who claims election, takes office December 1, the News says.

The paper says: "That official declaration was issued in San Antonio this afternoon by Roberto Morales, vice president of the permanent commission appointed by the Congress to assume its powers during the Congressional adjournment.

"The steps were taken in secret in Mexico City, and Morales arrived here today with a copy of the congressional declaration.

[The Almazan congress is not recognized as "official" by the Cardenas government, which supported Gen. Avila Camacho, for president. Many of the Almazanista leaders are in hiding, and Almazan himself is in the United States on an extended "vacation" which started shortly after the July elections.

[When the "official" congress met in Mexico City several weeks ago, the Almazanista congress held a secret "rump" session, and declared Almazan elected. However, both its proclamation of the election result and its "impeachment" of Cardenas appear somewhat academic, unless the Almazanistas can wrest power from the official government party.]

R.A.F.'s Missiles Crash in Center Of Reich Capital In Fierce Onset

Bulletin

By the United Press

Berlin (Wednesday) Sept. 11.—Berlin's air raid sirens shrieked again at 11:55 p. m. last night, beginning an alarm which lasted until 1:47 a. m.

The raid, believed to be the most intense yet, was concentrated on the center of the capital. Bombs were seen to fall 300 yards from the United Press office in Unter den Linden.

One bomb, apparently an explosive type, crashed into the building next to the United States Embassy on Pariserplatz, only 100 yards from Wilhelmplatz. Two incendiary bombs fell just outside the Embassy, but it was not damaged.

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Sept. 10.—Germany sent her aerial squadrons on and against England today, dispatching from 300 to 500 planes to beat again at London and other British cities, and claimed a great edge thus far in the mighty battles of two capitals.

(The German radio broadcast tonight a statement that Nazi planes flew "uninterruptedly" over England's south coast and advanced to London in "armed reconnaissance." It was added that no bombs were dropped, however.)

British raiding planes over the Berlin area sent 4,000,000 Berliners running into air raid cellars early this morning, and kept them there for 45 minutes, but the resultant damage was declared officially to have been confined to scattered apartment houses.

More extensive attacks on the Wesermuende industrial area in northern Germany and on the environs of the ports of Bremen and Hamburg were acknowledged, although there, too, but "little harm" was reported by German investigators.

It was declared that only one British raider was able to drop bombs over suburban Berlin, and that there were no casualties here.

London Fares Worse

London was declared by Nazi sources to have been hit by at least ten times as many bombs as reached this German capital, and to have been left aflame in many sections.

That the Nazis were taking increased chances to score effectively was indicated in the fact they reported their own plane losses for the past two days approached the ratio of one against two British, compared with the ratio of one against three or four British claimed earlier. The high command count was 44 British planes, 21 Germans.

Aside from the war in the skies, the day brought another development which caused speculation: Without any official hint of what

R.A.F. Bombs German Naval Bases, Berlin

Nazi Capital Gets Another Taste Of Own Total War

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 10.—Swarms of British fliers struck mighty blows last night at numerous continental points from which Adolf Hitler might try to dispatch his legions against this country.

During the night Royal Air Force bombers attacked German naval bases and dockyards at Kiel, Wilhelmshaven, Wismar, Hamburg and Bremen.

Simultaneously they bombed military objectives in Berlin, "barge concentrations" in the French and Belgian Channel ports, blast furnaces and a railroad siding at Essen and air bases and communications lines in widely separated parts of the Reich, Holland, Belgium and France.

The heavy attack on shipping at Ostend, Calais and Boulogne was the third in as many nights. Seemingly, the R. A. F. is keeping a careful watch on these Channel ports, from which any invasion would most likely be launched.

[The United Press quoted London reports of heavy Nazi troop concentrations across the Channel, sufficient to make up an "initial striking force" of probably five or six divisions.]

Meanwhile, British naval fliers tore at German supply vessels and tankers and army camps at various points in Norway.

The aerial couterattacks, which were made despite bad flying conditions and in some places fierce opposition by German antiaircraft batteries, included further visits to German big-gun emplacements at Cap Gris-Nez, where last night Big Berthas shot long-range bolts in the direction of the Dover area and in return underwent a barrage by undaunted British gunners.

Although the Germans shot many shells across the 20-odd mile stretch

'We Dined at the Savoy . . . Roast Grouse Was Excellent'

By William McGaffin,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 10.—We dined at the Savoy last night, but not in the vast and costly restaurant with the great windows overlooking the Thames.

Instead we ate in the cellar air-raid shelter.

The roast grouse was excellent; the setting, fantastic.

We were politely ushered down a long flight of stairs and into a room full of sandbags and steel pipes, interlaced like scaffolding to strengthen the room supports.

Spread about under the green pipes were dinner tables, covered with snowy damask and complete silver service.

A white-tied maitre d'hotel, surrounded by impeccably-clad minions as usual, led us to a table and warned us—without cracking a smile—kindly to duck under the pipes so we could sit down.

Vic Oliver, comedian son-in-law of Prime Minister Churchill, came in about midnight and pulled his jokes.

Among the diners were some in uniform, some in dinner jackets. A typically cool English woman sat at the next table, resplendent in dinner gown. She lost her composure once, sitting kerplunk on the floor when a couple of bombs went off outside.

Leaving at 2 a. m., we walked through what heretofore has been the dining room. It was lined with davenports on which men and women slept in silk pajamas and dressing robes.

German Attack Is Renewed for Fourth Night but Tempo Slackens

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Sept. 11.—Nazi bombers smashed at London with increasing violence early today in their fourth consecutive dusk-to-dawn rodeo of destruction.

Until early this morning, the attack was much less ferocious than the previous three.

Then the pace stepped up until four separate squadrons were wheeling about the capital at the same time at opposite points of the compass.

Heavier bursts of British antiaircraft fire followed their repeated course up the Thames Estuary and over and around the city.

Heavy explosions shook the central area afresh.

"Our Guns Are Going"

Police and air raid wardens cautioned any person seeking to leave a shelter that "our guns are going" and that there was danger of falling fragments.

Some trains leaving London during Tuesday were crowded with famjlies going out of the city, but there was nothing to indicate any mass exodus was in progress.

The British press position was typified by the News Chronicle's assertion:

"Bodies are weary and nerves are strained but London's spirit is unbroken."

Yesterday afternoon a stick of six bombs fell in one area of the city; in another two heavy bombs jarred the earth. Hours later, salvos were falling at intervals, but they appeared to be dropping in the outskirts.

School a Shambles

Just after midnight, the tempo of antiaircraft fire was stepped up against these outlying invaders.

German planes also were over northwest England and Wales, and eight bombs were reported dropped squarely in the center of one town in the southeast.

As the new raid on London went on, the list of dead in Monday night's attacks was tragically lengthened. From the shambles of what had been a school bodies still were being dragged this morning, and it was said that 24 hours would be re-

Speaker Bankhead Faints From Pain Of Sciatic Attack

Baltimore, Sept. 10 (AP).—Sixty-six-year old William B. Bankhead, Speaker of the House of Representatives, fainted in his hotel room here tonight from an "excruciatingly painful" attack of sciatica suffered a short time before he was to make an address opening the Democratic campaign in Maryland.

Dr. George W. Calver, Navy physician, and attending physician at the Capitol in Washington, found Bankhead on the floor unconscious 35 minutes before his address, over a national radio hookup, was scheduled.

"His condition at present is quite satisfactory," Dr. Calver said, "but I am keeping him in bed here at the hotel at least all day tomorrow and possibly for several days. Mrs. Bankhead is here and a nurse can be obtained if necessary."

Bomb Hits London School, Many Die

Raids Still Make Night Hideous, But Tempo Slackens

In four daylight appearances yesterday the Germans had dropped no explosives—confining themselves to reconnaissance for what was to come later and survey of the previous damage they wrought.

The start of the night attack came just as 8:11 p. m. (2:11 p. m., Eastern standard time) last night, the late English dinner hour.

While the British air force went on with the defense as best it could, the authoritative British Press Association reported "many bodies" already had been recovered from the wrecked school.

Among those found in the wreckage were two babies—one 9 months old, the other 6 months old. Arrangements had been made to take them, and the others who were in the building when the bomb struck, to the country today. All of them had been blasted out of their homes.

83 Bodies Recovered

The Daily Mail said there were hundreds of men, women and children trapped in the school, and that of the first 90 extricated only 1 was alive. All the victims had been evacuated from another East End district.

It was an aerial torpedo, it was reported, that reduced the building to rubble.

"I was in the Napier earthquake in New Zealand, and I've been in raids in almost every other East End area," said a clergyman, "but I've never seen anything so appalling as this."

The metropolitan water board urged citizens to "use the utmost economy" until the water supply is "restored to its full quantity," thus illustrating the damage already done to mains.

"There must be increasing co-operation from every consumer," the board warned.

Utilities service was restricted over several London areas. The teashops contrived to go on making tea, but they sometimes rationed it, one cup to a customer.

Only cold food was available in some restaurants—ham, tongue, tomatoes, salads and the like.

The dislocated transit service was heavily taxed. Buses were forced to detour, in some cases to shorten their routes. Long queues were waiting for them at every stop.

"Almost Used to It"

"I havn't been home in three days," said one conductor. "But I'm getting almost used to it."

The Germans' four daytime visitations were accepted as mere preliminaries; as preparations for another full night of horror.

The first came at 12:54 p. m. (6:54 a. m., Eastern standard time), lunch hour for London's millions. In the clouds high above the center of the city British machine gun fire burst out. Then, 25 minutes later, the Nazis were thrown back and a period of jumpy peace returned to London.

But it was not for long. Beginning at 4 p. m. (10 a. m., E. S. T.) three more warnings came in quick succession before dinner time and in each case British fighters tore into small bands of raiders and chased them back across the English Channel.

There was a melancholy familiarity in the Nazi tactics: The strategy used since the first night-long raid of Saturday. Their apparent hope was to start fires while there still was daylight and to use the conflagrations thus as beacons to continue their bombing until the dawn.

In London, it was business as usual, but business handicapped by great traffic jams in streets where miles of fire hose was coiled and ready.

Fires Set Near St. Paul's

The picture Tuesday afternoon was one of scattered desolation. Vast business buildings already had been destroyed, debris lay not only in the East End shipping and industrial sections, but in the very center of the financial district.

[Shortly after 10 p. m. Tuesday, the New York Times reported, a shower of incendiary bombs lighted new fires in the immediate vicinity of St. Paul's Cathedral. The previous night's raids had left warehouses in that area blazing with such ferocity that the cathedral, rebuilt after the great fire of 1666, was seriously menaced.[

All this, and more, had been wrought in Monday night's furious assaults by at least 150 Nazi bombers, some of them loosing thousand-pound tubes of explosive over the heart of the city.

The German raiders Monday night smashed down one huge business building in the financial district and blew the top floors off another, set great conflagrations which endangered St. Paul's Cathedral and the Guildhall, London's city hall, hit two hospitals, including a maternity hospital, shook Fleet street, London's "newspaper row" with their tremendous blasts, and battled with British fighters right over the Houses of Parliament.

Another famous church, St. Mary-le-Bow—behind St. Paul's—was said to be out of danger, after long hours of anxiety.

The bodies of three youths and two men, trapped in a cellar of a building in southwest London, which received a direct hit, were taken from the debris at noon.

A rescue squad worked frantically to get to five members of another family trapped in the ruins of a four-story building in southeast London.

Two women were killed and several persons injured when a lone raider dropped a salvo of bombs on a residential area of a southeast seaside town about noon.

was portended, it was disclosed that Germany's ranking colonial expert, Colonial Bund Leader Gen. Franz Ritter von Epp, received the Italian colonial minister, Attilio Terruzzi, in Munich today. There was no report as to whether they were looking toward territorial gains through the war in Africa, or merely exchanging compliments.

A special high command communique claimed success for Nazi coastal batteries against a British convoy in the English Channel.

Of eight ships which put out from Dover Monday night, it said, German shell fire drove four back, compelled two to head in toward Deal, damaged another and left the eighth under a cloud of smoke.

Although darkness forced a halt to the attack, it said, the German guns shelled a British battery at Dover which had attempted to answer the Nazi fire and, in a two-hour battle, silenced it.

A British naval bombardment of the Nazi-held French coast Monday night was reported by the high command, but it said the attack was repelled after "several salvos which hit the hinterland without damage."

"Some light enemy naval vessels" made the attack in hazy weather, the communique said.

of magic and prayer. The idea of God in the religions taught at the present is a sublimation of that old conception of the gods."

Einstein asserted that nobody would deny that "the idea of the existence of an omnipotent, just and omnibeneficent personal God is able to accord man solace, help and guidance," but added that "there are decisive weaknesses attached to this idea in itself, which have been painfully felt since the beginning of history."

If God were omnipotent, Einstein argued, then "every occurrence, including every human action, every human thought and every human feeling and aspiration is also His work.

"How is it possible to think of holding men responsible for their deeds and thoughts before such an Almighty Being?" he asked. "In giving out punishmen and rewards He would to a certain extent be passing judgment on Himself. How can this be combined with the goodness and righteousness ascribed to Him?"

The main sources of present-day conflicts between the spheres of religion and science, Einstein continued, "lies in this concept of a personal God."

"The doctrine of a personal God interfering with natural events could never be refuted, in the real sense, by science," he said, "for this doctrine can always take refuge in those domains in which scientific knowledged has not yet been able to set foot."

The Gallup Poll

U. S. Confidence in British Victory Rises In Recent Weeks; Still Far Below Last Year

By Dr. George Gallup,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Gallup Poll figures on the Maine Senatorial election were within 4 per centage points of absolute accuracy.

Gallup predicted that Brewster would get 62% of the votes cast for Senator. Actually he got slightly more than 58 per cent.

Gallup predicted that Sewall would get 68% of the votes cast for Governor. Actually he got a little more than 63.9%, or less than 4.1 points fewer.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 10.—As England beats off air raid after air raid, American public confidence in a British victory has revived considerably in recent weeks. But is far below the confidence which prevailed at the outbreak of war. A series of Nation-wide polls conducted by the Institute during the past year shows that whereas an overwhelming number of American voters thought 12 months ago that Britain would win the war, considerably less than a majority think so today.

The poll put to a cross-section of voters in all States the question: "Which side do you think will win the war?"

The results follow:

	England.	Germany.	Undecided.
Sept., 1939 (when war began)..	82%	7%	11%
May, 1940 (France vaded)	55	17	28
June	32	33	35
July (after fall of France) ..	32	35	33
Today	43	17	40

The public's vote on who will win the war is, of course, a layman's vote, for the common people have no military training which would give them special insight. Even military experts disagree as to the probable outcome of the war. How the people feel about its progress may be important, however, as a guide to attitudes on war issues in general.

In a companion survey the Institute attempted to measure the public's reaction toward conflicting British and German claims on losses of war planes.

It found that the majority of voters do not place much stock in the statements of either side, but tend to place more faith in British reports.

Two questions were asked, one on British claims and one on German claims.

"Recently the English claimed that they shot down 387 German planes in one week and lost only 94 of their own. Do you think this report is accurate?"

Yes	19%
No	58
Don't know	23

Voters who believe that England will win the war give four main reasons: (1) England's superior resources of foodstuffs, supplies and money, her control of the sea and aid from her colonies; (2) confidence that the United States will not see the British go down to defeat, or, as one voter puts it, "England will win because the United States won't let her lose;" (3) confidence that Germany cannot stand a long war, and (4) belief in the character and morale of the Britsh people.

In addition, many voters declare that England is on the "right" side—"the side of democracy and of the Lord."

Those who think Germany is going to win point to three things: (1) her military success to date in Norway, Holland, Belgium and France; (2) her intensive preparation for war and her superior equipment, and (3) the fact that her air force is the largest in the world.

No Profit in Profitt, Claims Express Agency

Richmond, Sept. 10 (AP).—As far as the Railway Express is concerned, the station of Profitt represents a loss. The agency accordingly asked the Virginia Corporation Commission for permission to discontinue its service at Profitt, a station on the Southern Railway between Charlottesville and Orange. The request was granted today.

The commission also authorized Railway Express to discontinue its service at Dun Loring, on the Washington & Old Dominion Railway in Fairfax County.

Luray Principal Still Unconscious Week After Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Sept. 10.—Still unconscious after a week, Wilbur Tidler, of near this city, who was injured in an automobile crash in Page County where he is principal of Luray High School, has been removed to University Hospital, it was learned today.

R.A.F. Bombs Nazi Sea Bases, Berlin

of Channel last night, they killed only four people and injured five, according to the official check-up today, which showed also that two houses had been demolished and several other buildings damaged.

The widespread bombing attacks cost the British four machines, three R. A. F. bombers and one dive bomber on the fleet air arm, officials said.

While German bombs were shrieking down on London this morning and last night, the R. A. F. was busy giving Berliners a sample of the Luftwaffe's own medicine.

Their principal objective—in the Reich capital was the Neukole gas works in the suburbs, but others were electric power plants east of the city, the air ministry announced. British planes began showering down their bombs around midnight. Later arrivals reported they saw heavy recurring explosions. What success British raiders had in bombing the electric power stations in Berlin was not learned here.

Much of the heaviest attack was directed against naval dockyards at Hamburg, where many tons of high-explosive bombs and a large number of incendiary bombs were released again. Docks already severely damaged in Sunday night's sorties were hit time and again, the air ministry said. Warehouses on the Bakenhafen were set alight, causing many separate fires, some of which were visible from the air many miles away.

The air ministry declared that "more great fires" were started in Bremen, where repeated hits were registered on docks and shipbuilding basins.

Officials in London also maintained that R. A. F. bombers scored direct hits on the naval station at Wilhelmshaven, where explosives were seen to flash at one end of the naval barracks. Another line of bombs arched over the dockyard but burst across the minesweeper depot and protective pontoons in the harbor.

The raid on Kiel, one of Germany's most important naval bases, was carried out shortly before midnight. There was no information regarding precisely what quarry the R. A. F. was running down there. All that could be learned here was an official statement that "the target was lit by the dull red glow of fires which broke out after the bombing."

Germans Pocket 'Innnocent' Cards That Start Fires

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 10.—Britain disclosed tonight a new "secret weapon" in the form of innocent-looking bits of chemically treated cardboard dropped by the millions on Germany as delayed fire-bombs which burst into flame in unexpected quarters.

Germany, in first making public the new British tactics, acknowledged the fire-secreting "calling cards" carried something more than a mere nuisance threat.

British authorities, in subsequently admitting use of the new weapon, described it only as a "self-igniting leaf," and declined to furnish details.

But the authentic German description, given after chemical analysis, sounded like a sequence from some fertile adventure cartoon or a passage from a dime detective thriller.

The cards are about two inches square, composed of guncotton and phosporus, and are carried in a moist state, the Germans said.

Scattered over the countryside in lots of a quarter-million from a single plane, they dry out naturally and spring suddenly into flames about 8 inches high when warmed by natural processes to a moderate temperature.

Implying that the cards may bear a printed message, the Germans said they were particularly dangerous because people had been picking them up for souvenirs, only to have them burst into flame in a pocket or bureau drawer.

They are poisonous, too, according to the Germans.

A British authority derided the last charge, saying, however, that "if handled, they would of course cause burns." He said nothing about the other description.

The Germans charged that many persons had suffered burns from the cards and that farmhouses, grain stacks, grain fields and barns have been destroyed by them.

The Germans suggested that small bundles of the cards had been scattered widely over Germany, particularly in Westphalia, Hanover, the Harz Mountains and Southern and Middle Germany.

The British merely called attention to the fact that recent Air Ministry communiques have told of fires in the Black Forest.

"The leaves are designed to set fire to military stores standing in the open at arsenals or ammunition factories or to military supplies in open railway cars or trucks and similar objectives," said the British authority.

"It is known that the enemy has concealed such targets in woods," he remarked.

One item which seemed especially to provoke German authorities was the fact that the cards burned at different times, depending on the amount of warmth and sunlight they received.

They might even lie dormant for ten years, said a German spokesman, and still be a constant threat. He demonstrated one card to foreign correspondents in a Berlin alley. It flared up in 10 minutes.

Italians Bomb Jewish City In Palestine

American Among 50 Killed in Tel Aviv, British Report

Cairo, Sept. 10.—At least 50 civilians were killed today when Italian warplanes heavily bombed Tel Aviv and destroyed scores of homes along the palm-lined avenues of that modern Jewish city in Palestine, the British command reported.

One American citizen named Pears (first name unavailable) was among those reported killed.

Air raid precaution workers dug into the ruins of homes tonight with prospects that more bodies would be found in the debris.

Huge fires were started, the report declared, in an attack without warning and far from any military objective.

Children Killed

Five of the dead were children, the British said, and indignation spread throughout Palestine.

Tel Aviv, in the dunes near the Port of Jaffa, which also was bombed today, has been built up over the past 15 years to a thriving but strictly commercial city of more than 100,000 population, largely through contributions of American Jewry.

The city is headquarters for Zionist organizations and is populated largely by Jews, many of them having fled from prosecution in Europe in recent years. There is a large representation of American Jews.

Mersa Matruh, western Egyptian city which is a British base, also was bombed "causing slight damage but no casualties."

Royal Air Force bombers made a long series of successful attacks in Italian Africa yesterday, the British declared.

Railway Bombed

Rome, Sept. 10 (AP).—Italian planes were reported today by the high command to have bombed Mersa Matruh-Alexandria Railway and the important British bases of Jaffa and Port Sudan for the second time in as many days.

[The British said of the Sudan, "all quiet in all sectors."]

The attack on the railroad, a communique said, resulted in a direct hit on a train. Vast fires were reported started among port equipment and oil stores at Jaffa, port of British-mandanted Palestine.

August casualty totals published today brought Italian dead and missing for the war to 2,876.

In addition to 288 Italian names on the August death list and 296 missing, included in the total, were further losses of 266 natives killed and 676 missing, not included in the total.

The August wounded list totaled 488 Italians and 1,516 natives.

U. S. Averts Strike Threat Of 10,000 at Celanese Plant

The Department of Labor last night announced settlement of a strike threat by 10,000 employes of the Celanese Corporation, Cumberland, Md., plant.

Representatives of the company and the United Textile Workers (C. I. O.) reached and agreement after two days of conference with Assistant Secretary of Labor Charles V. McLaughlin and Maryland Labor Commissioner John M. Pohlhaus.

Terms of the contract will not be made public until after ratification by union membership.

By the Associated Press

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 10.—Minor disorders continued today at the Celanese Corporation of America plant as company police augmented by State officers and sheriff's deputies patrolled the area to prevent a major disturbance.

Authorities resorted to force late last night to block a group of about 200 union men who attempted to force their way into the warp knitting department in an effort to force 76 workmen there to sign up.

Last Thursday negotiations between the Celanese Corporation and the union for a new contract became deadlocked, and the union membership drive was started.

Plant officials and labor representatives attended a wage scale conference in Washington today.

In last night's disturbance Robert Helmick, 26, of Ridgely, W. Va., received head injuries and Gwendlyn Sneathen, of Mount Savage, received arm burns and was temporarily blinded by tear gas.

Police said the trouble started when about 200 persons left their work and paraded through the plant to the warp knitting department.

The group, consisting of both men and women, clashed at the door with six company policemen. Celanese officials said the workers rushed the door, officers then intervened.

Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe and members of the State police hurried to the plant in an effort to help restore order.

A company spokesman said today that James A. Dundon, president of the Celanese Union local, had cooperated during contract negotiations and had urged that the union members refrain from disorders. The spokesman said some workers booed Dundon and called him a "traitor."

Knudsen Sees 900 Planes A Month in '41

Confident U. S. Can Build More Aircraft Than Any Nation

By the United Press

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Amid the clangor of a quarter-mile long airplane factory turning out fighter planes at the rate of 12 a month, William S. Knudsen, of the National Defense Commission, today announced his confidence the United States can turn out more and better military aircraft than any other nation.

On the last day of a nationwide inspection tour of sixteen plane building plants, undertaken with Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, Knudsen visited the Curtiss Aeroplane Corporation factory, then flew to Maryland to complete his tour at the Glenn L. Martin and Fairchild plants.

The Curtiss plant, building more combat aircraft than any other American factory, is concentrating now on the speedy P-4, sensational successor to the P-36A which impressed Allied aviators with its maneuverability, and has already delivered 14 out of 524 ordered, to the Army, according to Gen. Arnold.

Knudsen Enthusiastic

Knudsen said the defense schedule, including planes for Britain, calls for a peak production of 3,000 planes per month in July, 1942, and that by April of that year he expects that there will have been completed a total of 33,000 planes, 14,000 of which will be for Britain.

Arnold said 60 per cent of the American planes will be combat types, including bombers, and the rest will be cargo, transport and trainer planes.

Expressing enthusiasm at what he had seen, Knudsen looked forward to national production of 900 planes a month a year from now.

Curtiss officials said they had been having no trouble with a feared bottleneck in production of Allison liquid-cooled engines for the P-40. They expect to receive 150 this month, they said. Knudsen reported that the present output of all kinds of engines is running 2,200 a month, pointing out that some planes require more than one engine. By July, 1941, he said, he looks for 3,500 a month.

Cooperation Hailed

Asserting that "every place we go we're getting the finest kind of cooperation from manufacturers," Knudsen said:

"Everybody agrees that United States planes are the best in the world and I believe now that we can build the most planes as well."

Plant expansion of about 12,000,000 feet is now planned or under way, Knudsen said, and this does not include production of engines.

In addition to the P-40, Curtiss is approaching completion of a new all-metal low wing dive-bomber, powered with a 1,700-horsepower cyclone motor, and is experimenting on a new observation plane, whose interchangeable landing gear will make it suitable for land or naval use.

Sidelights of the War

Trapped in Cellar by Bomb, Girl, 12, Sings to Cheer Others

Mother and 2 Friends Injured, Her Father Dead in Wreckage, She Joked For 9 Hours to Keep Spirits Up

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, Sept. 10.—Trapped with her parents and two friends, in the cellar when a bomb demolished their four-story house in southeast London last night, 12-year-old Rosy Cole sang and joked for nine hours to keep the others cheerful while rescue squads toiled through the wreckage to reach them.

At dawn Rose's mother and the two friends were removed to a hospital. Her father's body is still in the wreckage.

Doctors and nurses worked on to dig out Rose, feeding her with oxygen over a period of four hours. Finally she was freed with a few minor bruises. She flung her arms around the doctor's neck and kissed him.

Nazis Have a Method In Dropping Bombs

London, Sept. 10 (INS).—Individual German raiders on the outskirts of London tonight adopted a strange timing system for their bomb-dropping. Each plane loosed its bombs in this sequence:

Six evenly spaced, another six, then two together; then a circular flight, then three more bombs, another circle, and a final five bombs.

Gayda Calls London Raids 'Just' Reprisals

Rome, Sept. 10.—The killing of hundreds of civilians and the destruction resulting from the bombing of London is today heartily approved by the Italian press as a "just" reprisal for what it terms the persistent and indiscriminate bombing by the British of German towns.

British pilots are branded "barbarians," "criminals" and "cowards" for having "murdered" 78 German children since the beginning of the war up to August 31, according to reports from Berlin displayed prominently in every newspaper. As a result, it is stated, Germany has decided to extend indiscriminate bombing to all English towns.

"It is just—indeed, necessary," says Virginio Gayda.

Debs and Cabbies Rub Elbows in Swanky Shelter

London, Sept. 10.—London's swankiest public shelter is the ballroom of the Mayfair Hotel, 20 feet underground, where last night taxi drivers, debutantes and newspapermen foregathered for the third consecutive evening of aerial bombardment.

Some came provided with blankets and curled themselves up in dark corners nad under stairs. Others improvised beds from gilded empire chairs, which lined the walls. Motor car driver 10959, who arrived shortly after 9, took the nearest seat to the door and started chapter three of a novel.

The men were lying in a neat row across the floor, their heads cushioned on the rolled ballroom carpet. Six more were draped haphazardly, like marionettes, over the summit of a heap of rugs and bedding piled in the service hall.

Canterbury Archbishop Jittery Over Air Raids

Margate England, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Archbishop of Canterbury said today he hoped he never had to spend another two nights in London like those just past when he drove through the streets during raids.

"You can hardly imagine what it is to be continually bombed—not at intervals, but every minute—never knowing when or where the next bomb is going to fall," the archbishop said.

Bombs Create Problem For London Stores

London, Sept. 10 (INS).—London's department stores tonight considered the alternatives of closing down at 4 p. m. so their employes can get home before the nightly bombing begins, or providing sleeping accommodations for them in the event they are forced to remain in the shop shelters.

200 Frosh to Enroll At Gettysburg College

Special Dispatch to The Post

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 10.—A freshman class of 200 students, larger than the first year enrollment in 1939, will report at Gettysburg College next Monday for the opening of the fourteenth annual freshman week program, which will conclude on Thursday morning with the formal opening of college for its 109th year. Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, college president, has announced that for the first time all freshmen will be required to take vocational guidance tests during freshman week.

Crash Victim Dies In Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—E. M. Pennington, 63, of Kinsdale, died in Mary Washington Hospital last night of injuries received in an automobile collision on Ruote 3, 5 miles east of King George Court House, Sunday morning, in which his wife, Mrs. Sarah Pennington, and several others were hurt.

Jones & Laughlin Buys Tin Plate Division

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—McKeesport Tin Plate Corporation announced today sale of the fixed assets and good will of its tin plate division at McKeesport, Pa., to the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

The McKeesport company will concentrate on the operation and expansion of the national can division, which has plants at Maspeth, N. Y.; Baltimore, Md.; Hamilton, Ohio, and Boston, Mass. Operation of the lithographic division at McKeesport, Pa., will be continued.

Business Failures Set Low for Year

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Business failures in the United States dropped to 177 in the five-day week ended September 5, the lowest thus far in the year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The agency said the dron "was not entirely due to the short week." In the preceding six-day week failures totaled 229 and in the comparable short week last year 209.

Aid to Britain Stepped Up By Red Cross

Norman Davis, president of the American Red Cross, cabled instructions to relief workers in London to prepare for future air raids. He ordered the immediate purchase of 12 mobile canteen units at a cost of approximately $65,000.

Since May, Davis announced, the American Red Cross has sent 151 ambulances, 5,000,000 surgical dressings, $2,138,000 worth of medicines and several thousand pounds of canned and dried foods to England. Twelve station wagons, to be converted into ambulances, are now on the high seas, he said.

In addition, American contributions have included 48,000 nursing bottles, 720,000 buttons, 250,000 pairs of children's hose, 114,000 pairs of men's hose, 200,000 pairs of shoes, 412,000 pounds of soap, 300,000 spools of thread, 400,000 towels, 200,000 suits of underwear and 155,000 blankets, Davis reported.

Bill to Speed Defense Housing Unanimously Passed by House

$150,000 Measure Goes to Senate After Voice-Vote Approval

The House yesterday passed legislation authorizing a $150,000,000 emergency housing program for the benefit of defense workers. A unanimous voice vote sent the measure to the Senate.

Under the bill the Federal Works Administrator could provide housing units in any area where the President found that "an acute shortage of housing exists or impends which would impede national defense activities."

The dwellings would be available for housing workers in essential defense industries and civilian employes of the Federal Government assigned to duty at military or naval posts and bases.

The legislation was requested by the National Defense Commission, which stated that housing shortages are developing in several Atlantic coast cities where shipyards are operating at full capacity.

Average cost of houses constructed under the bill would be limited to $3,000 per family dwelling unit in the continental United States and $4,000 in American possessions and territories.

The bill would permit construction of dwellings for Army and Navy enlisted men, but Lanham stated that the bulk of the fund would be used for housing industrial workers.

21-39 Draft Age Limits Considered

for the program were made available in the $5,251,000,000 defense appropriation bill signed by President Roosevelt Monday.

One of the Army letters was to the Ford Motor Co., Dearborn, Mich., which is expected to undertake mass production of engines.

The draft bill conferees did reach an agreement, however, on the following differences:

Fixed the limits on the number of draftees in the Army at one time at 900,000 as proposed by the Senate. The House limit was 1,000,000 men for both the Army and the Navy. No limit is made on the number of draftees in the Navy, under the Senate or the conferees' plan.

Included members of the Public Health Service, Coast and Geodetic Survey, and persons holding appointments as cadets and midshipmen at West Point, Annapolis, the Coast Guard Academy and students in senior courses of the Naval R. O. T. C. among those exempted from training.

Modified a House amendment delaying any drafting of men until adequate "housing" including hospitalization is provided to read that adequate "shelter" must be ready. The Secretary of War rather than the Public Health Service would be judge of what is adequate under the change.

Accepted a Senate provision prohibiting any discrimination because of race or color in enlisting in the air forces.

Withdrew an exemption from registration or service in time of peace applying to former Navymen or former Marines with three years' service, at the request of the Navy Department. Former Army men are still exempted.

Authorized payment of the death benefits provided members of the regular service to dependents of drafted men dying in the service.

Accepted the Senate provision for exemption of Federal and State legislative, judicial and executive officers, which limits the executive officers deferred to those necessary for the "public health, safety and interest." Provision for such officials waiving their exemption was dropped.

Eliminated Section 7 of the bill which makes men called subject to military law and regulations from the time they are ordered to report. Chairman Sheppard said this was "unnecessary."

Chairman Sheppard said he hoped the committee would finish by late tonight and report back to the two Houses tomorrow so that the bill can be taken up on Friday and sent to the President by the end of the week.

Offer Merely Tentative

Sheppard said the offer to raise the age maximum to 39 did not mean the Senate conferees had abandoned the 21 to 30, inclusive, limitations. The proposal was made in a spirit of compromise and might be withdrawn, he indicated. In the discussion, he added, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, made another compromise proposal which would set the limits at 21 to 35, inclusive.

While the conferees were meeting, two Senators demanded an explanation of the recruiting program being conducted to raise the Civilian Conservation Corps from 285,000 to 300,000. Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, asking an investigation by the Senate Military Affairs Committee to determine whether it was interfering with Army enlistments, and Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, asked if the camps may not be a "city of refuge" against conscription.

Both questioned the need for a CCC expansion and the recent revision of regulations admitting men other than from relief rolls.

Bases Deal Criticized

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's transfer of 50 over-age destroyers to Great Britain in return for air and naval bases on British possessions in this hemisphere was criticized in both House and Senate.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, said that Mr. Roosevelt should have submitted the deal to the Senate for approval before completing it. He charged that it embodied "one of the most momentous obligations" this country has ever undertaken.

He conceded that public opinion favors objectives of the transaction but assailed the manner in which it was reached and asked:

"Is there any doubt that Congress would grant the power if there was any good reason that that power be granted?"

In the House, Representative Lewis (Republican), Ohio, introduced a resolution calling on the Judiciary Committee to investigate "all phases" of the transaction, with special reference to possibility that it violated the Constitution or international treaties.

Joint Committee Confers On Conscription Bill

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

AT CONFERENCE TABLE—Two versions of the draft bill reached the conference table yesterday with a joint Senate-House committee attempting to compromise the differences of the measures as passed by both houses. Present at the meeting were (left to right, around the table) Representative Short, of Missouri; Representative Andrews, of New York; Representative Harter, of Ohio; Representative Thomason, of Texas; Representative May, of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee; Senator Sheppard, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee; Senator Reynolds, of North Carolina; Senator Austin, of Vermont; Senator Minton, of Indiana, and Senator Gurney, of South Dakota

The Political Arena

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Samuel F. Pryor, jr., Eastern Republican campaign manager, declared today that the Democrats were conducting a campaign based on three S's—"smear, scare and steal."

PRYOR

Just returned from a conference with Wendell L. Willkie at Rushville, Ind., Pryor discussed the campaign at a press conference and said:

"With chaos in Europe, with a Congress in session and with a President who makes 'non-political' trips, using all the advantages of office, and with a campaign based on a simple formula, a formula that has been used by European leaders—consisting of three S's—smear, scare and steal—we know we are up against odds."

Pryor said the present Republican leadership was "conscious of our problems and not the least bit discouraged, and we are not reaching to a bucket of mud."

The United Republican Finance Committee for metropolitan New York reported to the clerk of the House yesterday that it had received contributions totaling $599,381 from June 7 to September 5.

Its disbursements were reported as $567,699. They included $250,000 to the Republican National Committee.

The New Jersey Republican Finance Committee reported contributions of $109,838 from June 1 to August 31 and disbursements of $48,160.

Sidelights of Defense

Widow to Sponsor U. S. S. Swanson Launching

The Secretary of the Navy yesterday designated Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, of Washington, widow of the former Secretary of the Navy as sponsor for the U. S. S. Swanson, expected to be launched at Charleston, S. C., November 2.

The Navy Secretary also designated these sponsors for other Navy vessels:

U. S. S. Gar, Mrs. George T. Mrs. Swanson Pettengill, wife of Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, commandant of the Washington Navy Yard. The Gar is to be launched at Groton, Conn., November 7.

U. S. S. Grenadier—Mrs. Walter S. Anderson, of Washington, wife of Rear Admiral Walter S. Anderson, director of Naval Intelligence. The Grenadier is to be launched at Portsmouth, N. H., in November.

Defense Board Watches Lumber Price Rise

The National Defense Commission is keeping sharp watch on advancing lumber prices, Leon Henderson, director in charge of price stabilization, said yesterday.

"The defense program does not justify any increase in lumber prices," Henderson said. "All defense requirements are well within the bounds of normal capacity of the industry. The commission is making further studies of the price advances."

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.

Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Single Term Urged For U. S. Presidents

American Bar Committee Proposes 6-Year Tenure

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—The resolutions committee of the American Bar Association rejected an anti-third term proposal today, agreeing instead to report one which indorsed a single six-year term for future Presidents of the Nation.

However, it was announced that the entire convention of 6,000 delegates would receive both resolutions—the original one which "unqualifiedly" condemned President Roosevelt's third term aspirations and the committee version—for discussion later in the week.

The original resolution, sponsored by Edward C. Bailly, of New York and H. Graham Morrison, of Bristol, Tenn., also indorsed a Constitutional amendment which would provide for a single six-year Presidential term.

It said:

"The American Bar Association . . . unqualifiedly condemns the seeking of a third term by Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his friends, as contrary of the teachings and example of the founding fathers of this Republic, and subversive of the principles upon which it was established."

The committee draft read, "Resolved, That this association does hereby approve the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States so as to limit the term of the President of the United States to six years, without eligibility for reelection."

Bailly told the committee the third-term issue "seriously affects the fundamental philosophy of our form of government. . . . It would appear that a considerable majority of the lawyers now assembled here, without regard to party affiliations, or the respective sections of the country from which they come, are opposed to a third term."

Earlier the committee approved a resolution submitted by Edwin M. Otterbourg, of New York, requesting the association to appoint a committee on national defense.

Continued prosecution of racketeering was advocated by Paul E. Lockwood, aide of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, in a speech before the convention's criminal law section, as a "potent force in restoring faith in the soundness of democratic government."

Nearly 50 recommendations for changes in traffic laws and courts were made by the National Committee on Traffic Law Eenforcement in a report to the criminal law and junior bar conference sections of the association. Among the recommendations were:

Separate treatment in courts of traffic cases.

Replacement of the "outmoded" justice of the peace system with a Statewide system of regular courts with trained personnel.

were arriving for the 15-day trip through the Middle and Far West. The journey will be made on a 12-car special train, to leave Rushville shortly before midnight Thursday.

Russell Davenport, of New York, who heads Willkie's research staff, brought a corps of assistants here. He talked with Willkie today regarding forthcoming speeches. He will continue his research work on the train.

Another early New York Willkie supporter, Oren Root, jr., also conferred with the nominee. Root said the Willkie-for-President Clubs, which he initiated, "are coming along fine."

Fish Criticizes Willkie

Des Moines, Sept. 10 (AP).—Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, declared today that Wendell Willkie's opposition to his amendment postponing conscription for 60 days would "make me fight all the harder" for retention of the provision in the selective military service bill.

Fish, here to address the Iowa State Bankers Convention, criticized the Republican Presidential nominee who at Rushville, Ind., said he hoped that House and Senate conferees would eliminate the Fish amendment.

"It is unfortunate that he (Willkie) should have given out such a statement when he unquestionably hasn't read my amendment and has fallen for the propaganda of the interventionists and the Eastern press and columnists that it would delay the operation of the draft machinery and the induction of draftees," Fish said.

"Such statements are deliberate and malicious lies as it would not delay the draft machinery one hour."

casting expense.

"We intend to reimburse the National Democratic Committee for all expenses incurred by the broadcast," he said, "and we'll keep within the law set by the Hatch Act because we'll distribute the cost among our several local unions."

The Hatch Act prohibits individuals or corporations from contributing more than $5,000 to a campaign fund.

Heretofore, the President had indicated that he would be so pressed for time because of the defense program and world conditions that he would be able to do little or no active campaigning. In his nomination acceptance speech he said:

"I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in purely political debate. But I shall never be loath to call the attention of the Nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact, which are sometimes made by political candidates."

Later, he rejected Willkie's challenges to debate campaign issues.

Ohio State Stresses Passes in Practice

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 10 (AP).—Ohio State University's famed pass offensive was stressed today as the Big Ten's defending champions launched stiff two-a-day workouts. Two out of every three offensive plays ordered by Coach Francis A. Schmidt in "tag" scrimmage involved some sort of pass. A squad of 68, largest ever to be called out for football, was on hand.

Senate to Get Excess Profits Tax Bill Today

La Follette to Offer Substitute Measure For Revised One

The excess profits tax bill—variously called a "hodge-podge" and a "great improvement"—will be reported out by the Senate Finance Committee today and taken up on the floor tomorrow.

The measure was in the hands of drafting experts yesterday, who spent the day whipping into shape the amendments in the House bill agreed on last week by the Senate committee.

Declaring the revised measure was "in a mess," Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin said he would submit to the Senate a substitute for the excess profits tax provision that would yield more revenue and would more closely conform to the excess profits levy passed by the Senate (but knocked out by the House) three months ago.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, told his colleagues on the floor yesterday that the committee-aproved bill would raise taxes on corporation incomes "dangerously close to 33 1-3 per cent."

"When the cost of government is so great that industry can't operate, then we approach the danger point," said the Georgian.

Chairman Harrison of the Finance Committee said the bill was a "great improvement" over the House measure, while Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, declared it to be "the worst hodge-podge that ever was drafted."

Md. Man Burned Gravely in Blast On Cabin Cruiser

Nanticoke, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—Alfred Bounds, 30, Salisbury businessman, was critically burned today when he was blown into the Nanticoke River by an explosion aboard his cabin cruiser.

The blast, at the mouth of the Nanticoke River, 3 miles from here, could be heard by local residents. Flame and smoke were also visible.

Capt. E. A. Taylor, aboard the police boat Nanticoke, found Bounds unconscious, floating in the water encased in a life preserver. His boat, the Connie May, was burned to the water edge.

At the Peninsula General Hospital in Salisbury, where he was rushed in an ambulance, attendants said Bounds' condition was serious. He was burned on the arms, legs, face and back.

New Valuations In Arlington Gain 6 Millions

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST
Arlington, Va., Tel. OXford 0509.

Arlington County valuations, including real estate, tangible personal property and public service corporations, today top the $48,600,000 mark.

Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green yesterday reported an increase of $6,678,698 over 1939 for the same classifications. The 1940 increase reflects the greatest increase in valuations in any one year in the county's history, Green added.

Real estate values for 1939 were $33,961,680, while in 1940 the valuations are $39,348,740, an increase of $5,387,060.

The tangible personal property values for 1939 were $5,493,917, while in 1940 they are $6,524,754, an increase of $1,030,837.

Public service corporation values for 1939 were $2,468,380, while in 1940 the valuations are $2,729,181, an increase of $260,801.

Capt. A. B. Clifford Heads Roll Call

Capt. A. B. Clifford, U. S. N., retired, has been appointed chairman of the annual roll call drive for Arlington County Red Cross Chapter, George A. Collier, chairman, announced yesterday.

The drive opens next Sunday and will continue through September 28, with a goal of 7,500 members. As a result of the increased demands on the chapter, Chairman Collier says it is imperative that the membership be enlarged.

District captains are as follows:

Arlington—The Arlington Woman's Club; Arlington Farm—E. C. Butterfield; Courthouse—Dr. Ralph G. Beachley; Arlington Ridge—Mrs. Ralph Remington; Ashton Heights—the Ashton Heights Woman's Club; Lyon Village—the Lyon Village Woman's Club.

The Old Captain Reminisces About Wars and Juliet

Ben Scovell, Twice Decorated, Is Proud Of Stage Roles

Capt. Ben Scovell, '71, marched into The Post news room yesterday, dumped his clipping-filled brief case on the city desk and announced:

"I don't know why I should talk to you common people."

Settling back comfortably behind a typewriter, he fished out two or three dozen of his more interesting press notices, dating from 1917 in newspapers ranging from the Los Angeles Times to the Philadelphia Record.

"Yes, I am the nephew of Sir Henry Irving . . . knew Kipling in the Boer War . . . won the Croix de Guerre and the British Military Cross in the World War," he said, running rapidly through his press-accounted exploits.

"But, of course, more than anything I'm an actor," he added.

The captain went on to say that in 1896 he played Antonio in "The Merchant of Venice" at Windsor Castle, when Irving played Shylock. Later in this country he played Romeo many a time opposite Julia Marlowe's Juliet but his acting wasn't limited to Shakesperean roles. He was Lieut. Osborne in "Journey's End," Sir Joseph Porter in "Pinafore," the drunkard in "The Drunkard"—memorable performances too frequent to recount, the captain said.

Even more memorable to the white-haired veteran are his days with the Canadian overseas force in the World War. Pictures of a younger, uniformer Scovell and clippings cover this phase of his career, too.

Scovell said he went over with the famous Princess Pat regiment in charge of entertainment and pep meetings of the Canadian forces, but one day he found himself looking over a stretch of front-line trenches when a star shell burst.

He saw a wounded soldier 100 yards in front of him, ran out and rescued him, and was wounded himself. Subsequently he received his two medals for the exploit, the white-haired veteran said.

His acquaintance with Kipling was over an eight-week's period in the Boer War. Kipling was covering the war for the London Pall Mall while Scovell was correspondent for the Chronicle and Graphic, he said.

The captain remembers the poet as a bespectacled little fellow with a malodorous pipe, who volunteered to read him excerpts from the yet unpublished "Boots."

Quite a Fellow, This Capt. Scovell

Alexandria Hikes Drunk Fine to $10

Under a revised city ordinance released last week by Alexandria officials, all persons convicted of intoxication in Civil and Police Court must pay minimum fines of $10 instead of the former penalty of $5 and costs, Judge James R. Duncan said yesterday.

Although he was unable to recall any action by city council which would increase the court assessment, Judge Duncan said he discovered the change during an inspection of a volume released by the city on September 5, containing the codified laws. Fines as specified by the new ordinances will be assessed in all future cases.

Msgr. Smet, Once Alexandria Priest, Dies in Belgium

The Right Rev. Msgr. Louis J. Smet, who had served 12 years as a priest at Alexandria before he became vice rector and then spiritual director of the American College at Louvain, died at Beveren-Waas in Belgium last month.

Word has just been received of the priest's death at the homeof a sister, the office of the Most Rev. Peter L. Ireton, Coadjutor Bishop of Richmond, told the Associated Press yesterday.

The American College at Louvain was closed when Belgium was invaded, and Msgr. Smet had planned to return to this country and resume his work in the Diocese of Richmond.

A native of Beveren-Waas, Msgr. Smet was educated at Louvain University and came to Richmond in 1909, where he was assistant pastor of St. Peter's Church. In 1913, he was made pastor of St. John's Church, Alexandria, as pastor of St. Peter's Church. In 1913, he was made pastor of St. John's Church, Alexandria, as pastor in 1915.

Alexandria Court Dockets 39 Cases

A total of 39 civil and criminal cases was docketed at the opening of the September term of Alexandria Corporation Court yesterday, with Judge William P. Woolls presiding. Elliott F. Hoffman, court clerk, said cases will be heard daily until the second week of October.

Among cases set for trial was that of Herman Kyer, colored, charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Joseph Smith, also colored, on February 4, 1939. He was indicted several months ago, but was apprehended only last week.

Silhouette for 1941

Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger 4-door Sedan, $1052 *delivered at Flint, Mich. Wheel shields and white sidewall tires, extra.

AS surely as the new Buick FIREBALL* straight-eight engine sets the performance pace for the coming season, the graceful silhouette of the new Buick SPECIAL and CENTURY cuts the automotive style pattern for another half decade.

The reason is not alone the grace of its Buick-created lines, nor the appearance of solid substance in action that gives this honey the look of a speedster straining at its leash.

It is the practical quality of great room enclosed in sleek and flowing lines—more room for legs, for elbows, for heads, more room for entrance and more room for carrying luggage—that makes this the silhouette the cars of the future will seek to achieve.

Why wait for that—when in this Buick you travel in a car that, like time and tide, obviously isn't waiting for any man?

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, a super meteor which travels with a series of explosions like the shock waves of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."*

Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger Sedanet, $1006 *delivered at Flint, Mich. Wheel shields and white sidewall tires, extra.

Buick prices begin at $935 for the Business Coupe delivered at Flint, Mich.

Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.*

France Fights Division and Starvation

2,000,000 Poilus Held as Hostages, Face an Ordeal

By G. H. Archambault
Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, France, Sept. 10.—Of all the problems with which France is beset, it is generally conceded today the most important is to prevent the division of the nation into three parts materially and morally—unoccupied France, occupied France and "prisoner France."

The approach of winter underlines this preoccupation and turns public attention more and more towards the plight of the 2,000,000 soldiers in captivity.

Today, for instance, it is urged in many quarters that the government create a special ration card for prisoners enabling their relatives to procure food for dispatch to internment camps without being compelled to draw on their own supplies.

Whatever privations winter may bring to both the occupied and unoccupied zones, it is being realized they will be small compared with those of the prisoners, who must be protected against cold, hunger and epidemics. These 2,000,000 represent a considerable part of the flower of French manhood, men between 20 and 40, indispensable for the work of reconstruction. Most of these men are now being transferred to camps in Germany.

Thus one part of France—the prisoners of war—is virtually a hostage in the hands of the victor. The second fraction is not far removed from this definition. More and more is the occupied zone separated from the unoccupied. For more than one month now there has been no postal communication, while restrictions on travel tend to increase. It can scarcely be veiled that the line of demarcation between the two zones is becoming hermetic.

Reports tell of increasing unemployment and, especially in the industrial regions around Paris, of "social oppositions" calculated to impede the realization of that national unity so much needed today.

Thirdly comes "the free zone" on which, in the final analysis, rests the burden of initiative and of decisions. Yet it also is subject to the "law of the occupant." It has to fight step by step because today there can be no question of a footing of equality between victor and vanquished.

Of necessity negotiations are one-sided. That fact, it is pointed out, bears upon the whole situation. The government, it is insisted, needs all moral support at this time even if there may be divergences of opinion on the regime to be instituted in the future.

In addition to prisoners of war proper there are several thousand French soldiers interned in Switzerland. It had been assumed these men would be allowed to return to their homes after the armistice. However, "the German authorities have informed the French government they cannot agree to the repatriation of the men internes in Switzerland as long as a state of war exists between Germany and France," which means until peace is concluded.

The feeding of the populations of both unoccupied and occupied France this winter is also a problem.

As far as the unoccupied zone is concerned, it is chiefly a matter of taking stock of existing supplies, augmenting them if possible by imports and dealing them out in rations.

The occupied region represents a more complicated and graver problem since the armistice terms stipulate that "the upkeep of the army of occupation" is chargeable to France. The German authorities are in a position to exercise the right of requisition, paying for purchases in currency specially issued for occupied territories. The proportion claimed of some crops after the recent harvest was as high as 80 per cent.

Gas Rubber Found To Be Successful

Detroit, Sept. 10 (AP).—A new American synthetic rubber, made of oil refinery gas, a rubber that stretches better but bounces less than the natural, and does other amazing things, was described to the American Chemical Society here yesterday by the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey.

The rubber is the "butyl" whose nature has been a guarded secret since the bare fact of its discovery was announced last June to Standard Oil stockholders. Today's report was by Dr. Per K. Frolich, director of the chemical division of ESSO laboratories.

This butyl gives the United States four different kinds of synthetic rubber, all home-made, for war emergency. As the Nation uses half the world's crude rubber, and 75 per cent of this for tires, and gets it almost all from half way around the world in the East Indies, United States military authorities are studying the new butyl.

Its tire uses are still secret. But one of its new properties is increased strength as it gets hot. Heat is a problem in heavy, high-speed military transportation.

Air leaks out of an inner tube of butyl 15 to 20 times slower than natural rubber.

Butyl's tensile strength test is weaker than natural rubber, but gets better with age, until after a couple of years the synthetic becomes the stronger.

Sharp road objects do not cut butyl as easily as natural. A strip of natural, flexed 3,000,000 times, broke. But a similar strip of butyl was still whole after 5,000,000 flexes.

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

Be Healthier, Happier—Sleep Better

When you can get for 25 cents a safe, efficient and harmless stimulant and diuretic that should flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up thru the night?

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules — the original and genuine. Look for the Gold Medal on the box — 25 cents.

Other symptoms of weak kidneys and irritated bladder may be backache, puffy eyes, shifting pains, burning or scanty passage. adv.

Exclusive with Lansburgh's

We've had our own employees give these stockings wear tests and almost to a man, they report increased wear and a diminished number of snags. We feel this is because of Lancrest's 51-gauge construction. The highly twisted silk is more resilient and has less "fuzz" to catch on things.

Wear them with your first Fall costume. Enjoy the luxury and satisfaction that only pure silk can give you. Sizes 8½ to 10½.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

TROIKA OPENS TOMORROW. A cluster of flashing international stars will bedazzle all beholders at the swank Troika opening tomorrow night. There's tenor Candido Botelho, loaned by courtesy of the Brazilian government and N. B. C.; Lina D'Acosta, noted Mexican contralto who has had her name in lights in every great city in Europe and South America; Marusia Sava, Siberian gypsy singer with a flair for vocal fireworks. The group gives the Troika revue a startling musical value, equivalent to that of any topflight musical comedy of the stage. Their booking is another triumph for Owner Helen Hamilton, who has made the Troika one of America's most famed after dark spots . . . There'll be familiar faces, too, in the Troika show—dancers Vanya and Lola, violinist Sasha Lukas leading the Meyer Davis Orchestra and the gypsy choir finale. And Prof. Leo will be back to "astro-analyze" you and you. But it needs no astro-analysis to prophesy that Troika's opening will be the greatest in its brilliant history.

BEN YOUNG
His "Young Ideas in Music" will resound at the opening of the new Cosmos Room on Friday

A new and chic spot will be opened on the second floor of the Roumanian Inn on Tuesday, October 8. There'll be an orchestra, dancing and full floor show under the smart management of Freres Paul and Dave Young, owners of the Roumanian Inn. Atmosphere and cuisine will be continental . . . The former Flagship has a new owner, may be expected to open under a new name later in the fall.

OCTOBER SPECIALS. The Mayflower Lounge has just set the date of its annual "champagne and orchids party" for Friday, October 4. This is a "must" in every well regulated date book. Both champagne and orchids are distributed lavishly and the diversionists always include performers in the four figure a week class such as the Hartmans and Giovanni. Teddy's just back from vacation and ready to take down your reservations . . . And on October 30 the Shoreham's Barnee and Max Lowe will celebrate their tenth anniversary as maestro an damusement impresario of the big hostelry. This splendid record testifies to the constant alertness of the Shoreham management, Barnee and Max in giving the Washington public the finest and newest in music and diversion.

CAMERAMAN-MAESTRO. Taking motion pictures in color is the hobby of Milton Davis, of the Rainbow Room. His special pride is his collection of films of his little daughter, Helen. When she gets a little older he's going to have them made into one film called "Helen Grows Up."

FACES IN THE RIGHT PLACES. Lounge Riviera. Carter Barron, of Loew's theaters, with two English officers on leave from the battle of Britain . . . Lotus. Jane Whitney, former Lotus warbler, looking as pretty as ever at the ringside. She's now a top Manhattan canary . . . Casino Royal. Senor Martin, of the Madrillon, bending an ear to Jack Schaeffer's jive songs. Jack started his jive career at Madrillon . . . Neptune Room. A table full of The Post's young men enjoying the Three Star Trio before they trek back to the city room for the rest of the evening.

Ben Young (see pic above) is noted for the ultra-modern sweet rhythm he'll bring to the Carlton's new Cosmos Room on Friday, but he's a graduate of "barrel-house" and proud of it. Because "barrel-house" gives musicians the best rhythm training in the world.

WITH THE RHYTHM BOYS. That lilting "Dressed in Blue" now scoring at River Bend is the composition of saxaphonist Harry Echols, of George Stein's band . . . You haven't heard "One Hour Tonight" if you haven't heard it as done by "Mousey" Garner's gang in Mayfair . . . Part of the reason that Hi Hat customers look so happy is because the Cavaliers always play their requests more smartly than they've ever heard them before . . . The Nightingale's Oliver Wilson says it's "Sixty Lessons from Madame La Zonga" as far as he's concerned. He has to sing it that often . . . Remember that terrific swing played by Al Oddone at the Arcadia Ballroom last winter? He's piped it down a bit in volume for the Gay Nineties, but retained the contagious rhythm . . . For rolling rhythm we recommend "It's Always Fair Weather" when rolled out by Manager Fritz Miller, Tommy Suter and all the New Bavarian customers . . . Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room says that he spent his vacation playing soft ball and tennis, and reproving New York State cops. "I told them how polite our Washington policemen are," said Matt. After that, Matt, you should never get a ticket.

YVONNE'S SCHNOZZOLA. Yvonne Logan of Maryland Club Gardens has a pretty little nose, but she vows that she can smell a block away. It must be true because she twice detected hidden fires in New York buildings, preventing serious damage.

PRAIRIE ATMOSPHERE now suffuses the pleasant Harrington Tavern. Jack Dalton, a real Westerner, twangs his gittar and sings every rodeo ballad that any customer can name. Two steps of E street and you'll think you're in the heart of the West, especially after one of the Harrington's notable mint juleps.

First Elks' dance of the fall will be held tomorrow night at the Elks' Club at 919 H street. There'll be a fine Dave McWilliams band. From now on the Elks' dances will be held every Tuhsday and Saturday. Hi! brother Elk!

WANTED, A ROAD MAP. Maestro Ray Bradford has been at Del Rio for weeks, but complains bitterly that he still gets lost between Washington and Hyattsville, darned near winds up in Annapolis some times. "Every time I go to a movie, I have to hire a guide," he said.

Prince Georges G. O. P. to Hear Rep. Jennings

Representative John Jennings (Republican), of Tennessee, will make the principal speech at the Willkie-McNary Club of Prince Georges County outing on Saturday, J. Franklin Lillard, jr., of Hyattsville, vice president of the group, stated yesterday.

Former Gov. Harry W. Nice, Senatorial candidate, and Mayor John N. Torvestad, of Colmar Manor, Congressional aspirant, also will speak.

The outing is to be held on the farm of John W. Staggers, of Laurel, president of the organization, two miles south of Laurel, on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

D. C. Has Plan Ready to Meet Conscription Call

The plan calls for 19 local areas in the District, each with a three-man board, a medical officer, registrars and board of appeals.

Thirty-eight schools have been selected for registration places but this number may be changed. On the basis of an 800,000-man draft, the District would supply about 4,080, or one-half of 1 per cent of the total.

Maine Augurs Victory, G.O.P. Leader Says

Republicans See Control of House And White House

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Reassured by the size of the G. O. P. victory in Maine, Republicans last night forecast November echoes that would carry the House, swing 8 to 13 more Senate seats and stop the third-term drive of President Roosevelt.

Democrats were content to call Maine "always inaccurate" as a national index. But in Hyde Park President Roosevelt for the first time abandoned public aloofness from campaign politics. He permitted his labor speech in Washington tonight to be billed with the broadcasting companies as "political."

G. O. P. Encouraged

This, too, cheered Republicans who have been demanding that the President engage in open political debate. His recent strategy of publicly ignoring the campaign and concentrating on national defense had dismayed them.

The Republicans swept all top Maine State offices and rolled up the largest gubernatorial plurality since Hoover's 1929 sweep. The day brought these other developments:

Senate Minority Leader McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, arranged on arrival here to fly to Rushville, Ind., with Republican National Chairman Martin for conferences with Wendell L. Willkie, now preparing for a cross-country swing. All three hailed Maine returns as pointing to Republican success.

Senator Townsend, of Delaware, chairman of the Senate Republican campaign committee, declared that in no event would Republicans win less than eight additional Senate seats in November, "and if Maine points the trend I think it does, we will pick up 12 or 13."

Circuit Judges Approve Audit Plan, Says Price

Richmond, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—Gov. Price said today that most of Virginia's circuit judges had expressed approval of plans to try out a system of control and audits of accounts of fee officers in the State.

"One or two judges have raised objections," the Governor said, adding that the final decision on the matter depended on word from some of the judges who have not yet replied to a query from the Governor's office.

The plan sought by the bar association would provide for the standardization of service costs by sheriffs and other fee officers and a closer check on expense accounts in advance of payment.

About nine additional auditors would be added to the staff of State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs to put the plan in operation at a cost of approximately $20,000 in court funds.

All payments to fee officers would be passed upon by the State comptroller and subjected to audit.

U. of Va. Bureau Asked to Survey Richmond Police

Richmond, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—Mayor Gordon Ambler said today that he had asked the bureau of public administration of the University of Virginia to make a survey of the Richmond police department.

Meanwhile, he questioned the wisdom of Safety Director John A. Chuthins' action in having Officer J. Spencer Howerton make a report on the department.

"Frankly, I think the mistake was made in ordering a private to make a survey of the department whereby he had to criticize superior officers," Mayor Ambler said.

Howerton began the survey soon after he completed a special police course at Northwestern University last year.

Charles County Bank Embezzler To Seek Parole

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—A former Charles County bank teller sentenced for embezzlement is among 104 convicts who will be given hearings tomorrow by Parole Director Herman M. Moser.

Tomorrow's docket—listing 64 prisoners from the House of Correction, 31 from the penitentiary and 9 from the Baltimore City Jail—is the largest in the history of the parole department.

The former teller is William M. Jameson, sentenced to two years in the House of Correction for embezzling $2,500 last year from the Hughesville Savings Bank.

Another case to be heard is that of Houston Greenway. Greenway, serving 15 years, was convicted of assault with intent to rob a Prince Georges County couple in 1934. Greenway repeatedly has denied participation in the crime.

Liner Docks With 930 Refugees, Including Scottish Children

Group, Arriving in New York City, Include Exiles of Germany; Internment Camp Hardships Described

New York, Sept. 10.—The Anchor Line Cameronia docked today with kilted children of Scotland and several hundred refugees from Germany, the first of a large group to land in New York in many weeks, including 135 who had spent several months in British internment camps.

The Cameronia brought a total of 930 passengers. Between 600 and 650 were said to be German refugees. There were 300 children on the ship, including about 200 Scottish girls and boys from 6 to 15, most of them ruddy-cheeked youngsters from the highland country, sturdy and bright-faced, and wearing a variety of Tartan skirts and kilts.

The refugees from Germany, most of whom had lived in England before the war began, complained of certain features of the British internment system. They said for one thing that when they were removed from the Lingfield camp in Surrey, they "were treated like criminal prisoners," were kept under close guard and were not permitted to say good-by to relatives and friends either at the camp or at the dock in Glasgow. Several of the refugees spoke highly of the British military guards, but they did not like the Scotland Yark Police.

Norbert Feiwelsohn, a knitted goods manufacturer, who left Austria more than a year ago, said he was in the Lingfield camp for nine weeks, and before that had been on a British island where there are nine different internment camps, seven for men and two for women.

There were 4,000 women in one camp, 90 per cent of them Jewish.

"They are mostly elderly women," he said, "and they are not permitted to se their children in other camps, although they can see their husbands once in a while for a brief meeting. It is cruel to keep the women there, and they should be moved. While the general treatment is good and conditions in the Lingfield camp were afir, the authorities treated us like criminals."

Visas Obtained

By the Associated Press

State Departmetn officials said yesterday all refugees brought to the United States on the Cameronia obtained visas in the regular manner and no exceptoin was made in the case of the 135 men formerly interned in an alien camp.

It was explained that some of the refugees may have applied for visas while still in Germany or elsewhere on the Continent and later made their way to England and for various reasons were interned before the visas were granted.

Department officials stressed, however, that Government regulations had not been relaxed to allow Britain to send interned aliens or prisoners to this country.

Senate Passage Of Loan Bill Seen Today

Debate Limited; Barkley, Wagner Defend Measure

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The Administration bill to authorize $500,000,000 in loans to Latin America was attacked in the Senate yesterday as "a down-payment on perpetual grief" and defended as a vital step toward "hemisphere solidarity."

The measure, which has already passed the House, will probably be approved by the Senate today and sent to conference.

In indorsing the proposal, Majority Leader Barkley warned his colleagues of Nazi inroads in Latin America. He asserted that the Germans have already offered to give South Amrican countries free of charge at the conclusion of the war $20,000,000 worth of military equipment."

Wagner Defends Measure

Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, who as chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee is handling the bill, declared that economic chaos in the nations to the south may drive them into the hands of the Nazis unless the United States takes action.

On the other hand, Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, declared that loans provided a futile method of carrying out the "good neighbor" policy; while Senator Danaher (Republican), of Connecticut, asserted that the bill is couched in such broad terms that its implications are "limitless."

The measure would increase the loan authority of the Export-Import Bank from $200,000,000 to $700,000,000, and permit it to lend the money to governments or individuals "to assist in the development of the resources, the stabilization of the economies and the orderly marketing of the products of the countries of the Western Hemisphere."

"Too Costly," George Says

Joining the Republican opponents of the measure, Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, said the program would be "too costly" and suggested that it contained the "cartel philosophy."

The Senate agreed by unanimous consent to limit speeches on the bill today to ten minutes each. Before passing on the bill, amendments proposed by Senator Taft must first be voted on. They would restrict the loans to the development of only those materials which are necessary for national defense or which are not produced to any large extent in the United States.

London's Ordeal

Just an even hundred years ago next month the late Lord Macaulay had his moment of prophetic vision. He foresaw the day "when some traveler from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's."

Perhaps that day is now at hand; perhaps not. At latest reports both St. Paul's and London Bridge were still standing, though a good deal of that familiar neighborhood has already been reduced to heaps of smouldering rubble. In succeeding raids St. Paul's, too, may be blasted to the ground. Moreover, "travelers from New Zealand" are plentiful in London now—though perhaps it is a good omen that most of them wear the Anzac uniform.

But even if the whole of London is laid in ruins, and half its population buried in them, that will not mean that London has been destroyed. There were, for example, nine cities of Troy built one on top of another, and "cloud-kissing Illion" of the famous legends is merely the sixth from the bottom—or, if you prefer, the third from the top.

London itself has been previously destroyed. Most of London, as the Romans knew it, lies deep underground. Nearly three centuries ago more of London was destroyed by fire than is likely to be destroyed by Marshal Goering's "super-bombs." Yet London survived.

Cities are not destroyed merely by demolishing their ancient monuments or by killing their inhabitants and leveling their homes. Of this, Rome, thrice sacked and more than once abandoned, Jerusalem, often taken, often delivered, bear ample witness. Indeed, these ancient places have now both a corporeal and a mystical reality.

So it may well be with London. As Rome became a symbol of spiritual unity, Jerusalem the symbol of spiritual aspiration, London may survive its fearful ordeal to become a symbol of the triumph of the human spirit over the forces of destruction.

Much In A Name

Sam McGee is dead. And in his death, as in life, it is necessary to explain that he really is—or was—Sam McGee, the man who came to fame by no intention of his own, through a poet who knew nothing of him save his name.

After Sam McGee became a legendary figure in the North, the news accounts tell us, he had to carry documents to prove his identity. So far as the public was concerned, he had disappeared in the fiery furnace where he was cremated by Robert W. Service. In fact, when he visited the Yukon two years ago he found that a shack he had once occupied was operating as a tea room bearing the invitation:

"Have a cup of tea with the ghost of Sam McGee."

This was not only a poor imitation of Mr. Service's rhythm but must also have struck Mr. McGee as a sour sort of humor.

Sam McGee was not alone in discomfiture of this sort, however. There was the second Adolf Hitler, whose name was long a source of embarrassment to Nazi authorities and of consequent inconvenience to himself. And Anzac soldiers, arriving last June at a British port, were startled when greeted with a speech of welcome by Mr. Shakespeare. They thought that fellow was dead. There is also the story of Woodrow Wilson's secretary, who had been sent to meet a certain Englishman of letters at the train:

"Are you Sir Walter Raleigh?" he asked the only man in sight.

"Sure," replied the gentleman, unperturbed. "And Queen Elizabeth is in the next coach."

And, of course, every man carrying such a weighty name as Robert E. Lee, George Washington, Paul Jones or John Milton, has felt the sting of the switchboard operator's retort:

"Oh yeah? Well, this is Cleopatra."

Our Two-Ocean Navy

Two hours after the $5,246,0000,000 supplemental Defense Appropriations Act became law the Navy Department announced the signing of contracts with private shipbuilding firms and allocations to navy yards for the construction of 200 fighting ships and one repair vessel. The estimated cost of these additions to the fleet is $3,861,053,312.

The fact that so little time was allowed to elapse before getting the new naval expansion program under way is a tribute to the thoroughgoing preparatory work done by the Navy Department. Soon after the measure was introduced in Congress, conferences were held with representatives of commercial shipyards and in due course tentative agreements were reached. It was thus possible to put these agreements into force immediately after the President signed the bill. As a result, the first keels of the ships just ordered may be completed by next March.

When these ships on order become actual ships on the sea the United States will have a Navy of truly formidable dimensions, capable of defending this hemisphere against attack from all quarters.

At present the fleet consists of 15 battleships, 6 aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 197 destroyers and 103 submarines. Already under construction are 10 battleships, 5 aircraft carriers, 21 cruisers, 57 destroyers and 40 submarines. The new program calls for 7 battleships possibly of 55,000 tons each, which would make them the largest naval units the world has ever seen. It also provides for the construction of 8 aircraft carriers, 27 cruisers, 115 destroyers and 43 submarines. When these additions are all completed the fleet will consist of close to 700 fighting ships.

That makes an impressive total, particularly in view of the fact that the Navy has only 358 fighting vessels at present. But no one should forget that months will intervene before any of the newly authorized fighting ships can be completed and years before our two-ocean navy will be a reality. The battleships just ordered will not be ready to meet an enemy for four or five years.

Much can happen during these five years. The United States may and may not remain at peace during this period. At any rate, the program is a long step forward. It means that new ships will be moving down the ways as quickly as possible. It means also that the United States will soon have increased private and public naval shipbuilding facilities.

The present authorizations contemplate expansion of existing navy yards at a cost of $31,653,000. Private shipbuilding firms are expected to spend an even larger sum to expand their yard capacities. Should the United States find it necessary in future years to build still more fighting ships of certain categories, these additional naval construction facilities will be a national defense asset of incalculable value.

A Happy Choice

Washington has been particularly fortunate in the caliber of men chosen to serve as corporation counsel in recent years.

The services rendered by E. Barrett Prettyman a few years ago seem to have become a sort of precedent. That official was followed by Elwood H. Seal who is the real author of the District reorganization bill passed by the House on Monday. Now Mr. Seal is to be succeeded by Richmond B. Keech, who has proved his capacity for public service during many years at the District Building.

As people's counsel of the District and as a member of the Public Utilities Commission, Mr. Keech long ago won the confidence of the community. He is thoroughly familiar with the machinery of local government. He is a competent lawyer and a public-spirited citizen. His advancement to the post of corporation counsel suggests that the Commissioners are giving thoughtful attention to personnel problems.

If the reorganization bill becomes law, a considerable portion of the responsibility for putting the new setup into effect may fall upon the corporation counsel. For that task as well as his routine assignment Mr. Keech seems to be admirably qualified.

No Mistaking Its Tenor

Some months ago President Getulio Vargas of Brazil brought about a fluttering in diplomatic dovecotes in many parts of this hemisphere, particularly in the United States, with a speech which appeared to be a defense of totalitarianism. It was even suggested at the time that Brazil might cut loose from her Pan-American moorings to become a silent partner of the Berlin-Rome Axis.

Actually nothing of the sort was contemplated. President Vargas' speech, despite its ebullience, turned out to have no international significance. And since then, as before, Brazil has proved a tried and true friend of inter-American cooperation.

President Vargas has now made another speech. Its tenor is unmistakable. Addressing a throng gathered to celebrate Brazil's 118th anniversary of independence, he forecast a union of the armed forces of the American nations if ever it was necessary for Western Hemisphere defense.

Amid all the fears and alarms regarding fifth-column activities in the New World, justifiable as some of these fears may be, it is well to note that the spirit of inter-American cooperation and solidarity continues to make real headway.

Maine's First Love

Maine's September election has been greatly overrated as a barometer of national trends in political sentiment. Nevertheless, the returns from this extreme northeastern State continue to be scanned by politicans throughout the country. For final votes cast anywhere in the United States during a general election year are something more than a mere straw in the wind.

The devotion of Maine to the Republican Party was amply demonstrated in 1936 when it was one of two States casting electoral votes for Gov. Landon. That performance has forever discredited the superstition that "as Maine goes so goes the Nation." The Pine Tree State is not typical of the United States as a whole either politically or otherwise.

When all this has been said, however, the fact remains that the Republican Party has won an overwhelming victory in Maine. The election of all the major G. O. P. candidates was taken for granted. It is the wide margin between the relative voting strength of the two parties which gives the returns their real significance.

In 1936 former Gov. L. J. Brann lost the senatorial election by a few thousand votes. On Monday he was left far behind by Representative Ralph O. Brewster in a contest for the same office. That outcome seems to be the more discouraging for the Administration because Mr. Brann had based his campaign on loyal adherence to the New Deal and support for President Roosevelt's third-term candidacy.

All that can be said with certainty at the moment is that Republicanism is running at full tide in Maine. As to the sentiment of the country in general, Dr. George Gallup is providing a far better index than Maine's ballot boxes. To date Dr. Gallup's polls plainly indicate that Maine is only one of many States in which the G. O. P. is staging a formidable comeback.

Note On Intolerance

Among the committees and organizations recently formed in the United States is one to eliminate intolerance. That action might well become a stopping point for the formation of committees and organizations. For if intolerance were ever eliminated from the United States, we would be in a very bad way indeed. There are so many things of which we need to be intolerant. First among them, paradoxically, are various prevalent forms of intolerance itself.

After we have put intolerance on the list of things toward which we should be intolerant it will be possible to keep the remainder of the list under some kind of control. For we shall have to be intolerant in a way that is tolerable.

Murder would get under the line certainly, for intolerance is the only attitude toward it that is at the same time tolerable. Most of the sins prohibited in the Decalogue, would qualify also. But you could not rationally go on to include in this list members of the opposite political party, or of differing faiths and races, for there your intolerance would become intolerable. By such action you would simply cultivate intolerance toward which, under the aforementioned code, you would have to be intolerant.

Plainly, if we could eliminate intolerance, we should have the kind of world in which no one would oppose anything, and everything would go. That would be too much like the kind of world we actually have to be quite comfortable.

War-Coined Word

From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

With warplanes by the hundreds speeding through the skies over Europe on lethal errands, it has been obvious for a year or longer that languages, regarded as the written and spoken expressions of human experience, were deficient. Newspapers and magazines in the United States as a rule have employed "air armada" when it was necessary to compress the fact as far as possible. At least one newspaper in the East is now using the war-coined word "airmada," and it may prove the solution of a caption writer's problem and serve well with people in general. Thus far the war in Europe has been short on word production, though introduction is another matter, as the constantly recurring employment of "blitzkrieg" and "blitz" pretty well proves. "Airmada," however, might very well hang on, for it fills a need for terse expression of a fact otherwise not susceptible to definitive handling.

The reason why a large number of persons are so ill-informed is because they spend so much of the time listening to themselves talk.

It is deplorable that politicians assume the majority of the people are dumb. And it's lamentable that the assumption is correct.

Once upon a time there was a fisherman who caught a fish so large he didn't believe it himself, so he rolled it back in.

Speed Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been listening to the radio, announcing the passage of the conscription bill, with the Fish amendment attached, which delays and nullifies the effect, "to some extent" for 60 days.

I turned the dial and listened to the report of the heaviest aerial bombardment of London to date. It is evident this is Hitler's mightiest effort to strike Britain to her knees. This then is the blitzkrieg, or starting of it. Everything points to an attempted land invasion of England in a very few days.

Hitler is betting his "stack" right now. He has not allowed one word of official protest against the destroyer "swap." But if he whips England he will talk then.

And today the American House of Representatives voted to delay the draft 60 days!

It seems to me the American President should have the power, or, all efforts failing, to eliminate the Fish amendment—should assume power in such manner as will do away with all further delay in such matters as this.

Political Trickery

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "A Political Trick," in today's issue, is one of the best, if not the best, presentation of facts and comment on facts during the present crisis.

For it is trickery to vote this 60-day delay in the selective service bill on the plea that it gives the volunteer system another opportunity to function, when anyone can read between the lines that the two-month postponement is for the purpose of delaying the final roll call until after the fall elections, thus enabling members of the lower house who are making bids for further tenure to wait before declaring themselves until they can return home and ascertain which position taken on the grave issue will better serve their selfish purpose.

Debate And Dedication

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am completely perplexed at the President's solemn announcement that he could not take time nor go too far away from home in this last of the numerous crises he has created—to debate Mr. Willkie. Why, the debate could have been held right here in Washington—taking only an hour or two of time! But the real perplexity is how the President could not find time for the debates—yet takes time to go way off to distant points for such simple services as dedicating dams and forests. And on the very day that Britain was getting one of its worst attacks, the President was out at sea just sailing. And I understand he is now talking of going to Texas—oh, of course, not for any campaigning—oh, no—merely for some "inspection" tour.

I am perplexed. But I'm not perplexed about how I am going to vote.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL.

The Destroyer Deal

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The deed itself is already history and cannot be recalled, but I should like to express an opinion on the current "destroyers for bases" deal.

In view of universal approval, I will assume that the acquisition of these bases has been a worthwhile accomplishment as a long-time proposition.

But, if so, why in heaven's name did the deal have to wait until 1940? The islands have existed since time began; the destroyers were built in 1920-22, and the Administration boasts that it foresaw this war and all its horror. Whey then wasn't the deal consummated before it became an act of belligerency in an already raging war?

Could it be that heretofore Britain has refused to let them go? If so, does that not tear a sizable hole in the naive theory of a protecting British Navy guarding our national security? For if it were ever to the interest of Britain to protect us in the Atlantic she would have made those bases available years ago; to do so could never have been to her disadvantage unless she preferred having us dependent upon her navy by way of insurance that we would underwrite her success in all her wars. The columnists should think about that possibility.

I read, too, in the columnists' words that that crisis is one of days and weeks—not years. Yet these bases will take at least a year to construct. They will not be needed at present if Britain survives, and will be worthless if Britain goes under in September. Furthermore, if Britain should lose, we would seize the islands in self-defense anyway. It seems to me, therefore, that we have lost 50 destroyers, of immense immediate value, in spite of any Administration opinions to the contrary, and have gained some insular real estate of no immediate value.

As for Mr. Churchill's pledge never to scuttle or surrender the British fleet, I can only point out that Mr. Churchill's government would not survive a successful German invasion and his pledge can hardly survive the government. I might add that we already have a British pledge on several billion dollars' worth of bad debts.

The deal should be condemned, too, from the "act of war" angle. The Administration acting upon a mandate to aid Britain by methods short of war, has financed plane manufacture for Britain, has sold her munitions and planes from the United States Army and Navy, has held up German ships and has called names lustily. Now we have traded part of our Navy—still calling the action short of war. I believe it is high time the American people realized that those three words have limits.

For example, at sea, at this moment are a number of destroyers for all practical purposes part of the British navy, but manned for the trip to Canada by American sailors who enlisted in the Navy to protect their country.

Suppose that a German U-boat should sink a few of these destroyers with the loss of several hundred American lives. Germany would be justified by any rule of warfare. But would the families of those lost think we were still short of war? Would Mr. Lippmann or Mr. Sullivan or Mr. Nover think so? Could they justify the loss of life?

Now, such a thing has not happened and in all probability will not. I am trying only to point out that the Administration in experimenting with methods short of war, is taking wild risks of "incidents" and the frightful results. If the United States Government sets the stage for such incidents, avoidance of war becomes dependent not upon the will of the American people, but upon the self control of Herr Hitler, a dubious quality at best.

I believe the columnists should consider these possibilities . . . When does "short of war" become war in actuality and in all its horror? The American people should know.

Draft Limitations

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are soon to have some sort of act authorizing the conscription of some men for military service. The reason for the exemption of women is not obvious, as they seem to do very well competing with men in every other field of endeavor.

Even more illogical—if there can be degrees in unreasonableness—is the restriction of conscription to certain ages. Conscription is based upon the belief that our military experts know what is best for our defense. (This is a reasonable assumption, but for the sake of our faith in their infallibility we wish they hadn't told us that the French army was the best in Europe.) With a strange inconsistency, Congress accepts the advice of the military experts to the necessity for conscription but rejects their recommendations concerning the citizenry that should be subject to the act. In time of war and, believe it or not, we are at war—this is a highly dangerous procedure.

The high command tells us that they need at once approximately 1,000,000 men, besides those already in the services, and they foresee the probable need of at least 2,000,000 more. This army, we are told, will consist largely of mechanicians and machine operators. There is not apt to be any dearth of unskilled men; but one of the principal reasons advanced for imposing conscription was the vital necessity for preparing quickly. It takes time to train a potential mechanic and no amount of training in the Army can make efficient mechanics out of a large majority of the men who will be available. In varying degree this applies to other vocations essential in the Army. The danger in limiting conscription to any age group becomes apparent when we consider that the Army may be in urgent need of a thousand or more mechanics after exhausting, or making full use of, all the material available among the authorized conscriptees. Is it sensible to jeopardize the safety of the Nation while waiting for Congress to legalize the conscription of another age group?

Plea For Action

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Below is my appeal for action in the matter of preparedness:

Dust! Ruins like the Parthenon
Excavated here and yon
Some decades hence!
What sort of man conceived all these?
What thoughtless aborigines
Whose heroes statues merited,
Whose teachings they inherited
And forgot?

America, wake! Lest we, like Rome,
Fall, and dust, like her, become!
Descend into a darkened age,
Forgotten our rich heritage
Of freedom.

Let not the future find a race
Godless, living in our place!
The world sustained by God's own right
Can rise again into the light
We have no Washington today,
No martyred Lincoln to show the way;
But patriots still, who watchful stand
To guard the land they loved—
Our land.

Political Renaissance Of Tarkington

NEWTON BOOTH TARKINGTON first appeared in active politics in 1902—nearly 40 years ago. After having submerged in literary work for nearly half a century he suddenly reappears in a letter of indorsement for Willkie.

I was present and participating in the induction of Tarkington into the political "swim." As secretary to the late Senator (afterward Vice President) Fairbanks, I sat in with the small group of political leaders who decided whether it was wise to offer Mr. Tarkington as a candidate of the Republicans for membership in the Indiana House of Representatives. In those days the Legislature elected the Senator. Senator Fairbanks was "up for reelection." It was the political custom to submit for approval to the senatorial candidate the list of proposed nominees for the Legislature, inasmuch as these would vote on the senatorship.

Tarkington's name was suggested by Mr. Fairbanks. With his usual caution, he observed to the group:

"It has been suggested to me that Booth Tarkington, the author, would be a popular nominee for the House."

With one exception, outside of Mr. Fairbanks and myself (as secretary, I realized I was to be seen and not heard) the assembled leaders either demurred or were significantly silent. The exception was the "Big Chief," Joe Kealing, undisputed boss of Indiana Republican politics for many years. The objectors said that Mr. Tarkington was "one of them literary fellers" and didn't know politics and was more or less aloof from the general political groups. Finally Kealing said: "I am surprised that Booth Tarkington will even consider the nomination; but if he will I predict now that if you nominate him he will lead the ticket," and he did.

It developed later that Delevan Smith, first cousin of Mr. Fairbanks and publisher of the Indianapolis News and a "buddy" of Tarkington at the University Club in Indianapolis, had suggested to Tarkington that he ought to go to the Legislature and get "color" for his writings. Tarkington assented reluctantly. Smith was really responsible, then, for the entry of Tarkington into the politics of that day. Tarkington's name appeared at the top of a list of nine candidates for the House. He polled the highest vote.

After a few weeks it came to my attention that the political workers were disappointed that Tarkington had not appeared in public. Apparently he was taking no interest in the race. A self-appointed committee called on the candidate and I am told they found him propped up in bed with a writing table on his knees furiously grinding out copy. He told the committee that he had not sought the nomination, really did not desire it, but being in the fight, he would do whatever the committee suggested. They advised the astonished candidate that he must appear and make a speech. Tarkington told them frankly that he did not understand that he had to "waddle around the ring," as they say at the county fairs. But he had to yield and I was present at the author's "maiden effort." It was in an old fire engine house in North Indianapolis. Back in Illinois I once attempted to deliver my first (also my last) political address, and I could heartily sympathize with the author. Forced to speak I began by saying: "Ladies and gentlemen: I am not a political speaker."

"Why don't you tell us something we don't already know," shouted a girl in the rear wearing the colors of the party.

The Lincoln historians have preserved and published a "forgotten" speech by Lincoln reproduced from memory by one who was present to try to preserve it to posterity. I really believe that Booth Tarkington's speech at the fire engine house should be preserved if for no other reason than as an admonition. I will endeavor to reconstruct it:

"Well, you boys got me into this. Really, I don't know what it is all about. Delevan Smith started the thing. So when they told me I had to make a speech I went to Delavan and I asked him, 'What shall I say?' Delavan replied he didn't know as he had never been a candidate. But he said it seemed to him that I should advise you to get out the vote.' So I pass on to you what my friend Delavan said, 'get out the vote.' I guess that's all."

In the course of his speech Mr. Tarkington revolved between his hands a derby (not brown, but black) and he kept it revolving continuously. I think that was the author's one and only speech in the campaign.

Elected, he introduced one bill in the Legislature. But he did more. He organized and immortalized the "Sea Lions Club." The author became very popular with the rural legislators, who from the type of mustache common in those days might well have been designated the "Walrus Club." Tarkington chartered for the period of the Legislature one "Peg" Hamilton, so named because he had a wooden leg which he had fashioned from the primeval forest. This Hamilton drove a night cab. Loaded down with country legislators, some riding either on top or within the cab, the Hamilton proceeded slowly through the streets of Indianapolis, and at stated stops those riding would dismount and, under the direction of the impressario Tarkington, give the Sea Lion's cry "for its young." In Lockerbie street and aristocratic Woodruff place the quiet of the night was frequently broken by the Sea Lions. It is not recalled what became of Mr. Tarkington's legislative measure. People do not remember, in fact, what it was.

Japan Scores Again

By Mark Gayn

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Meaning Of Victory In Indo-China

JAPAN'S VICTORY in last week's diplomatic poker game in Indo-China was an event of world-shaking importance.

The encounter in Hanoi was admittedly less spectacular than the Nazi hammering of England. Yet, it was to affect the daily life of the man in the street in Phoenix, Oshkosh and Passaic just as vitally as the Battle of Britain.

Ostensibly, the demands presented by two tough little Japanese officers—Maj. Gen. Issaku Nishimura and Col. S. Sato—to Vice Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor-General of Indo-China, dealt only with the passage of Japanese troops through the colony en route to the Chinese border.

Enough, however, has escaped the blue pencils of censors in Tokyo, Vichy, Hanoi and Haiphong to show that Japan was seeking complete control of Indo-China—the "manchukuoization" of yet another slice of Asia.

A letter just smuggled out of Haiphong to beat the censorship compared the situation in Indo-China today with the early stages of the Japanese invasion of North China, around 1932-33.

"Hanoi," the letter informed me, 'is swarming with Japanese 'inspectors.' Last June, 40 of them were permitted to enter Indo-China to see that no military supplies were shipped to China. Now, in Hanoi alone, their number exceeds 100. They are also in scores all over the colony, making economic and military surveys that do not have the remotest connection with the question of Chinese supplies.

"Decoux is in a hell of a position. He certainly has no love for the British, especially after (the battle of) Oran. American assistance is generally discounted here, in the belief that Washington would not send warships into the western Pacific. And Britain and the United States are the only angels that can save Indo-China in this critical hour.

"The only thing Decoux can do in the circumstances is to accept the Japanese demands, but try to save as much as possible without provoking the Japanese Army in South China—which seems to run the show—into armed action.

"Last week (apparently early last month) he banned the landing in Haiphong of another 100 Japanese who represented themselves as 'seamen.' The Japanese freighter which brought them also had numerous crates of 'supplies'—for whom, no one knows. Now both the 'seamen' and the crates are waiting outside of Haiphong, under the escort of Japanese destroyers.

"Coincident with the arrival of Japanese officials here, there has been a very curious increase in the number of Japanese businessmen, tourists and artisans. These take to travel as a duck takes to water. Can it be that they are engaged in propaganda of the sort that is now being assiduously disseminated on a very wide scale in Burma? The Annamese, one fears, would make very good listeners to agitators promising them escape from the French and from the ever-growing economic crisis. The full realization of the French collapse has not yet penetrated their minds; but when it does, we expect fireworks—probably 'Made in Nippon . . .'

"The Japanese are demanding a flock of naval bases, the right to garrison the railroad to China, the right to transport troops over the railway and highways and facilities for the storage of war supplies. One wonders how Decoux will maneuver out of his tight spot . . ."

Decoux' difficulties, of course, have since been enhanced by the deepening revolt of "Free Frenchmen." His predecessor in Hanoi, Gen. Georges Catroux, has already declared his support of Gen. Charles de Gaulle in London. New Caledonia, deep in the South Pacific, has severed its ties with Vichy.

Because of the inevitable Japanese retaliation if Indo-China declares itself in favor of Britain, the colony has to steer a middle course. This, however, is made doubly difficult by Japanese pressure and the loss of Indo-China's markets. Tokyo might be willing to take up Indo-China's entire crop of rice, but it is going to drive a hard political bargain.

THIS IS the background against which the State Department today considers its own problems.

Let us take a brief look into history. During World War I, Japan secured important footholds in China and the South Seas at the expense both of her foes and of her allies. Alarmed by Japan's growth, Britain and the United States bunched up against her in 1921-22, compelled her to give up the gains in China and restrict her navy in return for the promise of naval security.

The status quo established in Washington was dealt a heavy blow by the invasion of Manchuria in 1931. The invasion of China proper six years later wrote a finis to the old balance of power.

World War II removed France and Britain from the Pacific, left America pitted against Japan, re-established Russia as a first-rate contender for Pacific supremacy. Tokyo was quick to sense the opportunities opened to her by the crisis in Europe.

Forty-eight hours before the Franco-German armistice was signed at Compiegne, the French Ambassador in Tokyo agreed to close Indo-China to the passage of China war supplies, gave an abstract promise not to hinder the Japanese efforts to "establish lasting peace in east Asia," and permitted 40 Japanese inspectors to enter Indo-China.

It was idle, however, to expect that Japan would be satisfied with these gains. The ultranationalist groups in Japan raised a clamor that could not be ignored by any Government leader who treasured his career and life. The powerful pro-Axis elements in Japan pressed for a complete break with the democracies. Finally, the merciless aerial hammering of England seemed to foreshadow a quick German victory.

The original French concessions were accepted and promptly forgotten. New demands were served at Vichy and Hanoi. Instead of the minesweeper which was to bring the 40 inspectors, came a whole fleet, which clamped a blockade on the Indo-China coast. The first Japanese military plane, which brought the head of the mission to Hanoi, became the forerunner of scores of planes landing daily with officers from Tokyo, Hainan and Canton.

The demands most strongly presed were those for the passage of the troops and for naval bases. The former demand naturally entailed the stationing of Japanese garrisons at key points throughout Indo-China. The coastal bases would have brought the Japanese navy and air force within striking distance of Singapore, British Borneo, the Dutch East Indies and the Philippines. Indo-China's land neighbors are British Burma and Thailand, already friendly to Japan.

THE STATE and Navy departments could not but regard Japan's entrenchment in Indo-China as a very definite threat to vital American interests in the Pacific.

Firstly, control of naval, land and air bases in Indo-China would clinch Japan's mastery of the western Pacific, from Saghalien to well within sight of the equator. In this area, America has tremendous interests protected by sheafs of now useless treaties, agreements and understandings.

Any effort to establish a new balance of power in the Pacific must exclude China, now well fenced off on the oceanic side by a string of Japanese bases. Where formerly the democratic ring about Japan was anhored on Hongkong, now it has been pushed southward. If Indo-China is transformed from a democratic foothold into a Japanese base, the Anglo-American line will have to be hitched to Singapore.

The new line, however, would not be very secure. Neither the British nor the American fleet is there to support it. The Japanese influence in Thailand and the growing presure on Burma and the Netherlands Indies also do not call for optimism.

Entrenched in Indo-China, Japan would be able to heighten her intimidation of Thailand and the Dutch East Indies, as well as of Britain, concerned for the safety of Malaya and Burma. Both the East Indies and Malaya are of tremendous importance to the United States, for there she secures the bulk of her tin, rubber and quinine.

Tokyo has already clearly indicated that it intends to cut off these supplies in retaliation for the American embargo on oil and scrap iron. With Indo-China in the bag, Japan should have little trouble in "persuading" Batavia to divert its oil and rubber in the desired direction.

Control of Indo-China would, of course, make the Philippines, now fearful of their hard-won independence, particularly susceptible to Japanese pressure.

Finally, bases in Indo-China would give Japan supremacy in the South Sea and all East Asia should she decide to emulate Italy. Then Australia, New Zealand, Malaya and even India would be at the mercy of Japanese air and naval raiders. That would be as grave a peril to Britain—and in the final reckoning to the United States—as the German conquest of Europe.

Musicians' Dictator

YOU MAY NOT believe the following, but it is all in the book entitled, "Constitution, By-laws and Standing Resolution of the American Federation of Musicians," which was readily given me last week by Jimmy Petrillo, the director of American music, who probably will be willing to mail you a copy, too, although he doubtless would want you to send in about a dime for postage, printing and mailing if this piece should create a heavy demand for the document. This book is my nomination for the title of horrible example of outrageous tyranny of labor with a Capital "L" over the rank and file workers.

The portion which you have to read over and then backward and sidewise before you can believe your eyes is contained in the first article of the by-laws, where it is written that the president, Mr. Petrillo, is empowered to "annul and set aside" the constitution, by-laws, resolutions or rules and "substitute therefor other and different provisions of his own making," with one exception. In drawing the by-laws the boys apparently didn't trust their president to keep hands off the treasury, so this dictatorial power does not apply to those portions of the governing writ which "treat with the finances of the organization."

OTHERWISE, however, the power of the president is absolute, and if you think I am exaggerating you look a little farther down on page 1 and you will find that it says, "The power so to do is hereby made absolute in the president when, in his opinion, such orders are necessary" and shall permit him to make up new laws out of his head when the existing laws are inadequate. That is the very word, "absolute."

I have studied quite a sizable library of union constitutions in the past year, smarting myself up on a system of government which bullies and dazes millions of American working stiffs, but this one is the champion of all that I have read to date and probably is the champion of the world.

I can't see how a constitution could be worse, because it says right there that the president of the union shall be a dictator, and no two ways about it. He can dispense with the national conventions at which the officers are supposed to come up for reelection, extend his own term to the end of his days, heave out anyone who offers him any lip, censor music and blacklist, and thus silence any instrumental artist or orchestra that he doesn't like, or ruin any radio chain or station which commits an offense against his political prejudices by granting time on the air to any candidate or proposition that he disapproves.

JIMMY PETRILLO was elected president only recently, and he now gets $49,000 a year, plus traveling expenses and a car and a chauffeur, with the right to turn in the old car and get a new one at the members' expense whenever he wants a new one. He doesn't ride in jaloppies, either. He kept his old job as president, at $26,000 a year, of the local in Chicago, where he is also a high-roller in the Ed Kelly machine, and the new office of national president pays $20,000, plus a "contingent" expense account of $3,000, "for the spending of which he shall not be required to make an accounting." His traveling expenses are extra. The $3,000 is gravy.

Further along the same article (1) permits Jimmy to remove any officer of any local whom he finds guilty of neglect, interference or violation, but, of course, that is mere wordage, because that power already exists in the authority to repeal and pass legislation at will.

IN CALLING Jimmy a dictator I am not original. He calls himself a dictator, always mindful of the best interests of his subjects—which is just what Adolf Hitler says.

In justice to Jimmy I will say that he tells me this dictatorial power has never been exercised, but in fairness to the facts I will point out that last winter, even before he was president of the national union, he censored the scripts of two plays in Chicago, and that, just as a matter of routine, he enforces or suspends, according to his personal decision, the rules which forbid high school bands and the like to perform in public in actual or theoretical competition with professionals.

This union takes in about $3,000,000 cash a year, and you seldom hear a peep out of the members. Jimmy says the reason why they never squawk is to be found in their hearts. I will say it is. Not many men have the heart to challenge a boss unioneer with Jimmy Petrillo's powers.

An Apparent Decline

What's Wrong With Willkie?

ON A QUICK TRIP to the Pacific Coast and back to Washington, just completed, the question I heard asked most often by politicians and observers of politics was: "What has happened to Willkie?" Judging from the reports of newspaper friends along the way—men who know their own territories well—the feeling that Willkie is slipping is even more pronounced west of the Mississippi than it is along the Eastern seaboard. Willkie supporters are anxious and becoming critical of their candidate. Many of them, I was told, are losing their zest for the campaign.

Willkie's acceptance speech seems to be generally accepted as the beginning of his slide. Despite its merits, it failed, especially as heard over the radio, to measure up to expectations built on the Willkie publicity campaign of May and June.

The chief criticisms of Willkie by his supporters rapidly are becoming stereotyped. It said:

1. (a) He has been talking too much.

(b) He has allowed too much time to elapse, without a major speech, between his acceptance address and the beginning of his campaign tour at Coffeyville.

2. (a) He erred in indorsing so much of the Roosevelt domestic policy. He should have hit this harder, while avoiding controvery over foreign policy.

(b) He lost his best chance to create major campaign issues by indorsing the Roosevelt foreign policy of full aid to Britain by means "short of war" and by approving conscription.

3. (a) He hasn't shown the political "it" he was reputed to have in abundance.

(b) He is too informal, too breezy: he acts too much like Roosevelt.

THE LIST of conflicting criticisms could be extended. And also his blundering attack on the Overton-Russell amendment to the conscription bill, and the feeling of the politicians that his campaign organization is floundering.

Such criticisms can be heard in every campaign, especially on the losing side. They are symptomatic of a growing fear of defeat.

The reasons for Willkie's apparent decline probably are fairly simple. He is not, and could not be, the superman which was depicted in the magazine and newspaper campaign which put across his nomination. He is intelligent, attractive, skilled in extemporaneous debate. He still stands out as probably the strongest candidate the Republicans could have chosen. But he is not living up to the lavish promises of his pre-nomination supporters.

Willkie might have made a major issue of foreign policy, by taking the line of a majority of the Republicans in Congress. It might have led to his defeat. But it was his best chance to create an issue in which the emotions of the average voter are deeply involved. He made an involved and half-hearted effort to do so in his acceptance speech. That he did not go further, and that he specifically approved aid to Britain and conscription, are to his credit.

Roosevelt, meanwhile, has tucked out of view several of the favorite targets in his Administration. Corcoran is out of sight, and for all practical purposes, out of action. Hopkins has retired. Tugwell, who was still in the forefront in 1936, has long been gone. There is no new brains trust. In the foreground are the businessmen of the National Defense Advisory Committee, the secretaries of the Navy and of War (both Republicans), the high officers of the armed services, Jesse H. Jones, Secretary Hull and Henry Wallace.

ALTHOUGH HE HAS SPOKEN out of character several times, Roosevelt is enacting fairly well the role of a President who is concentrating on the paramount duties of arming the Nation and conducting its foreign policy in such a way as to keep its potential enemies at a distance. Willkie has not proposed or implied any way in which he could improve upon Roosevelt's handling of the defense of the Nation. His attack on Roosevelt for talking rudely to the dictators was refuted by his own attack on Hitler. Willkie himself is totally inexperienced in international affairs. Unless he can establish substantial error in Roosevelt's conduct of these supremely important relations and Roosevelt's current management of the national defense, he has small ground, either in reason, or emotion, for an appeal to the electorate.

Willkie asserts, and will continue to assert, that he can release business enterprise and bring recovery. But the Nation right now is experiencing business recovery. An economic upswing, no matter what the cause, is difficult for the party out of power to buck.

The election is not over. There may be two or three pendulum swings in public opinion before November. But the advantage seems to have passed definitely to Roosevelt.

The Once Over

Draft-Industry Idea

"What is this business about including American airplane and munitions shops in the draft?" asked Elmer Twitchell of his brother, Luke.

"All I know is if I had a factory I would right now put in a claim for exemption on account it had flat feet," replied his illiterate brother, Luke.

"Can a factory get exempted?" asked Elmer.

"Nothin' else will save it if the draft bill goes through," said Luke. "Once you give those New Dealers the right to take over a business on account of they ain't satisfied how it's being run, the bars are down. I never seen no business yet that was being run satisfactory to Washington."

"Who is to be judge whether a factory is doing its best or not?" asked Elmer.

"There won't be any shortage of judges," said Luke. "The trick will be to find anybody in the Government what thinks any business is being run on the level.

* * * *

"How does the act work?" asked Elmer. "Does every munitions shop get a draft number?"

"I wouldn't be surprised. General Motors Corporation may be known as No. 4672-A," said Luke. "The United Aircraft Co. may be just No. 872965-B, and so on ad lib. Maybe all the railroads will be lumped under one number, and not even get no low number, at that."

"A corporation at work on war supplies would have no more liberty than a buck private," said Elmer.

"That's it," said Luke. "A factory making tanks would have to get up at 5 a. m. bugle call, just like a member of Company H. The whole idea is to let industry know that it ain't got no more rights than Pvt. Joe Spinello. And what is more, it ain't to get no more money than Joe."

"From the tax bill, business will be in luck if it don't get less dough than Joe." insisted Elmer. "Is Congress out to make sure that factories operate at a loss in war as well as peace?"

"You got the idea okay," said Luke. "Which is one reason I ain't enlisted. I ain't no champion of war millionaires or war profits, but when I am up there on the firing line I would feel better knowing the guy who is making my bullets is doing okay."

* * * *

"It's silly," declared Elmer. "There is no more chance of war millionaires in the next war than there is of Hitler developing into a radio comic. It's all done for public effect. The public loves baloney and there is no baloney like the idea that industry is an unpatriotic, selfish, get-rich-quick organization that's got to be watched every second. What happens when some Washington bureau decides some airplane shop ain't satisfactory?"

"It gets it on the phone and tells it to turn the keys over to a couple of politicians," said Luke. "Maybe a coupla smart boys from the Kelly-Nash machine or the Frank Hague organization."

What becomes of the regular heads fo such an industry?"

Britain's Ordeal

By Barnet Nover

The Supreme Test

IT IS A REVEALING circumstance that Field Marshal Herman Goering is personally directing the current assault on London. For Goering is the man chiefly responsible for Nazi Germany's air force without which the spectacular military successes of the past year might never have been achieved.

Goering is gambling on the belief that he can knock out the British by large-scale and unrelenting attacks on London from the air. If London is destroyed or made uninhabitable there would be nothing to prevent the German air force from systematically bombing other great British centers until that country could no longer stand the punishment.

Should Germany's present tactics fail to defeat Great Britain, however, Goering's favorite thesis that air power is more valuable to a nation than sea power would have received a fatal blow. What is more, the consequences of such a failure might easily prove disastrous to Germany. For then the cumulative effect of the blockade would begin to tell on the Third Reich.

DESPITE Italy's entrance into the war, the defection of France and the depredations caused by enemy mines and submarines, Great Britain is still supreme in in the waters surrounding Europe and continues to command all the sea approaches to that continent.

Without air power Germany would have no greater chance of invading Great Britain or starving her out than did Napoleon. It is air power which provides the fundamental difference in the situation today compared to what it was when Napoleon stood on the shore at Boulogne and gazed longingly at the chalk cliffs on the other side of the Channel he could not cross.

Air power has made Great Britain a beleaguered fortress; it is the means which Germany is employing to circumvent the defensive barrier of the British fleet. And it has succeeded in doing so to the extent that London during the last few days has been subjected to more fearful punishment than has ever been visited on any great metropolis in modern times.

But whether the destruction which the German air force achieves in Great Britain can be great enough to destroy the will and the capacity of the British to fight on is by no means a certainty, despite the events of the last four days.

FOR A MONTH prior to Saturday's terrifying and destructive assault on London the German air force was engaged in carrying out what Berlin communiques called "armed reconnaissance in force." Some of these earlier raids, particularly those which occurred in the people between August 11-17, involved the use of very large numbers of German planes. But the raids prior to Saturday's attack on the metropolis definitely failed to cripple the British.

The aerial bombardment of London is clearly a continuation of those earlier efforts but carried out in a different manner with a more precise purpose and against a single major target.

In the first place the most serious of the raids on London have been undertaken at night. This means that it has been more difficult for the Nazi planes to aim at and hit specific targets. At the same time night attacks, as the Germans have also discovered, are more difficult to beat off particularly before the invading planes have had a chance to unload their bombs. That has meant a vast amount of indiscriminate destruction. It has also meant, since London is studded with docks, factories, power plants, water works, gas works and so on, that if the attack is carried out in sufficient magnitude—as it was on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday—that, by the very law of averages, many points of military importance must also have been hit.

THERE IS AS YET no indication that the campaign of Schrecklichkeit which Goering has been waging against London has thus far succeeded in breaking English morale. All neutral observers report that it has had the contrary effect. Nor, despite the very serious damage which the German bombs have done to the port of London and to factories, warehouses, water works and power plants in that city, does it appear that Britain's capacity to fight back has been seriously impaired.

This may happen and British morale may crack if the present raids are carried on uninterruptedly for a long time. But for how long Germany is in a position to continue an assault in force several times a day without seriously depleting her Luftwaffe and her trained personnel is also a question.

In Saturday's raid on London the Germans, it has been estimated, used no fewer than 400 planes. But the British claim to have brought down more than 100 enemy aircraft that day. Since the German air force is not unlimited either with respect to machines or with respect to personnel, the continuance of such losses could not long be sustained. Yet since it would be a serious confession of failure to ease up the attacks, and a real danger to the Reich to have the war prolonged into the winter, it is very possible that regardless of losses sustained by the German air force, Goering may in the next days redouble rather than reduce his fiendish assault on the British metropolis. It is his—and Hitler's—supreme bid.

Water Under the Bridge . . .

After 16 long, dry years, water is now flowing in the old C. & O. Canal above Chain Bridge and, except for one lock, all the way to Great Falls.

Park engineers have been filling the long-unused portion of the canal for the past two weeks, raising the water level slowly, so that unsuspected leaks would not wash away the banks. Leaks, probably made by muskrats, were found aplenty, but were quickly filled

Several, where water was found seeping out but no hole apparent, held up by the flooding process for several days. But all such weak points have now been located, except for one persistent leak in Lock 14, the engineers said yesterday.

Canoeists will be allowed to use the canal "probably within a few days," according to park authorities. Small craft will be permitted to travel the canal from Georgetown to Great Falls, although many of the locks will have to be portaged.

Best Backyard Playgrounds

FIRST PRIZE—Bobby Cullns, 3, swings while Joan Corker, 4, of 4335 Barker street southeast, swings his twin sister, Audrey. The backyard playground was set up with homemade equipment by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cullins, of 4334 Barker street

SECOND PRIZE—In a world of their own are Mary Ellen Pyle, 3, and Jacqueline Pyle, 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. Willmore Pyle, 1037 Irving street northeast.

THIRD PRIZE—Play days are safe days for Leonora Hagan, 9, and Frank Hagap, 7, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hagan, built this third-best playground in their backyard, 722 Jefferson street northwest

NINE Washington youngsters frolicked yesterday on see-saws, slides and badminton courts, installed in their backyards, as a result of the ingenuity of their parents and their distaste for Washington traffic-ridden streets.

The parents enjoyed vicarious thrills. They had fashioned from discarded odds and ends, or a minimum of ready-made equipment, the backyard playgrounds that won for their children the additional play luxuries. For the additional equipment was given as awards for the best backyard playgrounds, in a contest sponsored jointly by the Recreation Department, the Traffic Advisory Council, and the Works Porjects Administration.

The new see-saw went to Mary Ellen, 3, and Jacqueline, 4, daughters of the Willmore Pyles, of 1037 Irving street northwest.

Other prize-winners were Frank Hogan, jr., 7, and Lenora Hogan, 9, of 722 Jefferson street northwest; Octave Stevenson, 10, and Eugene Stevenson, 7, of 3212 Cleveland avenue northwest, and 6-year-old Francis Shannon, of 5301 Second street northwest.

Knudsen and Gen. Arnold View 'Sure Poison' Plane

THE YP-43 INTERCEPTOR PLANE

Farmingdale, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP).—A new air fighter for the United States Army, built to fly above high-altitude bombers, is ready for manufacture.

The first completed plane, with the present designation of YP-43, was exhibited yesterday at the factory of the Republic Aviation Corporation. William S. Knudsen, national defense coordinator, and Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, inspected the air fighter, described as "sure poison to bombers." It is to fly at altitudes over 35,000 feet to combat bombers which remain at 25,000 to 30,000 feet.

'Quiz' Section of Red Cross Answers 1,000 Hopefuls Weekly

ACROSS the desks of 29 employes of the Inquiry and Information Service at Red Cross national headquarters are moving each week the hopes of nearly 1,000 Americans seeking word from relatives and friends in Europe's conquered countries. Since September 1, 1939, the office has handled 51,807 inquiries, Philip E. Ryan, director of the service, said yesterday.

Hope rides in a mail bag to Red Cross headquarters from local chapters throughout the country. After being checked, the requests are forwarded to International Red Cross headquarters in Geneva, where they are parceled out for detective work by the Red Cross in nearly every European country.

The replies come back in more than 90 per cent of the cases handled. Some are pathetic, many restrained in fear of censorship:

"Dear family, we are in straitened circumstances. Pray for us as we have nothing to live for."

"Dear ones, we are living. Try and help us. Please get papers of entry for us."

ROBERT SCOVELL
Liaison Officer

MORE than 500 Washingtonians have applied to the Red Cross for aid. Countess or carpenter, each is given the same care.

Acting as liaison officer with the State Department is Robert Scovell, who performed similar work in Russia in the World War, and who was forced to give up his American school in Brussels with the outbreak of this war. He told of a recent request:

"Will you marry me? If so, I'll arrange documents immediately."

He laughed. "We sent that by clipper right away. Far be it from the Red Cross to delay love."

A total of 25,170 inquiries for persons in Poland have been handled. To France have gone 5,182 inquiries. Only 356 have been sent to Germany, while England has received 413.

Bronze Goes To the Feet This Fall

Beetle Shade for Shoes Is Done for First Time With Lizard Skin

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE BRONZE you tried for so earnestly this summer will go to your feet this fall—for bronze is the surprise color hit of the new season, especially in footwear.

High-keyed intense and glamorous, bronze is not a new color to women who demand distinction in shoe tints. It dates back to the World War, and more recently, back to 1934, but only as a color used on kids and satins. Completely new and exciting is this fall's "Beetle Bronze," done for the first time on a reptile—lagarto lizard.

Mr. Hawley

Eager to know how the beetle and the lowly little lizard got together, we dropped in to see William Hawley, New York representative of a well known shoe designer. Mr. Hawley was at a Washington store yesterday and is there again today advising and fitting all types of normal and subnormal feet. (A difficult 3½ quint is as much putty in his hands as a forbidding 10 D). Being familiar with the history of the beetle bronze, Mr. Hawley told of the discovery of this new shoe style and color.

Frog Replaced Python

Two years ago designer Andrew Geller sent an expedition into South America to procure hide or leather substitutes for the dull everyday assortments of calf and suede. His sleuths brought back the exotic skins of frogs from Brazil, Goliaths of the amphibian empire, whose skins were strangely lightweight and spattered with fascinating bubbles, resembling moonstones. These fawn-colored frogs (called Rana Cueras) replaced the python, introduced earlier by Mr. Geller from India as well as the "Rhamgodies," the lizards brought over later from Java. But even the frog was supplanted this year in popularity by the lagarto, the tiny alligator lizard imported from Brazilian jungles.

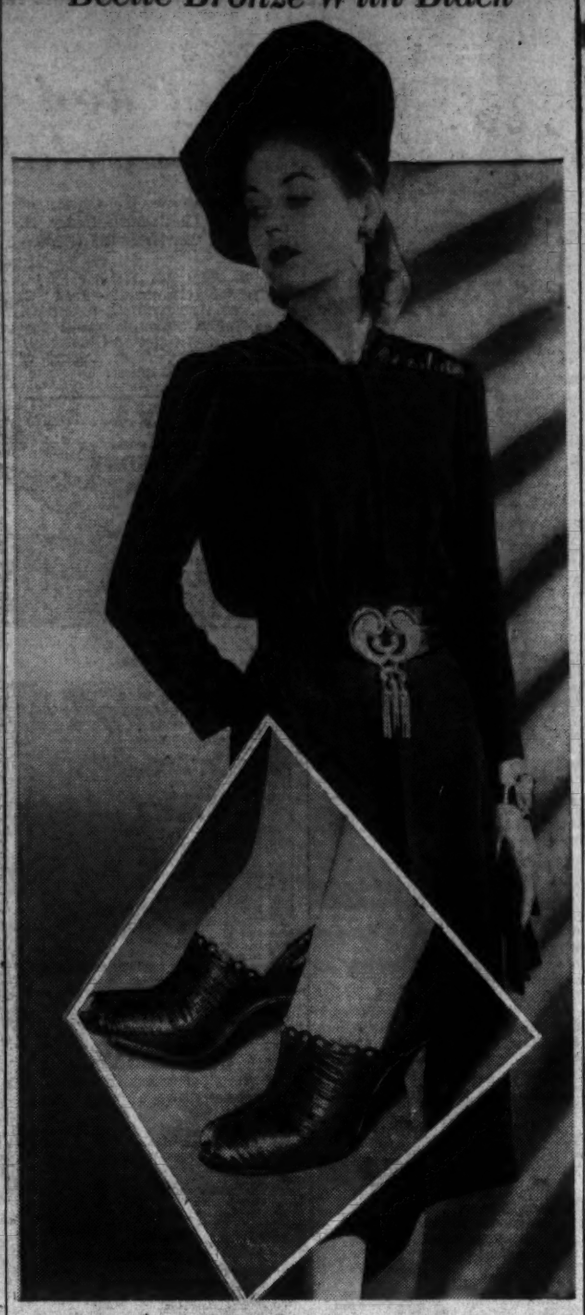
Lagarto proved popular last spring when it became the newest member of the big, happy Geller menagerie of reptiles, but the beetle was yet to be put under the microscope. The numerous facets of the lagarto skins, when dyed to duplicate the beetle's many tints, picked up the little bugs sparkling copper, purple and gold to arrive at a true shade of bronze.

Mr. Hawley claims that this metallic bronze is very flattering to the foot. Due to the very small grains of the lagarto, it does not enlarge the appearance of the foot. It's a marvelous color with autumn brown, green and black, especially when combined with bag or belt of matching skin.

Facts About Vinylite

One footwear fact was cleared up by Mr. Hawley's Washington visit through his first-hand knowledge of Vinylite, the fabulous plastic material which is the "living image" of glass, but isn't. The much-discussed Vinylite (pronounced vin-e-light) is called an "invisible," but you can really see through and around the transparent material. It makes handsome glove-fitting or high riding pumps and is perfectly fitting on the foot because, made from carbide elastic chemicals, it is stretchable. As panel and vamp trims or underlay decoration on slippers, Vinylite is particularly attractive for it picks up the sparkling leather tints of this fall's blues, browns, wines and greens.

Beetle Bronze With Black



Both the silhouette of the coatlike dress (above) and the color of the lagarto lizard shoes (inset) are new and vital looking for fall. The glove-fitting shoes are in the chic new "Beetle Bronze," a lively accessory color with the all-black Eastman rayon crepe, which also carries a hint of golden bronze in the massive Aztec buckle

Cranberry Cobbler Good Fall Dessert

If you are looking for a gay, sprightly dessert to cook along with a baked meal there is cranberry cobbler. It is economical and distinct in flavor. Mix together 3 cups berries, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, speck salt, ¼ cup orange juice, ½ cup water, 2-3 cup granulated sugar and 2 tablespoons butter. Pour into buttered shallow baking dish. Cover with the top.

To make the top sift 1½ teaspoons baking powder into 2 cups flour; add 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon grated orange juice, 5 tablespoons fat and an egg. Mixing with a knife, slowly pour in enough milk to make a soft dough (½ cup is usual amount). Pat out the dough to ½-inch thickness. Cut into squares, circles or triangles, quickly spread the tops with 1 egg yolk blended with 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon of milk. Place the dough pieces next each other atop the berries. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm or cold.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

MONOTONY is apt to begin at 40, believes Elizabeth M. Haney, general secretary of Washington's Y. W. C. A. "The woman approaching 40 should think about finding a new job," she says. "After that age she is in danger of becoming a mere cog in the wheel. It's stimulating to get into a new field and see what you can do with it." The exception, of course, is the professional worker trained intensively for one job. But the woman of ability with a general education can and should find new work as she nears middle age, she feels.

Elizabeth Haney

The idea is no mere theory with Miss Haney. For 14 years she was passenger representative of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, first in Chicago and then here. Two years ago she resigned, not because she was tired of railroading, but because her interest in girls made the Y. W. C. A.'s offer highly attractive. Proof of her continuing interest in railway travel is the fact that during July she commuted six days a week to New York, where she took a graduate course. She found air-conditioned trans an excellent refuge from Washington's summer.

THE CINEMA—Bette Davis was suffering and housewifely handkerchiefs were reaching the saturation point during a recent midweek matinee of "All This and Heaven Too" at the Calvert Theater. Finally a small boy in one of the front rows decided he had enough. He rose and left the theater gradually, turning somesaults all the way up the aisle.

When the Red Cross Roll Call opens its offices in the Walsh mansion on Massachusetts avenue this week its switchboard will be manned by Mrs. John A. Whittle, jr., 7119 Stratford road, Bethesda, who has served the Roll Call in this way for four years. A graduate of the Chesapeake and Potomac's PBI course, course, she is considered by the Red Cross staff to be one of the most efficient operators in the city.

A guest at the party given by Maj. and Mrs. W. S. Van Dyke on the Shoreham Terrace last week worried her waiter by turning down a drink with the explanation that she was on the wagon. "No sherry or port, even?" he asked anxiously. "How about some orange juice?" The only drawback was that when she had emptied her glass he whisked it away and refilled it, a process which kept up all evening. By the time she left she had consumed seven glasses of juice and felt healthy enough to abandon the wagon for good.

ADD SUPERSTITIONS—The belief that it's bad luck to take an old broom into a new home is good luck for shopkeepers in Washington, where almost every one moves once a year as a matter of course. The only drawback is that grocers find it difficult to sell high-quality 60-cent brooms; practical housewives figure a 25-cent broom will last a year, until the next move requires a new one.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Interested in Girl 'With a Past,' Man Asks How To Develop Faith In and Respect for Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been going with a girl for five months, and although I like her quite a bit, I have never told her that I love her. In fact, I have told her that I am not in love. She, on the other hand, professes great love for me, and has practically proposed marriage on numerous occasions.

I have heard that she used to be quite free in her behavior with men, before she met me. At first, she insisted this wasn't true, and she told me several "white lies" to refute several rumors. But later, without any pressure from me, she confessed her past because, as she explained, there never could be any real understanding between us as long as she had that on her conscience.

If I continue seeing this girl, I may fall in love with her; or, at least, give into her admitted "great love" for me and marry her. But my trouble, at present, is that I can't forget her "past;" and that I find it hard to believe her promises that she always would be true to me.

While she tells me that she really has reformed, and is suffering tremendously for her mistakes (now that she realizes them), I don't seem able to build sufficient faith in her to be convinced of her sincerity. Therefore, I would appreciate your answers to the following questions: Shall I continue seeing her? Can a man be happy, if married to a girl with a "past?" How can I develop faith in and respect for her? (She wants to go on seeing me, despite my efforts to convince her that I have no serious intentions at present.)

V. W.

The Havoc Wrought By Prurient Minds

DEAR V. W.: I cannot imagine a better demonstration of brave honesty and conscience stricken sincerity on anyone's part than that he should voluntarily confess his youthful lapses from strictly chaste behavior to someone he loves, in an effort to develop "real understanding" with that person.

It is my belief that this girl's contrite bid for your understanding and forgiveness proves that you have exerted a genuinely helpful influence in her life. It suggests that she is beginning to realize that lies and evasions are unworthy of her feeling for you. Apparently she has groped her way to the conclusion that if she is to be deserving of your love, she must become an altogether honest, aboveboard and honorable person. And she makes her start toward the higher way of telling you the painful truth she had previously denied. Surely she deserves a more encouraging reaction from you than cynicism and distrust.

I have an idea that this doubtful reaction of yours is more a defense mechanism than anything else. You are already more than half in love with her; and you cling to your doubts of her worthiness as the last feeble barrier which is stemming the tide of what could be, and latently is, your co-equal, sincere response to her "great love" of you.

Since I believe that eventually you will find yourself "in love" with her, whether you choose or not, I think it is important that you should develop a healthy acceptance of her so-called "past." it would be tragedy for both if you attached morbid significance to it—even while loving her. You must remember (as I have said here so often) that it isn't the things one does, so much as what those experiences do to one's mind and spirit, which make or mar one's adult character. An individual is, at any age, the sum total of the profit and loss he has taken from his myriad experiences.

If one's experiences on the seamy side of life add up, in the long run, to an abiding respect for the value of honesty, decency, honor and general uprightness in human behavior, then certainly those experiences have been of constructive import. As someone has said, true virtue has knowledge of both good and evil, and out of that knowledge, has deliberately chosen to serve better part.

To take another view of this girl's experiences, it may truly be said that such blundering as hers is an immemorial, commonplace portion of mankind's growing pains—and is especially characteristic of those individuals who must grope blindly, without proper guidance, toward a full, understanding adjustment of their dual biological and spiritual nature to society's complicated rules and restrictions.

Whatever vicissitudes they experience along the way should rightfully be regarded as their inviolably personal concern, since for every mistake they make, they are disciplined accordingly; even as this girl is being disciplined by her present remorse. Furthermore, it is only the prurient-minded who rush to and fro, frothing at the mouth with unholy excitement at evidence or rumor of some fellowman's mistakes in the arena of love. It is this wolfish conduct of the pack which does more to "down" and destroy the average erring individual than any youthful mistakes he may have made.

As to whether a man could be happy if married to a woman with a "past"—that depends upon the man, of course. If he were purient-minded and vindictive in his attitude toward human frailty, he would make their life a hell on earth. If he were clean-minded, magnanimous, charitable and spiritually health-giving in his social outlook, they might be wonderfully happy; and he might be the medium of her soul's salvation.

I can give you no formula, however, for "developing faith in and respect for" this girl. If you cannot give her such gifts spontaneously, out of your belief that she merits them, then by all means stop seeing her. You would be showing yourself as weak and vacillating as you suspect her to be, if you dallied indefinitely, playing with her love, while disdaining her as a wanton. M. H.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT.

In the Party Mood

TODAY'S college girl is faced with the problem of maintaining her feminity in the face of casual fashions. Campuses are covered with sweet young things in mannish tweeds, low-heeled brogues, casual snap-brim hats. But the alert student is preserving good grooming and beauty habits in a hectic academic and social life.

To meet the requirement of this age group, many of the well-known cosmetic manufacturers have created products. These new make-up products and perfumes are keyed to the schoolgirl's budget, the texture of her skin and her personality. Among the new items designed especially for the college miss is a travel kit of burgundy-colored leather complete with face powder, rouge, lipstick and creams. The cream and lotion containers have pastel-tintel caps and labels. An ingenious feature is the mirror which swings automatically into position when the case is opened.

Also new are the "Pink Party" products of one famous perfumer. These include "Pink Party" perfume—a blend of many flower notes. The perfume fragrance is repeated in the face powder, lipstick, bath and talcum powder, also sachets and soaps. You can buy the items separately or in an ensemble package. The lipsticks come in three shades, "Spitfire"—flame with a slight touch of orange; "Redcap Red"—a bright, clear red; "Party Pink"—a soft, subtle, pastel pink.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

A Woman's Pledge To Democracy

I will not speak disparagingly of any other race, creed or religion than my own, nor tolerate such remarks from others.

I will not indulge in any petty personal attacks in the name of politics, nor give credence to any old wives' political tales.

I will ruthlessly root out of my system any State or regional prejudice and any infantile sense of superiority to "Yankees," Southerners, Midwesterners or other Americans.

I will no longer conduct my social life within the narrowing confines of "my set" or "my crowd," but will try to expand my social contacts and interests so that I will know and understand better all the people of my country.

I will not make myself ridiculous at a time of Olympian drama by engaging in piddling disputes and feuds with other women in office, club, church, or neighborhood.

I will let no little prejudices or misunderstandings come between me and other women—with all of whom I must stand solidly to preserve the democratic ideals that have liberated and uplifted our sex.

I will weed all religious bigotry out of my system and no longer think in terms of Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, "saved" and "unsaved," immersed and sprinkled, but only in terms of human beings all endowed with the divine aspiration to live and grow.

I will stop softening the fiber of American men through selfish insistance upon luxurious living and keeping up with the Joneses.

I will cease coddling children and bringing up weaklings who are too selfish and too flabby to defend their birthright of social and political freedom my ancestors fought to give them.

At a time when the dignity and value of the human being is at stake throughout the world, I will not dwarf my pigmy stature by social snobbishness or class consciousness in my relations to other women.

I will recognize that the kept woman—married or otherwise—has no place any more in the scheme of things, that the day of the household parasite is past, and that it is my obligation in my leisure moments to contribute something to the welfare of others either abroad or in my own country.

I will brush the cobwebs out of my fat, lazy, mind and inform myself as best I can on the political and economic issues of the day so I may do my part better in preserving human freedom.

In my club I will use my influence to have eliminated all the time-wasting folderol—the interminable programs, the futile teas and luncheons, the harangues over committee reports, minutes and parliamentary law that keep such organizations from making more valuable contributions to society.

I will simplify my social life so that my mind and spirit may not be enmeshed in a maze of favors, place cards, color schemes, nut cups and bridge prizes.

I will conquer my martyr complex and—at least as long as women and children abroad are being crushed under death bombs—I will refrain from audible whining about the new winter coat I didn't get, or how I am kept tied down with the children, or how much harder a time I have than other women.

If I must hang around bridge and cocktail gatherings most of my time, I will have the good taste to play down the "me, me, my" note.

Recognizing that the time has come to lay aside childish ways and grow up, I will arise from the soft bed into which my sex has fallen after several generations of easy living and will toughen my muscle and mind to meet personal sacrifice and endure labor.

I will not let go unchallenged the cynical acceptance of those who say there is nothing to be done, and that people are not fit to govern themselves anyway, and that force is the only power in the world, etc.

I will carry on the torch of fortitude, courage and faith handed me by my feminine forebears who stood strong at Plymouth, Jamestown, Cumberland Gap, and in the wilderness and on the prairie to make possible the security, ease and freedom I enjoy today.

Good Dry-Cleaning Saves Your Clothes

Before you pack your summer clothes away, remember to send every single garment that is not guaranteed washable off to a reputable drycleaner. If you do this you are going to be a much happier woman next spring.

Don't forget that stains set with age. The sun lotion, the dark face powder, the ice cream, the ginger-ale spots seem to dig in and spread. They are twice as hard to remove after they have aged.

The tar, grass and axel grease stains that appear by magic on your slacks, bathing suits, sports coats, tennis and golf dresses should be thoroughly and painstakingly removed by the best drycleaner you can find.

Woolens Fill Up Whole Wardrobe

This is the year when you will suddenly find yourself with a complete woolen wardrobe, from lingerie straight through to dinner and evening clothes. The quality and beauty of the new woolen fabrics is such that they fit perfectly into every type of costume.

The sheer woolens, which have been so successful throughout the spring and summer, are used extensively for the first fall dresses, in both casual and afternoon types—grand for early street wear and later under a topcoat.

The colors include soft blues, greens and "fur browns." These sheer woolens are definitely established in evening costumes, and Rene Montague, outstanding American designer, reports a very fine acceptance of the woolen evening ensemble in her collection.

Mrs. Harriman Tells Experiences In Norway to Women's Press Club

Envoy to Norway Gives 'Off the Record' Address at Big Luncheon Meeting; Guests Welcomed by Mrs. Essary, New Club Head

By Hope Ridings Miller.

IN TOP FORM, but very much off-the-record, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, talked before a mammoth luncheon meeting of the Women's National Press Club yesterday at the Willard Hotel. The grand ballroom of the Willard Hotel, heretofore taken over by the club only for its annual big-league stunt party, was the scene of the fete to which flocked not only ladies of the press but a sizable number of celebrities.

Officiating for the first time was the club's new president, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, who welcomed the guests and introduced Minister Harriman. The latter took over the microphone to make one of the most entertaining talks ever given before the press club. Tall, regal, and looking like a fashion plate in a black and white polka-dot frock, set off with a wide-brimmed white hat, the guest of honor recounted some of her experiences in Norway and told something of her perilous trip home on the American Legion.

Wonders What to Name Her Book

In the period of questioning that followed her talk, she revealed some startling facts—but they, too, so she insisted later, were not for publication. Perhaps you can learn some of them when—and if—the book on her Norwegian experiences is published. The tome, I understand, is practically finished, but it must be approved by the State Department. There's a chance, too, that Mrs. Harriman's daugher, Mrs. Harriman Russell, who formerly wrote for the films, may go over the book and help her mother complete it. Anyway, a widely-known publishing house hopes to have it on sale before Christmas.

Just what the book is to be named, Mrs. Harriman has not yet decided. Somebody has suggested she call it, "Interesting—If True." The story behind that stems from an experience she had the day she was appointed Minister to Norway. A reporter, hearing the news before she had been notified, approached her to check the rumor.

"What about the story that you are to be our next envoy to Norway?" he asked.

"Well," she said with a smile, "I think is interesting—if true."

Mrs. Atwill to Fete Daisy at Dinner

Yesterday's luncheon, incidentally, was only one of a number of parties at which Mrs. Harriman has been feted since she arrived in Washington a few days ago. This evening, she will be guest of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Lionel Atwill at the Mayflower Hotel.

The daughter of the noted society leader, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, and wife of the well-known actor, Mrs. Atwill has been staying at the Wardman Park Hotel for several days. Her home, Rainbow Hill, in Baltimore's swanky Green Spring Valley section, was sold not long ago, and there's a chance she may take a house in Georgetown later. Mrs. Stotesbury, as you know, has the Ray Baker house there and plans to be back in town to spend part of the winter. Just now, she's up in Spring Lake, N. J., keeping first-hand tab on the Senatorial campaign of her son, James R. Cromwell.

Mrs. Atwill will leave the latter part of this week by motor for California, where her husband is finishing work on a film. Her plans from then on are a bit indefinite. She and her husband may stay on at their Santa Monica home through the autumn, or they may come back East in a few days. It all depends on whether he decides to take a role in a Broadway play the coming season.

Tonight's dinner for Mrs. Harriman will draw an interesting group of guests. Louise Brooks Atwill always gathers a stimulating crowd around her, and so does Daisy Harriman. You can count on it that the party will make social history from beginning to end.

May Take House Here Later

Mrs. Harriman will leave Washington on Friday for Boston, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. George Marrs. Later, she will stop off in New York for a stay, and then she hopes to be back in Washington to spend some time. As yet, her plans for the winter are not set; but if she does elect to stay in the Capital, I would be willing to wager that she takes a house for the season and revives her famous salons. Her home on Foxall road is leased, of course; but who knows—perhaps the Albert Deweys could be persuaded to take some other house for the season.

Back to yesterday's luncheon—which was where I started anyway. Among guests at the head table were Mrs. Cordell Hull, looking very smart in a black outfit, accented with touches of white; Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Miss Katherine Lenroot and Mrs. Hugh Reilly with her guest, Mrs. Donald Deane, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs Franklin K. Kenworthy to Fete Judges of Purcellville Flower Show

Judges of tomorrow's flower show of the Purcellville Garden Club will be entertained at luncheon tomorrow by Mrs. Franklin K. Kenworthy. The party will take place at Exedra, her Purcellville home.

Guests will include Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Lewis, sr., of Georgetown; Mrs. Malcolm Matheson, of Alexandria; Mrs. Lomax Tayloe, of Fairfax; Mrs. Nan Lippitt Hatchell, of Charles Town; Dr. Paul W. Evans, of Ivondale; and Leo Hessler and Dr. David Lumsden, of Washington.

Miss Irene Wright is chairman of the show, which is for the benefit of the Red Cross. It will be held in the Purcellville Library from 2 until 5:30, and there will be 8 specimen classes and 14 arrangement classes. Light refreshments will be served.

One of the attractions of the afternoon will be a noncompetitive exhibit of clematis by Frank C. Littleton, of Oak Hill, Aldie.

Hunt country society attended a buffet supper given earlier this week by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shirley Turner at their home, Goodstone, near Middleburg. Cocktails were served in the bar, and after a delicious meal which included roast capon and old Virginia ham, there was music in the drawing room.

Mrs. Paul Llewellyn played the piano and Dulany Randolph, as usual, had a crowd around him and his guitar.

The Turners' houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Schall, of Hyattsville, were present, and others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Dudley, jr., Mr. and Mrs. John C. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. John Rawlings, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wiltshire, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Llewellyn, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Duffey and Mrs. Jane Foster Palmer.

Also Miss Willett Leache, Miss Priscilla Macy, Miss Mary Dutton, Miss Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Margherita Sterling, Miss Mary Welby de Butts, Hanson Ely, Jack Butler, Talbot Adamson, Bill Adamson, Bobby Duggan, Richard Turner, Robert Fauntleroy Turner, Richard Tayloe, Robert Sharp, John Dudley, Dulany Randolph, Henry Skinker, Charles Baird and Carter Foster.

MISS MARY WEBB TYLER, of Upperville, has returned from Green Wood, Va., where she visited Mrs. Dorsey Cullen. Miss Tyler entertained at luncheon recently for Mrs. Edwin H. Brown, Mrs. Frank Rogers, Miss Ida Young, all of Washington, and several other friends.

Mrs. Brown lingered on in Upperville for a visit to Mrs. C. F. Rinker and attended the luncheon the latter gave for her sister, Mrs. Rush Rowland, of Philadelphia. Other guests included Mrs. Arthur Marshall, Mrs. Peter B. Wood, and Mrs. Raymond D. Knight, of Jacksonville, Fla., who has been spending the summer in Virginia.

Mrs. Rinker has also been joined by Miss Elizabeth Searcy, Washington artist. With Mrs. Brown, she has been spending the bright autumn days sketching the many lovely spots in Virginia. Miss Searcy formerly lived in Memphis, Tenn., and New York, but now has a studio at the Dupont Circle Apartments.

Md. Rum Tax Receipts Rise $935,035

11-Month Collections Total $3,932,180, Tawes Reports

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 10.—The State comptroller's office has collected 935,085 more on alcoholic beverages from October 1 to August 31 than it did in a similar period in 1938-39.

Tax collections in the past 11 months totaled $3,932,180, a statement released by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes showed today.

The statement disclosed that $726,539 more had been collected in distilled spirits; $134,471 more in beer taxes and $65,975 more in wine taxes.

One reason for the increase in the distilled spirits and beer revenues is that both taxes have been increased. In 1938-39 the distilled spirits levy was $1.10 per gallon and the beer tax 2 7-16 cents per gallon. The distilled spirits tax is now $1.25 per gallon and the beer levy, 3 cents per gallon.

The wine tax, on the other hand, has remained the same—20 cents per gallon—but has produced $65,975 more in revenue than in the 1938-39 period.

Fairview Man Dies As Fire Razes Home

Special Dispatch to The Post

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 10.—John W. McFarren, 72, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his three-room log and frame dwelling at Fairview, northeast of here. Coroner S. D. Shull, of Franklin County, has issued a certificate indicating accidental death.

Dr. J.A. Moyers' Funeral Held In Franklin

Dr. W. T. Highberger, Another W. Va. Veteran Physician, Also Dead

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 10.—Dr. J. Allen Moyers, 68, widely known Pendleton County (West Virginia) physician, a "country doctor" of the old school who rode thousands of miles horseback to administer to the sick, was buried at Franklin yesterday.

Dr. Moyers, who practiced medicine in Pendleton for 40 years, died at the Harrisonburg (Va.) Hospital, where he was a patient three weeks following an operation. He had made his home in Franklin for 20 years.

His widow and three children survive.

Dr. W. T. Highberger

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 10.—Dr. William Thomas Highberger, died at Maysville, Grant County, W. Va., at the age of 80. Ill health had forced him to retire three years ago after completing more than a half century of service.

Dr. Highberger was born at Sharpsburg, Md., a son of the late Samuel and Helen Boyd Highberger. He received his pre-medical education at Shepherd College, graduating in 1879. Four years later he completed his medical course at the University of Maryland and opened his office at Maysville, in October, 1883. He was the old "country doctor" type, riding during his active life many miles on horseback to make his calls.

Albert S. Suddith

Winchester, Va., Sept. 10.—Funeral services for Albert S. Suddith, 67, formerly of Washington, D. C., were conducted here today. Mr. Suddith died after a brief illness at the residence here of his daughter, Mrs. Luther E. White. Following the service here, there was a service at the Maryland Avenue Baptist Church, Washington, followed by interment in Cedar Hill Cemetery, in Maryland.

Arthur S. Melton

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 10.—Arthur S. Melton, 42, employed for the last 18 years at Arthur B. Hancock's stock farm at Ellerslie, this county, died yesterday at his home. Funeral rites were held this afternoon. He married Miss Eva Davis, of the county, who survives, with five children.

Mrs. Marian K. McKee

Staunton, Va., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Marian Kerran McKee, 94, died Sunday night at the Fred Obaugh home near Mount Solon, after a long illness. The funeral wes held today at the Mount Solon Methodist Church, of which she had been a member many years.

Archie M. Hoge

Staunton, Va., Sept. 10.—The funeral of Archie M. Hoge, 51, World War veteran and son of Staunton's late treasurer, Arista Hoge, was held today. For many years he was a deputy city treasurer under his father; more recently in the insurance business with his brother, Henri B. Hoge. He was one of this country's widely known chess players.

Harry J. Shearer, Sr.

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 10.—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow for Harry T. Shearer, sr., 66, engineer and designer, who died Sunday night. Since 1920 he has been associated with the Landis Machine Co. here. In 1915 Mr. Shearer received the gold medal at the Pan-American International Exposition in collaboration in engineering. His wife, Mrs. Laura C. (Beard) Shearer, and several sons and daughters survive.

Dinner Will Honor Dr. Roderick Dew

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 10.—Dr. Roderick Dew, of Woodford, Caroline County, who has just rounded out a half century of practice in the medical profession, will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by the Fredericksburg Medical Society Thursday night.

Six Virginia Congressmen Are Opposed

Socialist, Communist In Race Against Byrd For Senate Seat

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Sept. 10.—Democratic Representatives from six of Virginia's nine Congressional districts will have opposition in the November general election, four from Republicans and two others from Socialists.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Raymond Jackson released the final list today of those who filed their declarations of candidacy showing that S. Otis Bland, of the First District; Colgate W. Darden, jr., of the Second District, and T. G. Burch, of the Fifth District, are the only three Democratic incumbents without opposition.

Woman Communist In List

Harry F. Byrd, Virginia's junior Senator, will be opposed by Milliard Bernstein, of Richmond, Socialist, and Mrs. Alice Burke, of Richmond, Communist.

Republicans who are seeking House seats include Fred W. McWane, of Lynchburg, against Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke, in the Sixth District; J. A. Garber, of Harrisonburg, against A. Willis Robertson in the Seventh; Henry B. Goodloe, of Charlottesville, against Howard W. Smith in the Eighth, and Fred C. Parks, of Abingdon, against John W. Flannagan in the Ninth.

Dave E. Satterfield, of the Third District, and Patrick H. Drewry, of the Fourth, both have Socialist rivals.

Aspirants Are Listed

First—S. Otis Bland, of Newport News (Democrat).

Fourth—Cyrus Hotchkiss, of Dinwiddie (Socialist).—P. H. Drewry, of Petersburg (Democrat).

Sixth—Clifton A. Woodrum, of Roanoke (Democrat)—Fred W. McWane, of Lynchburg (Republican)—Lawrence S. Wilkes, of Richmond (Socialist).

Seventh—A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington (Democrat)—J. A. Garber, of Harrisonburg (Republican) —Lester Ruffner, of Richmond (Communist).

Eighth—Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria (Democrat)—Henry B. Goodloe, of Charlottesville (Republican).

Ninth—John W. Flannagan, jr., of Bristol (Democrat)—Fred C. Parks, of Abingdon (Republican).

For United States Senate—Harry F. Byrd, of Winchester (Democrat) (Socialist), Mrs. Alice Burke, of Richmond (Communist).

Va. Democratic Head Opens Series of Talks

Chesterfield, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—State Democratic Campaign Director L. Preston Collins said tonight that "the Democratic Party is always the party in an hour of crisis" and predicted "it will be so on November 5."

Speaking at a Democratic rally at the courthouse here—the first in a series of campaign junkets that will take him to several sections of the State and to Bristol Saturday for a Ninth District rally—Collins called for the reelection of President Roosevelt, Senator Byrd and the nine Virginia Representatives by overwhelming majorities.

U. S. Cafeterias End Best Year Despite Strife

Association Reports $3,146,228.95 Income, $68,459.14 Net Profit

By Edward Ryan

Cafeterias in the Government buildings, despite repeated battles over the status of the organization that runs them, had their biggest year during the 12 months ending last June, according to the annual report of the Welfare and Recreation Association.

Government employes who are the cafeterias' first string customers tucked away a total of 9,111,106 lunches during the year, the report said. This was 1,092,952 more than they ate the year before.

Into the Government worker luncheon diet went these materials: Butter, 187,000 pounds; eggs, 187,200 dozen; cheese, 70,000 pounds; coffee, 135,640 pounds; ice cream, 43,266 gallons; ice cream novelties, 20,400 dozen; milk, 2,446,336 packages (half pints and pints); meat, 1,560,000 pounds; seafood, 150,000 pounds.

Tons of Vegetables

Added to these, the report said, were "hundreds of tons of vegetables."

Capt. F. W. Hoover, manager of the association, said that the total income for the year was $3,146,228.95, about three-fourths of it from the cafeterias, the rest from three other groups of activities—news stands and soda bars, recreational facilities including the tourist camp, swimming pools and tennis courts, and miscellaneous units like souvenir stands.

Net profit, said Capt. Hoover, was $68,459.14, of which $36,774.66 was set aside for the United States Treasury, and $31,684.48 was kept by the association for its reserve fund. He said the average profit amounted to less than half a cent per meal tray, and declared that toward the end of the year this profit was being reduced by rising labor and material costs.

The records were piled up during a year when the association was repeatedly at odds with the Federal Works Administration, the Comptroller General's office, and labor organizations.

Claims It Is a Charity

The Comptroller General's office advised that the cafeterias and other concessions should be given to private interests, and Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody said the organization should operate as a Government agency under the Public Buildings Administration. The association describes itself as a private charitable corporation, and says this status has been accepted by the Internal Revenue Bureau, the District Corporation Counsel, and Government administrators.

Settlement of the argument has been hanging fire since January. Last move, about four months ago, was an offer from the association to withdraw from cafeteria operation if an order declaring it to be a Government agency were enforced by Carmody. It also offered to return to the business if any other plan of cafeteria operation were tried and found unsuccessful. So far the offer hasn't been taken up by the Federal Works Agency.

Jobs—New Civil Service exams have been announced for these positions: Senior personnel technician, $4,600 a year; technician, $3,800; associate, $3,200; assistant, $2,600, and junior personnel technician, $2,000.

Oysters, according to fish experts in the Interior Department, have a tough life, and the experts are trying to find what can be done about it, through tricky submarine work.

The biggest trouble is that the oyster has more ways of getting itself killed than almost any other under-water animal. There are snails that drill through the shell and swallow an oyster like an ice cream soda. There are fish with jaws so powerful they can crack an oyster shell in half any time they want to. Starfish pull the shells open and surround the oyster. There are tiny leeches that go right into the shell and live with the oyster until the latter is eaten.

WALK WARILY

RIGHT-OF-WEIGHT. Give way to oncoming vehicles. The right-of-way rule is a feeble buffer against 1½ tons of steel. After all, a driver is just a pedestrian on wheels, and vice-versa, so why fight about it?

5,000 Bond Set For Youths Held In Robberies

Two colored youths charged with robbing parked couples were held on $5,000 bond each Monday for action of the grand jury after being arraigned in Police Court before Judge Walter Casey. The defendants pleaded not guilty.

Two men and two women who appeared in court to testify against the youths were spared the task when the defendants waived hearing. The youths, Edward Green, 21, of 1418½ Alabama avenue southeast, and Robert Taylor, 20, of 1331 Eleventh street northwest, were charged with robbery at the point of a gun in two separate cases after being identified by the victims, according to police, at a lineup.

Meanwhile, Alexandria police are attempting to link the pair to a series of "lover's lane" holdups in that city. In one case a young woman was assaulted by two colored youths. Fairfax County, Va., police are investigating the youths in connection with holdups of couples in that section.

State Plans Suit Against 'About 10' Tax Delinquents

Baltimore, Sept. 10 (AP).—Legal action against fewer than a dozen Marylanders who are alleged to have refused to pay their State income tax was under consideration today by the State law department.

Deputy Attorney General William Henderson said the department had been requested by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes to bring suits against "about ten" individuals who "flatly refused to pay their income taxes."

Henderson said the procedure had not been determined, although the State might begin attachment actions. The income tax law provides for legal action against defaulters, at the discretion of the comptroller.

Brethren Elevate Maryland Cleric

Westminster, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—The Rev. A. Stauffer Curry, pastor of Westminster Church of the Brethren for the past four years, has accepted a position as executive secretary of the Southwestern region, Church of the Brethren with headquarters at Bridgewater, Va.

The Rev. Curry, whose home is in Palmyra, Pa., will preach his last sermon here Sunday, September 15.

The Southeastern region includes eight States and 13 church districts from Maryland to Florida. The headquarters is maintained at the Brethren College in Bridgewater.

He will meet with district boards in an advisory capacity, with young people's cabinets of the various districts and other duties.

G. O. P. Women Hear Attack on New Deal

Richmond, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—A verbal assault on the New Deal and a call for "a little relief from reform and a little reform in relief" were features of an address last night by B. F. Flickinger, former superintendent of Colonial National Park in Yorktown at a meeting of the Republican Women's Club here at Willkie headquarters.

Flickinger asserted that he resigned his position last year because the Department of the Interior, of which the park service is a part, was run "by fear and persecution."

Mrs. Gathmann's Funeral Set This Afternoon

Funeral services will be held today at 3 p. m. in her home for Mrs. Emil A. Garthmann, 61, of Catonsville, Md., a former resident and frequent visitor to Washington.

Mrs. Gathmann died Monday in a Baltimore hospital after an illness of several weeks. She was a descendant of Caesar Rodney, a signer of the Declaration of Independence; C. A. Rodney, Attorney General under two early Presidents, and Col. Richard Lee, first attorney general of Virginia.

Born in Galveston, Tex., she attended Hollins College of Virginia and later came with her parents to Washington, where she was married to Emil Gathmann at St. Steven's Episcopal Church. She was a member of the Daughters of American Revolution, Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the Hollins Alumnae.

She leaves her husband, two sons, Mark H. Gathmann, of Pittsburgh, and Emil A. Gathmann, jr.; one daughter, Mrs. Edgar R. Smith, of Catonsville, and two sisters, Mrs. Paul Anderson and Miss Wilmuth Gary, of Washington.

Burial will be at Western Cemetery Baltimore.

3 Held for Jury In Fatal Beating

Frederick, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—Three young colored men were being held today for action of the Frederick County grand jury in connection with the death of Charles Edward Saylor, 33, who died after what police said was a "severe beating."

State Police Corpl. W. K. May and Deputy Sheriff Horace M. Alexander said that Charles F. Key, 25; Herbert M. Smith, 22, and Charles F. Smith, 22, had been charged with the slaying. The Smiths are not related. The three live in Libertytown.

County Finds Three Schools Overcrowded

Serious Congestion Reported in Frederick; Classes Set Record

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., Sept. 10.—Frederick County schools opened today with serious congestion in the three largest—Gainesboro, Stephens City and Middletown.

Figures on enrollment were not available but school officials said it will be the largest in history. At Stephens City, auditorium and laboratory space is being converted into class rooms to meet the emergency. At Gainesboro, an additional room to house the library is being built.

Meanwhile, at a joint meeting of the board of supervisors and school board, yesterday afternoon, authority was granted the school boarl to borrow approximately $18,500 to be applied to the construction of a new building at Clearbrook to house the elementary pupils of Stonewall district.

Shepherd College Opens

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Sept. 10.—Shepherd State Teachers College opened today with what President W. H. S. White called good prospects. Enrollment will not be completed for some days.

A number of new teachers appear on the faculty this year. Cletus D. Lowe, former Shpherdstown High School coach, will be in charge of athletics, in place of John Newcome, who is now coaching at Hinton (W. Va.) High School. Miss Blanche Price, of Morgantown, will be dean of women and instructor in home economics, replacing Miss Jean Richmond, who will teach at Fairmont. Miss Marjorie Bartlett, who resigned as physical director for women and will marry Henry VanTol this fall, will be succeeded by Miss Sara Helen Cree. Joseph H. Fordyce will be the new instructor in dramatics and public speaking.

O Where Is He, The Pied Piper Of Capital?

So Many Rats, They Are Health Menace, Officials Declare

Washington is infested with so many rats that they constitute a health menace, according to the board of managers of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Yesterday morning the board, of which Mrs. C. D. Lowe is president, instructed Mrs. Evelyn Bright Buckley, who heads its health department, to request Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, and William Xanten, superintendent of refuse collection, to take measures to exterminate the rodents.

There has been an influx of rats in the city this summer that has attained serious proportions, the women stated. Some atribuited it to the digging of the Piney Branch sewer. Rats, they said, leave any section adjacent to a place where digging is being done. They were of the opinion that the rodents, which formerly lived in the area along the 4½-mile trench being prepared for the sewer, had left for other parts of the city.

Several board members said they had rats in their homes this year for the first time since the houses were built.

U. S. Allots $2,503,000 For Virginia Roads

By the Associated Press

Virginia's share in the 1942-43 Federal road allocations which Federal Works Administrator John Carmody said would be ready by December will be $2,503,000.

The amount will be divided: $1,814,000 for regular Federal aid, $317,000 for secondary or feeder roads, and $372,000 for grade crossings.

Carol Flees Switzerland For Portugal

King and Sweetheart Sneak Out of Hotel, Board Train in Dark

Lugano, Switzerland, Sept. 10 (AP). Former King Carol of Rumania and his red-haired woman friend, Magda Lupescu, crept out of the servants' door of their hotel here tonight and boarded the dethroned monarch's special train in the darkness to go to Portugal. The train pulled out late tonight.

Although Lisbon was understood to be Carol's ultimate destination, one of his retinue said he might interrupt the trip to rest for a while on the French Riviera.

The French government earlier had refused to allow him to live on the French Riviera.

Yacht Going to France

(The former King's yacht was reported en route to Marseille, France, and it was assumed that the vessel would put in for him at some point on the French coast.)

About 100 Swiss gathered on the platform essayed a mild demonstration. A few shouted, "Long live the King!" But the Swiss police moved among them muttering: "Be quiet. The King is ill."

Carol, upon whose life two recent attempts had been made, was clearly nervous. The windows of his private car still showed jagged holes left by the bullets of Rumanian Iron Guardists who had fired at the train last Saturday as it left Rumania.

Eleven Generals Ousted

Bucharest, Sept. 10 (AP).—Eleven Rumanian generals accused of using flattery to gain their appointments from former King Carol were ousted summarily today by Gen. Ion Antonescu in his drive to rid the nation of Carol's influence.

The generals included former Premier George Argeanu and former War Minister Ion Ilcuso. All were said to have "practiced political activity contrary to the good of the state."

By decree, Antonescu also outlawed the use of the abdicated monarch's name as patron for any military unit, park or street.

The military dictator, however, shut off angry press denunciations of Carol at the tearful behest of King Mihai to halt "these scurrilous attacks on my father."

More Purges Seen

Some observers forecast additional purges in high places.

Outspoken Peasant Leader Juliu Maniu confirmed that his powerful party is at odds with the militant Iron Guard, although both are supporting the Antonescu regime.

Despite their conflicting views, the 68-year-old Maniu said his followers and the Iron Guardists united to force Carol's abdication and smash his government.

Because a strong hand is necessary to maintain public order, Maniu said, he was supporting Antonescu fully but that the present dictatorship must be replaced soon by democratic rule.

The peasant chieftain, who as premier in 1930 brought Carol from exile and placed him on the throne, expressed the hope that Antonescu himself would take the leadership in creating a democratic government.

THE fraternity rush committee has to rely on first impressions a great deal when pledging a man. Lack of time and other fraternities on the campus call for immediate action. The quicker the better, for a good pledgee may be lost because of hesitancy.

That first glance is a most important one. You need not be a Beau Brummel or a Lucius Beebe and dress to sartorial perfection but you must know what to select and the kind of clothes to wear. Color should blend and contrast.

Most fraternity men wear nationally famous clothes. The "pin" men know the styling, cut and fabrics are correct. We, at The Hecht Co. College Man's Store, take a keen delight in presenting the new fall picture of college fashions to you fraternity men of Washington and those going out of town. Won't you drop in today?

Leaves Voted for Montgomery Teachers Called to Colors

Board Discusses Means of Aiding Defense Program

National defense measures consumed the major portion of the efforts of the Montgomery County, Md., board of education at its meeting in Rockville, Md., yesterday. The board took cognizance of the possibility that the local school system will be called upon to aid in preparations for national defense.

The board approved a new by-law authorizing leaves of absence for teachers called to military service. A previous by-law had provided for leaves because if illness and maternity and for study.

The school board was advised that several teachers already have been called to military service and that others are liable to service. Provision of leave of absence for the teacher makes possible reinstatement of teachers called for military service to the State teachers' retirement system upon return to teaching.

The board discussed the program in the schools in connection with the national preparedness program at length. Following a discussion on physical education work in the schools, it was decided that courses should be directed toward physical preparedness among the students. "It was suggested that an emphasis be placed on the acceptance of responsibility in observing good posture, in building physical stamina and in accepting responsibility in carrying out a program which tends to build a seriousness in the understanding of being prepared to cope with the national emergency situation now existing," Dr. Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of county schools, explained.

It was further suggested that the professional program for the year on democracy as developed in the professional yearbook be used in the Parent-Teacher Association programs. The board expressed great interest and satisfaction in the work being planned by the teachers to deal with democracy in the program for the year.

The board directed that insurance to cover property damage be carried on all school buses.

Assessment Changes Will Be Published

Early publication of changes in the assessment of Montgomery County, Md., real estate appeared assured yesterday when the Montgomery County commissioners directed S. M. Hamilton, in charge of the special assessment office, to prepare a complete list of changes made in the recent general reassessment.

The board directed that all changes be listed in detail and that the work be accomplished as quickly as possible. Hamilton was in charge of the assessors in the general reassessment work. The law requires that the changes be published when completed and approved.

The commissioners accepted resignation of Laurason B. Riggs, clerk to the trial magistrate at Silver Spring, and named Harold Bradford, of Colesville, to succeed him, effective September 16.

Hearing dates were fixed for the following petitions for rezoning:

Clarence C. Keiser, from residential A to commercial D, of lot 10, block 3, Highland Park, to be heard October 14 at 7:30 p. m. at Bethesda County Building.

Samuel E. Bogley, to extend present commercial zone both sides of Wisconsin avenue from Chase avenue to Chestnut and Chase avenue to Battery lane, October 14 at 7:30 p. m. at Bethesda County Building.

Mary E. Tibbetts, residential A to residential B, two-family apartments, lots D and E, Hills's and Dale, both sides of Garland avenue, between Carroll and Maple avenues, to be heard October 24 at 7:30 p. m. at Silver Spring Liquor Control Board Building.

NEWEST DESTROYER NAMED FOR HER HUSBAND—Mrs. W. S. Benson, widow of Admiral Benson, yesterday visited the destroyer Benson, named for her husband, at the Washington Navy Yard, where the Navy's newest is tied up. Lieut. Comdr. A. L. Pleasants welcomed her aboard as guest of officers and crew

Two Alexandria Groups Join In 'Reelect Roosevelt' Drive

Alexandria's City Democratic Committee and the Young Democratic Club will have equal roles in a "reelect Roosevelt" drive to be launched this week, it was announced yesterday, as the two party organizations completed plans for joint sponsorship of a campaign drive. Three members of the city committee were named by Chairman R. Samuel Luckett to serve on a general campaign committee under the leadership of State Delegate Maurice D. Rosenberg.

Walter I. Young, chairman of the Young Democratic Club, said Democratic Committeemen Charles E. Davis and Joseph B. Wyatt, of the First ward, and Miss Camille DeLane, of the Sixth ward, will serve jointly with Delegate Rosenberg, City Attorney Armistead L. Boothe and Mrs. Pauline B. Werth, of the Young Democratic Club. Rosenberg said he would ask the committeemen to confer with him some time today to complete plans for the campaign.

Leaders of the two Democratic organizations, Young and Luckett, will comprise an advisory committee and will assist the general committee in a drive to enlist support for the party's Presidential ,Vice Presidential and Congressional candidates.

Headquarters in the Professional Building ,owned by Delegate Rosenberg, will be opened within the next few days, and the campaign is expected to be under way by the end of the week, Young said. Officials at the campaign headquarters will be Mrs. Elizabeth W. Kelley, executive secretary; Mrs. Harriet Goods, secretary, and Mrs. Velma Stansbury, treasurer.

Alexandria Mayor To Address Lions

William T. Wilkins, Alexandria's newly elected mayor, will be the guest speaker at the biweekly luncheon meeting of the Alexandria Lions Club today at 12:30 at the George Mason Hotel. Principal aims of the new city council, which assumed office on September 1, will be outlined.

The program will be presented under the direction of Charles Pullman, program chairman for this month. Charles M. Jones will preside.

Chest May Employ Campaign Manager

The Alexandria Community Chest is considering the employment of a professional campaign manager to direct its annual drive for funds next month, and will take final action on the proposal pending a report to be submitted by the executive committee within the next 10 days, President Burt P. Garnett said yesterday. The campaign is tentatively scheduled to open October 14.

The board of trustees has referred the matter to the committee, Garnett said, and has given committee members full power to decide on "any move which they believe might enhance the success of the drive."

Attorney to Address Willkie-McNary Club

Attorney J. Randall Caton will speak before the regular meeting of the Alexandria Willkie-McNary Club tonight at 8 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel. Final plans for an intensive campaign in the interests of the Republican candidates will be outlined.

Va. Police Victim Dies

Covington, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—Elwood Sponaugle, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sponaugle, stricken with infantile paralysis, died last night in a Convington Hospital.

Montgomery Health Officer Urges Ban on Public Dumps

Abolition of open dumps in Montgomery County and collection and disposal of garbage and refuse by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission were advocated yesterday by Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, in a letter to the Montgomery County, Md., commissioners.

The letter was read at a meeting of the board of commissioners yesterday in Rockville, Md. No definite action was taken by the commissioners. President Thomas Earle Hampton announced that the board of commissioners is aware of the acute situation and revealed that the commissioners for some months have been considering possible plans for provision of a trash and garbage incinerator for the county to eliminate dumps.

Commissioner Hampton said the Democratic majority members of the board hope to announce definite steps toward erection of an incinerator within a short time but at this time are not prepared to make any definite commitment.

Urged by Two Groups

Recommendations that a municipal trash and garbage collection service be provided for the suburban area of the county are on the dockets of two major county civic bodies, the Montgomery County Civic Federation and the Allied Civic Groups of Silver Spring.

Frank J. Falker, chairman of a special committee of the Allied Civic Groups, said that he expects to call a meeting of his group within a few days to formulate resolutions urging such a step. Mr. Falker pointed out that the present system of collection by private companies is fairly satisfactory to those householders who take advantage of the service but that the majority of persons in the metropolitan area do not patronize the private refuse collectors. These persons dump trash and garbage along the highways and decomposition of the organic matter, along with the breeding of mosquitoes in stagnant water in discarded tin cans spread disease.

The Civic Federation is on record as favoring a municipal trash collection but still is in summer recess.

Seen as Health Menace

In his letter to the commissioners, Dr. Ellicott said:

"There is now such a large volume of garbage and refuse hauled from the suburban area of Montgomery County to the central and upper parts of the county that this constitutes a serious public health problem. It is now believed that the breeding of flies and rats and the infections transmitted by hogs from the feeding of garbage, particularly trichinosis, constitutes a more serious problem than was formerly believed to result from refuse disposal."

Commissioner Hampton said he had been informed that the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at Bladensburg rapidly is reaching capacity.

White-Hooded 'Ghost' Reported In Eastport Area

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 10 (AP).—As clock hands moved closer to midnight, Eastport residents were wondering if the "ghost" would strike again.

The "ghost"—something garbed in a white-peaked hood—has Eastport folk on edge. For the past several nights "it" has been prowling in back yards, peeking into parked automobiles and making weird noises.

Police are working on the case but are handicapped by volunteer searchers who have been patrolling the area where the "ghost" has been seen. Officers said "it" would never appear where there is a crowd.

The latest report was that the "ghost" walked into a colored confectionery store to buy a cigar. The report said no one in the store stayed around long enough to wait on the "customer."

Hog Cholera Hits 2 W. Va. Counties

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 10.—An outbreak of hog cholera in the Swan Pond section of this county last week is mild in comparison with the wave among the hograisers of Hardy County, W. Va., it was learned here today.

There are hundreds of cases of this disease in the Moorefield section, with one farmer alone having already lost 65 head of his herd and many more of them expected to die, it was stated.

Last week it was reported that one farmer in the Swan Pond section of Berkeley County had lost 30 head and numerous other cases have been reported in various sections of the county.

Strickler Rites Set Tomorrow in Luray

Luray, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—Funeral services will be held here Thursday for Joseph D. Strickler, winner of international awards for portrait photography, who died last night in a Washington hospital.

Strickler was a native of Luray, but recently had been living in Pittsburgh. The Masonic Lodge will be in charge of the funeral and burial will be in Green Hill Cemetery here. He is survived by his wife.

Bankhead Defends Third Term

Gov. O'Conor Reads Address As House Leader Is Stricken

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Sept. 10.—Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead tonight defended the right of President Roosevelt to run for a third term and praised the Administration's "good neighbor" foreign policy and defense program.

[Gov. Herbert O'Conor read Speaker Bankhead's address after the Alabaman had been stricken with a painful attack of sciatica.]

In a broadcast keynote address at a mass meeting opening the Democratic campaign in Maryland, Bankhead reviewed the President's incumbency and asserted the Republican platform "approved in principle the Democratic legislative program of this Administration."

He declared there was "no real reason" for the 'no third-term" tradition, denied that Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull had "meddled" in the foreign affairs of other nations and said the Administration was taking "every needful step" for national defense.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, presiding at the meeting, described the President as "a match for any ruler in the world" and said it was "plain common sense to continue in office the man who has demonstrated his ability."

Defends Third Term

Deferring the third-term issue, Bankhead said:

"I contend that there is absolutely no shred of political philosophy or sound analytical reason why a President of the United States should not be reelected for a third term.

"The whole argument against it is based entirely upon a so-called accepted tradition or unwritten law. When one begins to seek any real or persuasive reason for such a tradition, he will find, if fairly intentioned, that none exists."

The Speaker said that "the whole record disproves" contentions that the President and Secretary Hull "have gone out of their way to indulge in so-called meddling in the foreign affairs of other nations.

"Although they have from time to time made vigorous protests against the action of of some foreign governments," he said, "the whole undertone and substance of their appeals to the world has been for the good neighbor policy, for peace in the world and against the spread of war."

Lauds Defense Program

As for national defense, Bankhead said "it is no easy thing for a great Nation like this to adequately prepare against the terrific power of the Nazi war machine, but, he added, "this Administration and this Congress are taking every needful step to see to it that at the earliest possible moment we will be prepared in all fields of action to preserve the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine and to safeguard at all hazards our priceless heritage of liberty and free way of life."

"To give assurance to our people on the preparedness program," he quoted these figures prepared by Representative Clifton Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, of the Appropriations Committee:

"In 1933 we had an army of 75,000. Today we have equipped and under arms an army of 241,000 and the present Congress is authorizing an increase to 1,200,000 with a possible ultimate reserve strength of 2,000,000.

Ocean Navy in 1946

"Today we have a one-ocean navy of 399 warships. In 1943 we will have 521 warships afloat and in 1946 a two-ocean navy.

"Today we have 5,500 warplanes (production 900 per month). In 1941, it will be up to 1,500 per month. July, 1942, 25,000 warplanes will be ready. October, 1943, 50,000 warplanes will be on hand.

"Today we have 500 tanks. Production is three light tanks daily.

"July, 1941, 1,500 tanks will be ready. January, 1943, 200 heavy 70-ton tanks will be ready.

"By August, 1941, arms and critical equipment for 1,000,000 men. That's one yaer hence. October, 1943, complete arms and equipment for an army of 1,200,000 men and a reserve strength that will give us 2,000,000.

Horse's Kick in 1890 Still Felt by Patient

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Sept. 10.—Roger C. Sharp had occasion to remember the kick of a horse received at his father's farm at Wolfsville 50 years ago.

A few days ago he was seized with a severe headache and went to a doctor. In the course of examination the physician found a piece of tooth which was broken off half a century ago by the horse's kick. It was lodged in Harp's nose.

French Cleric Is on Way Back From War Duty

The Rev. Andre Liotard To Resume Pastorate, Teaching Post Here

The Rev. Andre Liotard, pastor of the French Congregation in Washington and a member of the teaching staff at the University of Maryland, is on his way gack to this country after serving a year in the French army, it was learned yesterday.

Rev. Liotard

The Rev. Mr. Liotard will resume his duties at St. John's Episcopal Church, where his congregation meets at 4 p. m. each Sunday. He also will return to his post at the university as instructor in French.

Dr. Adolph E. Zucker, head of the University of Maryland's modern languages department, said he had received a cable from the Rev. Mr. Liotard, which said he was returning from Athens, Greece, via Lisbon, Portugal. He is expected to arrive in time for the opening of the fall term September 23.

When war broke out last September, he was traveling in Algeria, his birthplace. Trained as a machine-gunner, he sailed immediately to join his regiment. Later he was transferred to another branch of the service and was stationed at Ankara, Turkey.

His associates at the univeristy received frequent letters from him In one, addressed to Dr. Zucker, the clergyman said he regretted not being able to continue his teaching duties, but was glad not to be "in a sheltered position while all others undergo the hardships of war."

He studied at the School of Archeology, the Louvre, Paris, and in 1931 came to the United States to study at Chicago and New York universities. He taught for a while at American University.

Schools Tell Nonresidents How to Enroll

2,800 Out-of-Town Pupils Expected; Overcrowding Feared

Schools at which nonresident pupils in the District should enroll for the session beginning September 23, were listed yesterday in a statement from the superintendent's office.

Students from the Takoma-Silver Spring area should attend the new Calvin Coolidge High School.

Pupils from Virginia may attend Central or Western High School, whichever is the more accessible.

No pupils outside the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area may be admitted to Woodrow Wilson High School.

Assigned to Langley.

New nonresident pupils living in Maryland, who would ordinarily attend Taft Junior High School, will be admitted to Langley Junior High School.

Ne wnonresident pupols living in Maryland who would ordinarily attend the Anacostia Junior-Senior High School will attend either Eliot or Hine Junior High School, whichever is more accessible, and senior high school pupils will attend Eastern High School.

No nonresident pupils will be admitted to the Deal Junior High School due to the crowded conditions in that building. Students residing in Bethesda or Chevy Chase, Md., may be admitted to the Gordon or Macfarland Junior High School.

2,800 Non-Residents Likely

No non-resident pupils will be admitted to the seventh grade of Paul Junior High School. Seventh grade non-resident pupils may be admitted to the Macfarland or Powell High School. However, non-resident pupils already enrolled at Paul will be permitted to remain in that school.

Non-resident pupils in the elementary grades should apply to the supervising principal responsible for the schools in the section nearest their approach to the city, it was announced.

About 2,800 non-resident pupils customarily enroll in District schools, an official said.

Superintendent Orem Says County Needs More Teachers

Enrollment in the Prince Georges County public schools increased approximately 900 over that of last year, Superintendent of Schools Nicholas W. Orem announced yesterday.

Although registration reports of all schools have not been received at the board of education's office, it is known that the white high schools have increased their enrollment by 300, the white elementary schools by 500, and the colored schools by 100.

All schools from which reports have been received have shown increases except one, the Woodville elementary school, which decreased from 45 to 34 pupils. Because of this, one of the school's two teachers is to be transferred to another school and the sixth and seventh grades will be transported to the Baden School.

Riverdale's Gain Largest

The largest increase reported was in the Riverdale elementary school, which enrolled 70 more pupils than last year. The Riverdale School, however has facilities to take care of the increase, as have the Beltsville, Berwyn, University Park, Camp Springs, and District Heights elementary schools, which also showed large increases.

It is in the Forestville, Bradbury Heights, and Suitland elementary schools that the effects of overcrowding will be felt, Orem said Land was purchased yesterday on which to erect an additional building at Forestville, which will be done as soon as funds are available. At Bradbury Heights, one class will be quartered in the auditorium while suitable rented rooms are sought to accommodate the 45-pupil increase at Suitland.

The high school situation is adequately taken care of except at Hyattsville and Greenbelt. More space and teachers are needed to handle properly the enlarged student body at these schools.

Orem stated that about ten more elementary school teachers are needed to staff the school system in the county.

County Bus to Take Patients to Clinic

The Prince Georges County board of commissioners has acted favorably on the request of C. L. Wood of the county health department, to purchase a bus to transport patients to the various clinics operated by the board of health.

Housing Needs Are Expanded in Hampton Roads

Newport News, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—Award of an additional shipbuilding program of nearly a half-billion dollars' value to Virginia yards lent new emphasis today to the housing needs of the Hampton Roads area.

Members of the House Defense Housing Committee toured the Newport News and Norfolk aeras yesterday for a first-hand view of the situation. Representative Frank W. Boykin (Democrat), of Alabama, acting as spokesman, said after a conference with Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. officials that they estimated 4,000 housing units would be required for additional workers to be taken on at the plant.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Mr. Quigley's Almanac A Solace to Drama Desk

"Year Book" Is Mine of Information; Old-Timers Revive Gracious Memories; This, That and the Other About the Theater

WE HAVE BEEN TRYING for a long time now to get around to the new issue of the International Motion Picture Almanac, issued by the Quigley Publications, New York, and edited by that veteran encyclopedia of the cinema, Terry Ramsaye, which came more or less recently to hand.

BELL

This is one of the motion picture "year books" that prove invaluable to any drama desk as the weeks wear through the years. The volume will do with a bit of wading through, consisting, as it does, of 1,062 pages of practically vital information relating to the film industry and the people engaged in it. For example, there are 16,000 biographies of those who have contributed to the celluloids in one capacity or another—stars, supporting players, directors, writers, technicians and whatnot. When we keep you waiting on the phone it is because we have to refer to some such tome as this to ascertain what it is you want to know.

This twelfth annual edition of the almanac weighs a full five pounds and that avoirdupois is represented exclusively by statistics and biographies that strike straight to the heart of the mammoth business of making pictures and maintaining Hollywood as the capital of the world's output of cinematic entertainment.

Naturally, we have not, as yet, had time to do more than riffle the pages of this invaluable digest. But here it is, and if there is anything you care to know, buzz the phone and we will try to finger through to the page that contains the information you desire.

And what a job the whole thing must have been for the erudite Mr. Ramsaye!

Speaking of the Variety Club of Washington, as we were yesterday and Mr. Coe is today, Johnny Harris, chief barker of the national organization of showmen's clubs, has exercised superior judgment in appointing that high-strung, Southern gentleman, Sam Galanty, division manager of Columbia Pictures, as a sort of field marshal for the development of the circuit. As a kind of roving emissary, it will be Mr. Galanty's duty to scout the country for likely spots for new Variety Clubs and bolster those that seem to be dying on the vine. Mr. Harris evidently has his moments of inspiration.

Since they still have today to run in Gene Ford's "Variety Hall—1910" revue, on the stage at the Capitol, it seems worth recalling that both Fritzi Scheff and Joe Howard, stars of the nostalgic variety show, have written their names indelibly in the annals of the theater in Washington. Miss Scheff premiered here in the most popular of her musical comedy productions—after a whirl with the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co., under the managerial direction of Maurice Grau, if memory serves—and made such an overwhelming hit of Victor Herbert's "Mlle. Modiste" that on various visits we saw it five times here and twice out in Chicago. It is interesting to recall that foremost in her supporting cast were the late Claude Gillingwater, so long popular in films, and William Pruitt, who sang his gouty "I Want What I Want When I Want It," with such gusto that silverware and glassware alike were splattered all over the stage from the table at which he sat. That is when he banged his fist down as if he meant it.

Joe Howard, of course, was "out in front" in musical comedy for years—and still is, over the air. But I seem to recall a time when he sang a song composed by the late Philander Johnson, long dramatic critic of the Star, from the stage of the National. It seems to me the thing was called "Somewhere in France Blooms (or Grows) the Lily." At any rate, at a memorable matinee, Joe persuaded Philander to stand in a stage box and sing his own ditty to the huge delight of the audience. My lamented friend, Mr. Johnson, did a noble job, but, even so, was no Joe Howard. What else ever was?

The "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike" feature at the Earle, with "The Howards of Virginia," come Friday, will be dedicated to melodies of the South, including "Dixie," "In The Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia," "Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home." It will be led again by Eileen Ritter, making her first appearance on the "little black box" since her recent emergency operation for appendicitis.

More than 150 motion picture critics have voted "The Sea Hawk," the Warner Brothers production starring Errol Flynn, the best picture released in August. This is the tenth "best picture" rating captured by the Burbank studios since the Monthly Critics' Poll was inaugurated 29 months ago. Bette Davis, incidentally, had a finger in six of the earlier winners.

At Pierce Hall tonight at 8—that would be at Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest—tryouts will be held for "Three Men on a Horse," the group's first production of the year. The play will be under the direction of Howard F. Wentworth, who has presided with his bull whip over the summer's activities of the Cross Roads Theater.

Personal-Observation Note

Left to right—Samuel S. Hinds, Laraine Day, Emma Dunn and Lew Ayres, as they will be seen in "Dr. Kildare Comes Home," the first screen subject that will break out on the Capitol screen on Thursday, instead of the conventional Friday. This shift in opening date is, at least in part, due to Mickey Rooney's booking for a week of personal appearances at the Capitol, beginning Thursday, September 19. There is a possibility of permanency

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Sept. 10 (INS).—George Murphy should be very flattered this morning. Harold Lloyd personally selected him to play the "boy" in the picture, "Three Girls and a Gob"—the first film Harold has ever produced without himself in the star part.

PARSONS

Come to think of it, George has a lot of the wholesome young American appeal that was Harold's chief stock in trade, but, in case you're wondering, George is not going to don the famous Lloyd specs.

The last time I saw Rene Clair, the famous French director, he was making "Break the News" at Pinewood, outside of London. How well we both recalled the incident today when I talked with him here in Hollywood. One of the best continental directors, he has made such pictures as "The Ghost Goes West," with Robert Donat, and "Under the Paris Roofs" and many others. He told me that he was just getting ready to film a picture in the south of France when the German invasion changed every Frenchman's plans and sent the lucky ones scurrying out of the country.

Time was when Ricardo Cortez was billed as Rudolph Valentino's successor and the very topnotch heart throbber. Later we all looked upon him as one of the screen's best heavies, but, of late, Ric has been concentrating on writing and directing. Now he will again become a movie actor. I was told today that he will don the grease paint with Cesar Romero in "Romance of the Rio Grande."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: David Warner, Hollywood agent, was at the plane to meet Gertrude Niesen, when she flew in, and from the warmth of their greeting, looks like the rumors of an engagement are true; Nancy Kelly and Anatole Litvak the newest twosome in town at Ciro's; Kurt von Haugwitz Reventlow is rumored as being in Hollywood. Barbara Hutton has been sick with the flu and it's doubtful if she has seen him to talk over any settlement or arrangement he may try to demand; the reason for Al Hall's many visits to Al Jordan's Bar of Music is said to be Maxine Lewis.

George Raft, 'tis said at the Warner Studio, remains under suspension until February; the cook at the Andy Devines is having her troubles. Mrs. D. has to gain weight and Andy is on a reducing diet; 30 guests were invited by Virginia and Darryl Zanuck to meet Lady Mendl Sunday night; "The Great Profile" was shown and everyone had a great laugh at John's caricature of himself; Bill Davey and Loraine Eddy were having themselves some fun at Ciro's; Betty Grable and Count Cassini enjoying themselves at Victor Hugos; Bill Orr and Virginia O'Brien, who met in the original "Meet the People" cast are seeing each other romantically.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Walter Wanger Addresses the Variety Club

By Richard L. Coe

One side of the multilateral motion picture industry heard the hopes and problems of another yesterday afternoon when Hollywood Producer Walter Wanger spoke at the first of this fall's Variety Club luncheons at the Willard.

As producer of "Blockade," "Algiers," "Stagecoach" and "Foreign Correspondent," dynamic Walter Wanger was a man the local theater magnates could listen to with respect if not with wholehearted agreement. But in most of his observations, the local theater owners and managers probably concurred.

"Better and few pictures is our greatest need," remarked the producer as he urged an effort to attract to theaters the 30,000,000 people whom the Gallup Poll claims are potential filmgoers. Dr. Gallup's statisticians have found that of a possible 80,000,000 picturegoers each week, only 50,000,000 regularly attend.

"It is this 30,000,000 to whom we must appeal if we are to make up for the loss of our foreign markets. Just as radio has reached a public it never before had through its sustaining programs, so the motion pictures must strive to appeal to this holdout minority by distinguished, intelligent films, pictures that may be risky to produce but which will be the difference between red and black ink on the ledger books.

"To do this we must beware of the 'escape' picture. We need an awareness that this country is full of agents for another system. Carelessly or knowingly the public can be—and is—lulled into a false feeling of security.

"Propaganda? Well, whatever is meant by that ill-used word there can certainly be entertainment and interest in ideas."

Senator Henry F. Ashurst introduced the well-built Dartmouth graduate, a man who, though still in his middle forties, was a member of President Wilson's peace delegation at the close of the World War. Noted for his interest in the amusement world, Senator Ashurst gave a knowing address of welcome to the club's guest and was evidently both amused by and in agreement with Mr. Wanger's defense of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." Linking official distaste for that Capra comedy and current legislative delays, Mr. Wanger quipped "What Hollywood is accused of Washington is behaving like."

The luncheon was attended by over 100 figures of the local and national theatrical scene. Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, introduced Senator Ashurst, while Sidney Lust was toastmaster.

Another Hollywood celebrity present was Merian C. Cooper, producer of "Chang," "Grass" and "King Kong." Joan Bennett, Mr. Wanger's wife, arrived here last evening to spend today with her husband before he continues to St. Louis on his Nation-wide tour.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 10.

POLITICS DEPT.: John O'Hara purchased a gold cigarette case on which he desired to have the autographs of the ten most important personages in America. These autographs were to be made permanent by having the singers use a diamond-tipped pencil. O'Hara decided that the first autograph he wanted was that of President Roosevelt.... The novelist met Jimmy Roosevelt, and elicited from him a promise to arrange it. O'Hara then entrusted the pencil and cigarette case to Jimmy—who returned them three months later. It contained two autographs—the first that of Eleanor Roosevelt; the second, that of the President.... "I didn't know how to ask my father," Jimmy explained. "So I asked my mother to sign it first. Then she brought it to father, who knew it must be all right, so long as mother had begun it."

JIMMY

DIPLOMACY DEPT.: Dore Schary, who is writing the new M-G-M movie, "Simon Bolivar," was sent to Washington to confer with Sumner Welles and the Bolivian Embassy about using this picture as a medium of cementing Pan-American relations. After conferring with Mr. Welles, Schary then proceeded to the Bolivian Embassy, to meet the Ambassador. The screen-writer outlined the story to his excellency, who expressed great enthusiasm, and to convince the Ambassador of his sincerity in making this picture a link of friendship between the two nations, Schary apologized for having mispronounced the names of some of the characters in the script, and assured him that no such mistake would appear in the movie.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT: Universal is preparing a movie about a herd of cattle being moved from Oklahoma to Texas. The cattle are stopped at the border by a young hero who discovers a serum to combat a mysterious malady from which they are suffering—a malady which would infect the entire human population . . . The picture is as yet untitled. And so the file containing all the data about this forthcoming movie is captioned, temporarily, "Buck Pasteur Rides Again."

TRAVEL DEPT.: Just before George Burns flew home from New York he received a wire from Jack Benny, who was in Chicago, asking him to stop there and see him. . . . Burns wired: "Leaving tomorrow; meet me at airport, Chicago, tomorrow noon." Burns then arranged for 300 friends to wire Benny: "George Burns arriving Chicago tomorrow noon. Please meet him at airport." Jack made no acknowledgment, and wasn't at the airport when Burns arrived. George therefore rushed to his hotel, where he found Benny seated in a room on whose walls were pasted the 300 telegrams of notification.

ETIQUETTE DEPT.: A British official who came to Hollywood last month told this story of Queen Mary, spending some time in the country and having her lady-in-waiting phoning some of the distinguished residents, as is the royal custom, to notify that the Queen Mother was coming to tea. Her Majesty was amused, but also surprised, at being greeted lustily with affectionate pats and such exuberant grandeur as to almost seem feigned.... It really was feigned.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Sept. 10.

You can add another amusing story to the Jack Barrymore collection. Some years ago, when Jack was out of work, and spending Ethel's money, she sent him enough to travel to the Deep South and join her in a minor part in one of her plays. Jack spent the money on high living, so Ethel sent him a railroad ticket, and he came on, and took over the role of butler. Evening he opened, he preceded his illustrious sister on the stage, did a bit of table arranging, and when Ethel made her entrance to enormous applause, Jack walked to the center of the stage and bowed gracefully. After that, the two Barrymores didn't work together for many years.

Edna May Oliver had a run-in with sharks the other day at Santa Monica beach. Edna swam out beyond the breakers, then half a mile up the coast and back again, when suddenly she was surround by what she thought were fish. People started screaming—lifeguards jumped in to help, but Edna beat them all to shore.

John and Rita Miller are breaking the endurance kiss record of George Brent and Ann Sheridan UNDER WATER at Miramar Aquacade.

George Haight, producer of "Lucky Partners," and his wife went to Connecticut recently for a vacation, taking their 4-year-old along. When they arrived there, the little girl saw a field filled with hundreds of cattle, and said, "Mummy, look at all those Elsies!" In Hollywood, where she was born, she's only seen the original.

Arthur Murray says a fifth columnist is "anybody who's willing to listen to any treasonable proposition."

A friend (but I'd call him something else!) pulled a "Front Page" gag on Bill Boyd's ranch foreman, Lawrence Houston, and the poor youngster, just married, spent the night in jail. Bill loaned the couple his station wagon to go up to the San Francisco fair. Larry's friends wired the county sheriff that the wagon had been stolen from Bill, so Larry was picked up, couldn't reach Bill till morning—no phone at the ranch—and the love birds languished behind the bars.

Seeing Barbara Jo Allen on the lot at Republic is quite a shock when you've heard her as Vera Vague on the radio. In "Melody and Moonlight," she's romantically inclined with Jerry Colonna, which is sump'n.

Watching Kenny Baker rehearsing a scene for "Hit Parade of 1941," three times he forgot one line as he walked across the stage. Radio stars always have scripts in their hands—yes?

Little Ann Gillis used to date with Jimmy Lydon, and is now being beaued by Jimmy Zaner. All three are playing in "Little Men," and that screen battle between the two Jimmies may be more real than reel.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, Sept. 10.—The Cleveland bawl club, as it is known in certain sets, is leading the Yankees by one-half game and six secret meetings, but the man on the street in Cleveland is vastly unexcited about the Indians' chances of winning the pennant.

POVICH

There are a great many men on the street in Cleveland these days, incidentally. One reason is that they are not inside the Cleveland ball park. They have quit cold on the Indians, but the Indians started it, as far as that goes. Yesterday with the Cleveland team still holding the league lead and the pennant race supposed to be feverish, the Indians could stir up only 1,500 cash customers.

Here, friends, is a city with that let-down feeling. For most of the 20 years since the Indians won their last pennant, they have been gesticulating toward another flag and the fans have heeded their false alarms at great expense. This year it wasn't supposed to be another cry of "wolf!" But the real thing. The Indians were 6½ games out in front in late August. Then they folded, losing ten of their next 15 games, nine of their last 11.

We asked our taxi driver about it this morning. What did he think about the pennant race? How about the Indians? He cocked his head over his shoulder in our direction and looked at us balefully.

"Dem bums," he said, "are bums."

Other towns have quit on their ball clubs when the teams have found the pace too hot, but here in Cleveland they quit on the Indians while they were still in the lead, honest. It is a city suffocated by the childish quarreling of the players, the not-quite-bright management and the failure to make at least a show of holding on to what had appeared to be a safe lead.

Despite the Indians' insistence that Manager Vitt "is driving us nuts," there is no tendency by the populace to blame Vitt for the Indians' downfall. At a peoples' rally in the public square the other day before the Indians had completely wasted their lead, 5,000 fans cheered the players, but the loudest cheers were for Vitt. It was doubtless out of sympathy rather than admiration, but it was the tip-off on the peepul's state of mind.

In contrast, there were boos for Vice President Slapnicka. He is the whipping boy of the Cleveland setup. Slapnicka is blamed for everything from Owner Bradley's failure to back up Vitt, to the periodic secret meetings of the ball players sans Vitt. Slapnicka, significantly, accompanied the team to Detroit last week, where in Johnny Allen's hotel suite, the players held the latest of their secret sessions. Vitt learned from newspapermen, hours afterward, that his ball club had been in meeting.

The Slapnicka faction on the club, which demanded the discharge of Vitt as early as last June, is directed from the front office where Slapnicka has a strange influence over Owner Bradley. Actually there is no Vitt faction save for Vitt himself. His support among the players not aligned directly against him is passive. The rookies, Lou Boudreau and Ray Mack, and others who are not against Vitt, simply take no sides in the quarreling.

Within the past two weeks, however, there has been a defection in the Vitt opposition, we learn. Ben Chapman, Jeff Heath and Frankie Pytlak no longer attend the anti-Vitt meetings. Still unreconstructed, however, are important fellows like Hal Trosky, Bob Feller, Ken Keltner and Johnny Allen. It is significant, perhaps, that Allen freely admits his rooms were the scene of their last secret session when they decided to ignore Vitt's strategy and try to win the pennant under their own leadership.

Slapnicka's specific complaint against Vitt is not the same as the ball players, who charged him with mishandling of pitchers and tactical errors. Slapnicka, who three years ago picked Vitt for the job, now is firmly convinced that Vitt is ruining his young ball players. Inasmuch as Slapnicka is the chief procurer of talent for the club, his charges against Vitt may be an escape for himself. Surely, Vitt has done nothing to damage Boudreau and Mack, the finest pair of young fielders to come into the league in decades.

Cleveland's newspapers haven't contributed to the happiness of the club or fans. As late as yesterday the baseball writers were still debating in print whether Vitt should have ordered a sacrifice in last Friday's game. Here in Cleveland the second-guess really endures. The newspapers are headline crazy as far as the Indians are concerned, and maybe it is not the reporters' fault, but the newspaper treatment of the club is bizarre, to say the least.

Weeks ago, one Cleveland newspaper started a daily contest which promised the winners tickets to the World Series games in Cleveland. They had counted the pennant won. The other day, they began to have misgivings and stated, parenthetically, that the winners would receive cash equivalents if there were no World Series games in Cleveland.

Today, a Cleveland baseball writer decided that the Indians could stave off the Yankees' rush if the fans and players would razz Yankee coach Art Fletcher during the series here. Fletcher, the paper recalled, upset the Indians in the East with his vocal jockeying. "Razz Fletcher and watch his neck get red," was the line. It failed to explain how the redness of Fletcher's neck would win the pennant for the Indians.

With CONSIDINE

New York, Sept. 10.—The first hint that Don McNeill might become tennis champion of the country came from Baron Von Cramm, now tacitly barred from tennis and trying to rehabilitate himself in Berlin society by being a member of a Berlin antiaircraft battery.

CONSIDINE

Von Cramm met the tow-headed kid in the second or third round of the 1937 championship at Forest Hills. McNeill was an unknown stripling with nothing to recommend him except his beautifully delivered shots, a stout jaw and the quiet air of a real sportsman. He forced Von Cramm to four sets, and when it was over the German, who was a great tennis player, said:

"I wouldn't want to meet him three years hence." Three years hence, almost to the day, McNeill won the American championship, which is now the world's championship what with the passing of Wimbledon.

Earl Deitrich, who ran the tournament at Forest Hills and ran it very well indeed, was the first to congratulate McNeill after that blistering 5-set victory over Bobby Riggs. It was that final backhand drive that spelled victory for him.

The crowd had yelled and littered the center court with its seat cushions, as is the tradition. But when Deitrich, who was a swell guy for a tennis official, stuck out his paw and shook hands with O'neill, a slow smile spread over the kid's face and he said, wonderingly, "Gosh, I'm the champ." He was that keyed up.

This McNeill is no tennis bum. He plays the tournament circuit and, like the others, does so at no expense to himself. But he's a higher class fellow from the cuffs of his specially tailored slacks to the jut of his determined jaw. He was an honor student in college and is looking for a job. He's only 22.

McNeill gave himself a year or two to play, after he left Kenyon College. But if he had failed to win the National this year he probably would have quit the game. He has a horror of becoming a tennis tramp, and we hope he never gets over it.

McNeill is a real sportsman, and you don't see too many of them around. It took a kind of courage to do something he did when the score stood 5-4 in his favor in the fifth and final set of his match. Riggs was serving. If McNeill could break through that service he would become champion, with maybe a professional offer, or a couple of years of fine living on the cuff, as an amateur, at his beck and call. There was, too, the thrill of becoming champ.

On the first point of that game, with the score 5-4 in his favor, Riggs put away a shot at the net. But the umpire ruled that the tip of Riggs' shoe had touched a loose strand of the net, and under the rules of tennis that counts against the bloke who thus makes a point. The score thus was announced as 0-15, in McNeill's favor, and it looked like a great break for the kid.

But he marched over into the other court, and when the stricken Riggs served to him McNeill cranked up and deliberately hit the ball many yards out of the court. He did not have to do that. The decision by the umpire was fair and final, but it was a technicality and the kid figured he'd rather not win than win because of that.

There is a fair chance that he will turn pro for a while, to get the nest egg he'll need for his business life.

25,000 See Collegians Outclassed

Washington Uses Three Backfields In Boston Grid Exhibition Game

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

Boston, Mass., Sept. 10.—Three Redskins backfields, each displaying a neat scoring punch, romped to a 35-12 victory here tonight over the Eastern Collegiate All-Stars—the team the New York Giants couldn't beat.

What local writers said was the largest throng ever to see a professional football game in Boston, a crowd of more than 25,000, turned out in Fenway Park under threatening skies to see the college heroes try to duplicate a 16-7 victory over the Giants last week.

With the veteran backfield of Sammy Baugh, Ernie Pinckert, Ed Justice and Max Krause starting behind a seasoned line, the Redskins exploded a pair of touchdowns on the collegians the first two times they handled the ball.

Coach Ray Flaherty immediately sent in a rookie backfield and a flock of new linemen, and the All-Stars answered this affront in the second quarter by hurrying one over after John Craig, former Lafayette center, recovered Bob McChesney's fumble on the Redskins' 30.

Dick Todd Makes Score

In the second half, the Skins' second backfield combination of Frank Filchock, Dick Todd, Wilbur Moore and Red Morgan took the ball over with a 66-yard march down the field featured by Frank's 18-yard pass to Todd on the Collegians' 12. It was Todd who, after a 15-yard gallop to the three, plunged over for the third score. Sandy Sanford, rookie end from Alabama, had converted twice before, and Bo Russell kept up the precedent.

Back into the game came Rookies Roy Zimmerman, Bob Hoffman, Ray Hare and Bob Seymour, and a few moments later the Collegians had another score.

The rookie quartet, with good blocking, was making rapid progress down the field when Bill Tranavitch, former Rutgers star, intercepted Zimmerman's pass in midfield and ran it back to the Redskins' 20 before Roy overhauled him. An offside penalty moved it to the 15, and then Ronnie Cahill, the great passing running back from Holy Cross, ran through the Skins' entire left wall for the Collegians' second score. Eddie Boell, N. Y. U. star of 1939, had his placement blocked by the entire Redskin line.

Zimmerman Scores Easily

After taking the Collegians' kickoff on their own 35, the rookie contingent knuckled down with Zimmerman and Seymour setting the pace to another score. Zimmerman, former San Jose State back, galloped 33 yards, Seymour moved the ball up 7 more and then Zimmerman executed a beautiful cutback to go 27 yards and over the goal line unmolested. He tossed a pass to Hare for the extra point.

The Redskins' first touchdown drive was strictly a trip by air, with Sammy Baugh tossing ten passes and completing eight. The first went to Malone for 10 on the Skins' 48. Justice dropped the next one, and then Malone went down to the Stars' 33 to catch another perfect throw. A shovel pass to Millner put the ball on the 13, Pinckert took another for 3, and then Max Krause picked up 3 on the only running play.

After a gain of 1 yard on a pass from Baugh to Krause, Malone stepped over the goal line, eluded Rutger's Bill Tranavitch for the catch and the score. Sandy Sanford came in to convert.

The Collegians were unable to get anywhere after the kick-off and punted to Sammy Baugh on the Skins' 20. He returned to the 36, failed to connect with a toss to Sanford and then sent a shovel pass to Millner that was good for 16 yards. Jim Meade and Ed Justice moved the ball down to the 38, and then Baugh faded back for a long heave that Sanford barely caught in his finger tips on the goal line. The Alabama rookie then converted to put the Skins out front, 14-0.

Rookie Backfield Goes In

Here Flaherty sent in a rookie backfield of Roy Zimmerman, Bob Hoffman, Bob Seymour and Ray Hare, and a few moments later Hoffman intercepted Bill Hutchins' pass on the Redskin 30, where the Stars had advanced the ball after officials gave them the ball on the Skin 35 on grounds that Bob Titchenal, rookie center, had interfered with Hutchin's pass to end Harlan Gustafson.

The rookies started out in high gear with Bob McChesney taking a 15-yard pass from Zimmerman. But misfortune struck, and McChesney fumbled, Johnny Quigg, Lafayette center, recovering on the Skins' 30.

District Pair Qualify in U. S. Amateur

Bogart, Skinker Make Grade as Billy Shea Misses

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

A Staff Correspondent

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Two Washington schoolboys with good golf games and hearts as big as pineapples assured themselves of at least another day's stay in the National Amateur Championship here today at Winged Foot by qualifying well within the limit but several strokes back of Richard D. Chapman, the home-town stroker who won the medal with five strokes to spare.

Earle Skinker, the 19-year-old Columbia Country Club star, paced his buddy and roommate, District Amateur Champion Ralph Bogart, into the match play rounds by a single stroke with a 75 and 151 total for the 36 holes to Bogart's 77 and 152 score. The third Washingtonian, Billy Shea, started with a double bogey six and could never get going, finishing with 81 and 164.

Chapman, the 29-year-old socialite, with a winning tournament record over the last decade, started with a pair of birdies over a course he knows by heart and finished with a 69 and 140 total for the twin qualifying rounds. His five-stroke margin over Defending Champion Bud Ward and W. B. (Duff) McCullough, one of Philadelphia's top amateurs, is a 44-year record in the championship.

Scores of 154 and better qualified, while eight players with 155s played off for seven places in the championship. The low 64 swing into match play rounds at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and the winners meet in the afternoon to reduce the field to 16.

Goodman Fails

Out of the championship in one of the biggest upsets in years was a former champion and runner-up and National Open titlist, Johnny Goodman, of Omaha. Goodman was off the fairway only twice from the tee in 36 holes, but he couldn't get the ball in the cup and finished with 78, 80—158. He had company in his misery, however. Three other former champions missed. George Dunlap, of Pinehurst, who took two 7s and was a single shot out with 156; Chick Evans, the grand old man of the National Amateur at 48, who required 79, 85, and Francis Ouimet, the Bostonian, who finished with 82, 84—166.

Johnny Cree, the New Yorker, who was only a stroke off Maurice McCarthy's medal pace yesterday, took 9 on the fifteenth hole and missed out with an 87 onto his first day's 71 for 158. Robert C. Clark, the National Publinks Champion, who made the mistake of saying the publinks was tougher than the amateur, played in this event on invitation of the U. S. G. A. and failed to qualify with a 164 total.

Tommy Barnes Loses

Tommy Barnes, of Atlanta, was the player who missed out in the playoff for the seven places, while among those who made the grade on the first hole of the "quick-death" affair was Bobby Dunkelberger, medalist in the Chevy Chase Invitation, from Greensboro, N. C. He is a former French and Southern Amateur champion.

Bud Ward, the odds-on favorite to retain his title, was on his stick for the first time on the back nine when he played the first five holes in three under par. He slipped over twice and finished with 35—38, 73—72, 145. McCullough, who tied the champ with the second best total of 145, had a 71 today.

Maurice McCarthy, the first day's leader from Cincinnati and a former intercollegiate champion from Georgetown U., was among a quartet tied for third with 146. McCarthy slipped to 74 today, playing easily, while the others were Tom

Triple Play Tops Nat Victory Over White Sox

Ken Chase Wins Fourteenth Victory, 5-2, as Mates Stop Ninth Inning Rally With Bang

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Interwining an extra-base hit attack with Ken Chase's six-hit pitching and flossing the mixture with a game-ending triple play the Senators opened their final Western trip with a 5-to-2 victory over the White Sox today.

Doubles by Chase himself and George Case and a triple by Buddy Lewis, hit in succession off Jack Knot in the fifth inning, pounded in the decisive three runs, while Jake Early's homer in the sixth and Jack Sanford's double in the second inning, plus one of five Chicago errors, scored the other runs. The defeat ended a string of six straight victories for Knott and gave Chase his fourteenth victory against fourteen defeats.

Second of Season

The triple play, the second in the American League this year, was set up when Taft Wright walked and Mike Tresh singled. Bob Kennedy, who had warmed up for the occasion by lining into a double play in the seventh, lined to Jimmy Bloodworth. Bloodworth tossed to Sherry Robertson on second to double Wright and Robertson completed the triple play by throwing to Jack Sanford before Tresh could get back to first.

The cold weather may have had something to do with the spell of three fumbles that seized the Sox in the second inning. Sanford opened with a double to left and took third while Robertson was reaching first on Webb's fumble. Early bounced to Kuhel, whose throw had Sanford speared at the plate. However, Tresh dropped the ball after the tag and Sanford scored. Chase bunted and forced Robertson at third, Kuhel to Kennedy. Knott fumbled Case's grounder, loading the bases, but Lewis hit into a double play, Webb to Appling to Kuhel.

Wild Trow Helps

Appling opened the home second with a single, after which Wright bounced to Sanford, who threw wide in an attempt to force Appling at second. Tresh singled to center scoring Appling, but Wright was out trying to reach third. Tresh

Gophers Losing No Time Preparing For Washington

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Sept. 10.—Minnesota's Gophers today got down to the serious business of preparing for their early-season intersectional game with Washington by indulging in two long practice sessions that included dummy scrimmage, calisthenics and work on the tackling dummies.

There was only one sophomore on the first eleven that Coach Bernie Bierman designated for the initial practice. He was Dick Wildung, of Luverne, at left tackle. In the morning drill, Bierman assigned his two ace halfbacks—George Franck and Bruce Smith—to the line-up, indicating he would use them interchangeably between the two positions. Franck was missing from the afternoon practice because of an upset stomach.

Idle Indians, In Lead, Play Yanks Twice

Feller and Smith Will Hurl Today Before 40,000 Fans

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Cleveland, Sept. 10. — Without moving a muscle, the Cleveland Indians moved into the league lead once more today, thanks to Detroit's loss to the Red Sox, but tomorrow the Indians will be strictly on their own.

Tomorrow, it's the Indians against the Yankees—in a double-header. They'll be face to face with the team that dug itself out of the second division and with an inspired rush is now carrying the fight to Cleveland. Big Municipal Stadium here will be the setting for the season's most crucial series.

The Indians, back on top again even if they were endowed with the lead this time, will toss Bob Feller at the Yankees in the first game tomorrow. Left-handed Al Smith will pitch the second for Cleveland.

Rooky Goes to Hill

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees will counter with his prize rookie, Ernie Bonham, winner of four straight, against Feller in the opener. For the second game he has reserved his veteran ace, Red Ruffing.

The double-header, created by today's rain that kept both teams in the dugouts until it was officially called off, is expected to draw 40,000 to the stadium. It is the magnetism of Feller vs. the Yankees and what may be the final chance of the Indians to deliver a body blow to the challenging Yanks that will turn the fans out.

The Indians were benefited by the day's rain to the extent that it will give Feller, who worked in a two-inning relief role on Sunday, an additional and welcome day of rest. The Indians, however, are not ready for a peak performance. On the sidelines with leg injuries are Hal Trosky and Roy Weatherly, two of the three .300 hitters on the club. They will be available only for

Cronin's Double and Carey's Single Ends Battle; Benton Gets Credit for Defeat

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 10.—Robert Moses Grove, the aging but still potent Tiger-tamer, went the route for the Boston Red Sox in a 13-inning baseball thriller today to drop the Detroit Tigers into second place in the torrid American League race.

Tom Carey's single off Relief Pitcher Alton Benton scored Joe Cronin from second base with the winning run to give Boston a 6-to-5 decision and Grove his seventh victory of the season.

Detroit's defeat restored the idle Cleveland Indians, rained out of their game with the New York Yankees, to the league leadership, with a .5714 to .5704 margin over the Tigers. The Yankees are only 2 points back of Detroit, at .568.

Old Mose's prospects didn't look rosy in the first inning as the Tigers pounced on the veteran southpaw for three hits and as many runs. Hank Greenberg parked one of Lefty's pitches in the upper leftfield pavilion with Bruce Campbell and Charley Gehringer on base. It was Greenberg's thirtieth home run of the year.

Buck Newsom Retires

Grove, who admits to an age of 40 years in the record books, settled down to blank the Tigers for five innings while his mates pecked away at the Detroit lead and finally overcame it.

Big Louie (Buck) Newsom started for Detroit, seeking his nineteenth victory of the season, and pitched for 12 innings, finally retiring for a pinch hitter. Benton was charged with the defeat.

In the end it was Grove's mastery over Rudy York, chunky Detroit first baseman, that decided the game. York, whose home runs have broken up two games in the Tigers' favor in the past week, went to the plate seven times today and connected safely but once.

With the score tied and the bases loaded in the ninth inning, York hit a grounder to Cronin forcing Greenberg at second to retire the side. Grove fanned York for the third out in the eleventh, with Greenberg on first and Gehringer on second, and struck him out again in the thirteenth, with Campbell on second, for the game's final out.

Finney Gets Triple

The Sox started trimming Detroit's three-run lead in the second inning when Ted Williams walked and scored on Lou Finney's triple to right. Singles by Dominic DiMaggio and Roger Cramer and a walk to Jimmie Foxx loaded the bases in the third, DiMaggio scoring as Williams hit into a force play.

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 10.—A six-run barrage in the second inning gave Dayton, Ohio, a 7-to-4 victory over the Washington Brewers today and ended the Brewers' hopes for a National Amateur baseball championship.

J. Murphy, Dayton centerfielder, opened the second with a home run into leftfield. Prost walked and, after the next two men went out, Wolff and Paxton walked to fill the bases.

After adding another in the sixth, the Brewers really threatened in the eighth after two were out. Garvey walked, Colliflower doubled to right and Knight dropped a Texas leaguer back of second to bring them home.

The defeat eliminated the Brewers from the tournament. They reached the semifinals last year and were one of the pretourney favorites for a place in the finals.

Pirates Down Phillies Twice; WarrenBeaned

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—The cellar-mired Phillies lost two ball games by lopsided scores and their first string catcher, probably for the remainder of the season today. The damage resulted from an encounter with Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Bucs belted the offerings of Doc Prothro's hurlers for 22 runs, winning the first game, 11 to 3, and the second, 11 to 1.

Ben Warren, of the Phils, was knocked unconscious by Truett Sewell's fast ball while batting in the fourth inning of the afterpiece. He was taken to a hospital for treatment of a severe concussion.

The Pirates got to Hughie Mulcahy for five runs in the first two innings of the first game and batted around in the third as Maurice Van Robay's led the attack with a home run with two men on bases. Mulcahy retired in the same inning and was charged with the defeat.

The nightcap started out as a pitchers' duel, but the Pirates turned it into a runaway when they came up to bat in the fourth.

Medalists Prevail In Women's Events

Mrs. Stokes Scores 5-4 Victory at Manor; Mrs. Godfrey Breezes to Triumph Over Mrs. Goetzman at Congressional Club

Threatening skies failed to dampen hostilities over six golf courses in this vicinity yesterday as feminine golfers played first round matches in pursuit of club championships.

In every case, the medalist came through her first match with flying colors. The low qualifier, Manor Country Club's Mrs. W. R. Stokes, started her search of the title over her home layout with a 5-and-4 victory over Mrs. H. J. Beech. Mrs. Stokes had an 82 over the hilly course Monday, her score yesterday was slightly higher because of the wind.

Mrs. J. W. Godfrey, at Congressional, had no trouble whatever as she disosed of Mrs. G. F. Goetzman. Other medalist winners after the opening round included Mrs. R. T. Kreuzburg, at Kenwood; Mrs. Wilda Martin, at Washington Golf and Country Club, and Mrs. J. A. Marr, at Columbia.

Today's pairings call for engagements between first and second, and third and fourth winners in each flight. Consolations will bring together first and second and third and fourth losers. Play at each club will start at 9 a. m.

Pete Bostwick Four Is Beaten By Great Neck

Stewart Iglehart Stars as His Mates Triumph, 4 to 3

By the Associated Press

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Stewart Iglehart's Great Neck four rode into the National Open Polo Championship final round today when the 10-goal expert coaxed his partners to a 4-3 triumph over Pete Bostwick's quartet.

Iglehart was never better as he boxed the Bostwick riders, but his fine play was nearly nullified as Bostwick's last shot hit the right-hand upright just as the final bell clanged.

Iglehart's team will meet the winner of tomorrow's clash between Gulf Stream and the Gerry-manned Aknusti team Sunday on International Field.

Navy Eleven In Fine Shape At Early Stage

Squads Sent Through Constant Drills at Earliest Time Yet

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Sept. 10.—That Navy's gridiron squad is advancing rapidly was demonstrated today when the players indulged in first actual contact work, four days after the initial practice of the season. This set a new record for speeding drills at Annapolis.

Following a rehearsal of various phases of play, Maj. Emery E. (Swede) Larson, head coach, sent his tentative first and second elevens, selected yesterday, into a 15-minute scrimmage session to top off a day of hard work that the staff of mentors pronounced highly satisfactory. The scrimmaging was not under match conditions, but devoted largely to a drill in spot plays, the so-called varsity combination, headed by Capt. Dick Foster on the right flank, being on the offensive during the whole period. Most of the plays were aerial formations. Some were pulled off with marked effectiveness, while others were stopped by the opposition, whose forces included Bill Busick, triple-threat back, and Jean Flathmann, ponderous tackle of last year's plebes, among other luminaries.

Coach Larson announced more scrimmaging for tomorrow and a regular practice game against Johnny Wilson's plebe aggregation is planned for September 21, week before the varsity opens against William and Mary, while the yearlings will stack up against Georgetown freshmen.

Blocking Drills And Signals Given G. W. Grid Squad

Signal drills and light blocking practice featured George Washington University's workout and Head Coach Bill Reinhart expressed satisfaction with the physical condition of his squad yesterday.

The 34 players, now working out at the Polo Field, were divided into groups of five and six and engaged in light drills.

Assisted by Line Coach Gene Shields, Al Harringer, "Zuzu" Stewart and Art Nowaskey, Reinhart sent the squad through two snappy workouts and indicated that scrimmaging may start either Saturday of this week or the first part of next week.

Walter Fedora, who was recently awarded the title of "best-built life guard in the District," reported in excellent conditoin and, with ohn Clarey, senior tackle, sparked yesterday's workout.

NBA Increases Members Dues; Names Officers

Col. Miller, Retiring President, Urges Body to Better Game

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Sept. 10.—The National Boxing Association voted at its convention today to increase dues 25 per cent to cover deficits incurred through failure of State members to pay their assessments.

Dues of Canadian members were waived for the duration of the war.

Edward C. Foster, of Providence, R. I., retiring N. B. A. secretary, was elected president emeritus and was presented with a testimonial scroll.

Foster, a member of the Rhode Island commission since 1926, was one of the three men who organized the N. B. A. in 1922 and was its president in 1934 and 1935.

Lieut. Col. Harvey Miller, retiring N. B. A. president, told the convention that "the time has come for this outfit to make up its mind whether we are going on with the fight for the better things in boxing or become a stagnant, dormant, spineless outfit."

Jacobs Seeks Injunction to Prevent Armstrong Fight Here

Boxing Czar Wants Champ For Zivic Go

Holds Contract for Hank's Next Title Bout in New York; Setup Very Puzzling

Whether Washington boxing fans will or will not have the benefit of a 15-round welterweight championship fight September 23 between Champion Henry Armstrong and Phil Furr, D. C. contender, was largely a matter of conjecture following yesterday's developments.

Promoter Joe Turner received a telephone call from Armstrong's manager, Eddie Mead, informing him that New York Promoter Mike Jacobs had threatened an injunction against Turner if the fight is held, as planned, at Griffith Stadium.

Jacobs, it is understood, has a contract bearing Armstrong's signature and in which the latter promised following his victory over Lew Jenkins some weeks ago to make his next title defense under Jacobs. A $2,500 forfeit was posted by Hammerin' Hank at the time.

Wants Him for Zivic

Jacobs wants Armstrong to fight Fritzie Zivic at Madison Square Garden on October 3. He certainly doesn't want Henry taking a chance on losing his title two weeks previous to that in a bout here. Thus his reported threat of an injunction against Turner. The latter's sentiment, voiced through Matchmaker Gabe Menendez, was "Let Jacobs bring an injunction. I also have a contract with Armstrong. We'll see who and what city puts on the scrap."

Meanwhile, the National Boxing Association, with headquarters here, was expected to get in the picture by ranking Armstrong's prospective opponent here—Furr—among the leading contenders for the flailing Negro's title. Reason for the expectation was that Furr owns a technical knockout victory over Steve Mamakos, who in turn battled Milt Aron, top N. B. A. challenger to a draw several nights ago.

Action on Deal Delayed

From New York came word that the New York State athletic commission had postponed for a week its action on the whole affair. However, it was assumed that if Armstrong chose to fill his Washington contract he would lose his $2,500 forfeit for the Zivic bout and the outcome of the D. C. tangle would not be recognized by the New York commission.

At a meeting of Armstrong's handlers, Zivic's handlers, Promotor Jacobs and the New York commission, Mead's only suggestion was that he try and induce the Washington fight heads to cut the Furr fight from 15 to 12 rounds, thus killing the title aspect of it.

He immediately sent assurances to Turner that the District fight would go on, no matter what may be the consequences. He also said that he and Armstrong would come to Washington later in the week, at which time he hoped the innumerable angles of the thing might be ironed out.

got to second on the throw to third and advanced another base while Bloodworth was throwing out Kennedy. Robertson threw out Knott to keep the score a 1-1 tie.

The cluster of three runs that put the Senators ahead, 4 to 1, in the fifth started when Chase led off with a double and scored on Case's double. Lewis tripled, scoring Case. Walker popped to Webb, but Lewis got home and Travis to first as Appling executed the fourth Sox error, a fumble of Lewis' bouncer. Bloodworth and Sanford failed to carry on.

The Sox got one run home in their end of the fifth. Kennedy singled to right, then Robertson fumbled Knott's double play grounder, Kennedy reaching second and Knott first. Webb struck out, but Kreevich singled to center, Kennedy scoring. Chase threw out Kuhel.

After Robertson had fanned at the start of the sixth inning, Early ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then banged his fourth homer of the year. Appling booted Chase's grounder for his second and the Sox's fifth error. Case forced Chase, then Lewis got Knott's only pass. Walker flied to Wright.

Grid Talent Proves Over-Abundant at W.-L. High

Former D. C. Stars Pester Coach for Position on Team

By Bill Burnett

The unusual necessity of saying "no" to one good football player after another who wishes to play with his team sidelights the working hours of Coach Johnny Baker these days, as he prepares Washington Lee High's grid team for a defense of its 1939 undefeated record.

Several times almost every day the former G. W. star receives a visit from some husky youngster, offering to enter the Arlington institution if his talents might be put to use with the grid team. Some of them, Baker reveals, are District of Columbia players who have flunked their subjects at local schools and expect to find an easy berth at W.-L. Others are victims of the D. C. School Board's 19-year age limit, forced to look elsewhere for athletic activity during their last year of high school.

Baker says he wants none of them. The scholastically ineligible would be no more eligible at Washington-Lee than in the District, he says, and he wouldn't use over-age players, either.

Plenty of Material

"We have enough good kids right here in the county," Johnny boasts. "Why should I use a youngster against Western or Central, for instance, who transferred from that school because he was over 19 years old? Our relations with D. C. teams are too good to jeopardize them by such a trick."

From indications at present, Baker has all the "good kids" he can use, and then some. Lettermen on the huge squad are Ends Warren Kelly and Ralph Shumway; Tackles Ray Shepherd, Merrill Hoover and Ed Johnson; Guard Lou Wilson, and Backs Russ Arnaud, Rod Gaumnit and Leo Urbanske. Those nine players form a fine working foundation for as good a team as the Little Generals have ever had.

Except for scholastic difficulties of its own, W.-L. might boast three more valuable first-stringers from the 1939 club. Carl Ahalt, guard; Jim French, passing and kicking fullback, and Vinny Kirchner, quarterback and a devastating blocker, all felt the knife because of low grades. They will not play, according to Baker, despite the fact they will have a year of high school ball due them.

Two youths up from the junior varsity may see action at guard before the season is far gone. They are Gordon Patterson and Bob Wilson. Exceptionally good backfield prospects are Fon Montgomery, Ernest Gillenwaters and Jimmy Sprinkle.

These are the players that Coach Baker thinks will bear the burden this season. They have a brilliant record to defend. Last season the Little Generals were triumphant in 10 games, scored 218 points to the opposition's 42. Probably their most cherished victories were over Western, Interhigh champion, and Central.

Idle Indians Gain Lead; Face Yanks

The Yankees, save for the absence of Outfielder Tommy Henrich, who is under treatment for a wrenched leg, are at peak strength. George Selkirk will replace Henrich against Feller's pitching, and Jake Powell will be in rightfield against the southpaw hurling of Smith in the second game.

The slumping Indians, losers of nine of their last eleven games, will be meeting in the Yanks a team that has been setting a torrid pace in its August-September drive to win the pennant. Since August 18, the Yanks have lopped ten games off the Indians' lead. Only a half game separates the Yankees and Indians tonight.

A double victory tomorrow would move the Yankees into the league lead for the first time this season, and it is an inspired gang of New York players that is poised for tomorrow's big effort.

Yankees Are Eager

In the Yankee dressing room today with rain threatening to wash out the game, the Yanks were a happy, eager crew hopeful that the game would go on. "We'll be at Feller today, and anybody else they throw in there tomorrow and that will be the finish of the Indians," said a Yankee pitcher.

Across the way in their own dressing room, the Indians' attitude was one of grimness. The Cleveland club is feeling keenly its horrible slump and there was little conversation. Strained relations between the players and Manager Oscar Vitt were apparent.

Told about the Indians' apparent worry over the outcome, Manager Joe McCarthy laughed. "What has Vitt got to worry about? He's got the best pitcher in the world, hasn't he?"

It was a sincere compliment to Feller by the Yankees' manager, but there was obviously nothing genuine in McCarthy's tone when he asked what Vitt had to worry about. The inference was plain enough. Vitt had to worry about the Yankees.

Bill Ackerman On Hunting

Duck Is Early Bird As Nimrods Arrive At Holland Point

Headed for Holland Point Bar at break o' day Sunday morning, we had the idea we were the only early bird in that neck of the woods, but 'twasn't so. Feeding in the shallow water back of No. 3 black beacon was one earlier than us—a plump bluebill duck. That would be a minor thrill to hunters in this section, but nevertheless, it was the first duck, not counting the native mallard and black ducks that summer here.

ACKERMAN

Which brings to mind Secretary of Interior Ickes' modification of the Federal duck-hunting laws for the season of 1940. It is fully justified, according to the More Game Birds Foundation not only because of the natural increase in wildfowl due to a considerable extent to the stringent regulations of the past few years but from the standpoint of better law enforcement.

Foundation studies show it is one thing to make regulations and another to enforce them . . . particularly with only a few score of Federal game wardens to patrol the entire United States. For real enforcement, dependence must be placed upon cooperation of State game warden forces. But this cannot be expected under the inequalities of hunting opportunities previously accorded the States by Federal authorities.

Lengthening the season from 45 to 60 days and permitting shooting from sunrise instead of 7 a. m. will do much toward making the seasons for all States more equitable. During the shorter season of last fall, mild weather in the North delayed the southward migration of all waterfowl. Hence, little shooting of wildfowl was available until the last few days of the legal shooting period. Southern States benefited, however, and, because they did, bred disrespect in the hearts of Northern hunters for Federal regulations and encouraged, illegal, afterseason shooting and discouraged enforcement in the States concerned.

Some groups opposed to hunting continually agitate for more restrictions on hunting and the recreation of some 7,000,000 sportsmen and their ill-advised efforts often tend to defeat the purpose of sound conservation by actually increasing the illegal take of the very species which need conserving most.

Gerry Strang, C. U. Grid Star, Given Respite From War

British Subject Will Not Be Called Until After Graduation, Giving Cards a Break

Assured by recruiting officials of His Majesty's government, that he will not be called for active service until after graduatino this June, Jerry Strang, fleet Catholic University end, and native of Ottawa, Canada, will register as an alien with Uncle Sam this week.

Just one year ago, with the opening of the football season, it was feared that Gerry would be called to the colors. A quick trip to Ottawa, at which time he was granted a special visa, good for two years in this country, now relieves him of active service until June.

Three years ago, shortly before coming to Catholic University, Gerry enlisted with the Canadian Air Corps Reserves. Simultaneously, he received notice to report to both the Air Corps Reserves and Catholic University. With the situation not nearly so tense in those days, Gerry experienced little trouble in getting a release in order to report to Brookland. Had he been called by the army one or two days before he received notice from Catholic University, chances are Gerry today would be flying across the English Channel aiding Britain in its present struggle.

Laid up for the past three days with a heavy cold and fever, Gerry viewed the present situation with alarm yesterday, but felt sure Britain would be successful in its defense of the British Isles. Tucked in tightly under heavy blankets on the cot of his dormitory room Gerry, however, gave reason for alarm.

"Things must be pretty bad when they start calling up married men," Gerry said. "The last I heard they had plenty of men. Now my married brother tells me in a letter he has been called for active service in the air corps and my other single brother, too, was called up to serve as a gunner in the same branch of service. I hope my visa holds out so I can graduate in June."

Charlotte Hall Starts Drills; 22 Boys Report

Coach Must Build Team From Group of Inexperienced Players

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Sept. 10.—Charlotte Hall Military Academy launched its 1940 football training season as 22 athletes went through two long workouts under the direction of Coach Pop Ehringer.

In contrast to the star-studded squad which reported to Ehringer on opening day last year, this season's cadet squad is made up of inexperienced youngsters, whose spirit, nevertheless, is the best displayed by a Charlotte Hall squad since Ehringer assumed the coaching reins in 1938.

Ehringer put his charges through two calisthentic drills, then divided the squad, sending the backs through kicking and passing drills and putting the linemen to work on blocking.

Most pleasing sight to Ehringer was his all-veteran "Seven Tank Barriers" line which returns intact this year after compiling a perfect defensive record last season. Composed of Walt Nechey and Bill Sparks at ends, Tom Massey and Bob Boomhower at tackles, Red Watson and Jack Hebrank at guards, and Carlos Ferrer at center, the veteran forward wall appeared to be ready to swing into immediate action.

Ernie Bowersox, only returning backfield insignia winner, is still among the missing, and rumors were heard here today that he may not play football this year. However, Snuffy Smith, 135-pound quarterback, put in an appearance and showed himself to be in the best condition of any squad member. Al Sondheimer, who played with Washington's Devitt Boys' Club last season, also arrived in time to jump into the afternoon session and impress as a passer.

Don Roessler, burly youngster from Baltimore, received the bulk of the coaches' attention today, for Ehringer must find a ball-carrying threat to replace last year's Cuban Express, the graduated Ab Marquez.

Squad members in camp at present are:

Ends—Williams Sparks, Cardiff, Md.; Walter Nechey, Baltimore; William Esham, Berlin, Md.

Tackles—Thomas Massey, Chestertown, Md.; Robert Boomhower, Washington, D. C., and George Bishop, Baltimore.

Guards—Roderick Watson, Charlotte Hall; John Hebrank, Baltimore; John Healey, Washington, D. C., and George Gering, Indianhead, Md.

Centers—Carlos Ferrer, Havana, Cuba, and John Clemson, Westminster, Md.

Dot Traung Defeated In Western Amateur

Tiny Mrs. Wagner Upsets Huskier Foe In First Round; Elizabeth Hicks Also Winner; Marion Miley Triumphs

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Sept. 10.—The little girls of golfdom provided the thrills in first round play of the Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament at the scenic Seattle club today.

Tiny Mrs. Mary Mozel Wagner, 26-year-old Portland, Oreg., housewife, won the match of the day—a 1-up victory over the husky Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, 1936 Western champion.

Another mite, 112-pound, 19-year-old Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., gave par and Miss Margaret Barry, of St. Paul, Minn., a battering to win, 9 and 7.

Georgia Tainter, young Fargo, N. Dak., who is the 1940 women's Western junior champion, shot a par 37 first nine to be three up, and a 10-over-par 49 second nine to finish all square with 16-year-old Betty Jean Rucker, of Spokane, Wash., at the end of the regulation 18 holes. On the 19th, however, the tall and husky Miss Rucker drove out of bounds and took a one-over-par six while Miss Tainter, another of the tourney's undersized competitors, had a five.

Beatrice Barrett, attractive young Minneapolis, Minn., shotmaker, staged the comeback of the day to defeat Jessie Miller, of Astoria, Ore., on the nineteenth. Miss Barrett was dormie three before she won the final three holes and birdied the nineteenth for her triumph.

Long-driving Nancy Hurst, of Portland, defeated Mary Agnes Wall, of Menominee, Mich., 5 and 4.

Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., was pressed to defeat Betty Frank, of Seattle, 2 and 1, while Betty Jameson, the national champion from San Antonio, Tex., shot sub-par golf to defeat Mrs. Carl Jones, of Seattle, 6 and 4.

Dodgers Buy Kampouris From Newark

$15,000 Is Reported Price in Addition To Another Player

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Sept. 10.—The Dodgers announced today they had purchased Alex Kampouris, home-run slugger of the Newark Bears, of the International League, for an undisclosed sum of cash and a player to be named later.

The money involved was believed to have been between $15,000 and $25,000.

By selling the slick-fielding, long-hitting second baseman today the Ne wYork Yankee organization, of which Newark is a unit, escaped having Kampouris fall eligible for the baseball draft whereby any major league club could have claimed him for $7,500.

Although Kampouris is batting a modest .278, he has hit 36 home runs, 23 doubles, 4 tribles and batted in 91 runs.

Kampouris went to Newark this year as part of the deal that sent Nick Witek to the New York Giants, who also gave up $25,000 in cash. With Joe Gordon already on hand and Gerald Priddy due to come up from Kansas City, the Yanks couldn't make room for another second sacker.

Blues Change Camp

Kansas City, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Kansas City Blues will do their 1941 conditioning at Lake Wales, Fla., instead of Haines City, Fla., their training site the last three years.

Four Men Ruled Off Turf by Maryland Racing Commission

Battery Case At Timonium Brings Action

Trainer, Jockey and Two Grooms Barred After Attempted 'Fix' In Thursday's Race

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Timonium, Md., Sept. 10.—Four men were ruled off the turf today at a meeting of the Maryland Racing Commission. They had been suspended here last week as the result of the battery case involving the horse Prairie Man. Trainer James Anderson, Jockey Lynwood Lee and Grooms John Moore and Jack Reinhart were the men banned from the Nation's tracks. Basil A. Hall, owner of Prairie Man, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting.

Prairie Man was entered in last Thursday's seventh race. Track detectives, tipped off that another horse was to be "warmed up" with a battery in a stall, went to the stables, and by accident found two of the men in the stall with Prairie Man applying electricity to him. The detectives held the men and reported to the stewards who ordered the horse scratched and bets refunded.

"Warming up" horses with a battery is a method sometimes used illegally to arouse a horse to make him run his best. Horses owned by Basil Hall will be reinstated along with the owner at the conclusion of the meeting here on Thursday.

Dohoev, a 5-year-old gray mare, proved much the best of a group of eight trying to win the Inverness Farm Purse, featuring the Tuesday program here. With Jockey Willie Kelly, the day's saddle hero aboard, Dohoev won by six lengths in galloping fashion. Frank H. was closest at the finish with Sistaur in third position. Despite a formidable record, Dohoev paid $12.80 after the trip, over the 1 1-16 miles course.

Owned and trained by M. B. Goss, of Winchester, Va., Dohoev won her fifth race in 17 starts and made it nine times in the money for the year.

Dohoev was Jockey Kelly's third straight winner. He brought Beacon Queen home in front in the fifth race after taking the fourth event with Justa Jimime.

Well-played horses figured in a $13.10 payoff in the daily double. Glitter Girl, an entry mate of All Gray, won the first race under a good ride by Apprentice R. Sisto and paid $7.20. Furr Buckle, a $4.40 favorite, ran away with the second event, winner by six lengths.

†Broke down.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—FURR BUCKLE, $4.40, $2.80, $2.50; MISS IDLE, $3.50, $3.10; PRECIOUS TIME, $3.30.
FURR BUCKLE, much the best, set steady pace, drew far out and won with speed in reserve. MISS IDLE was vigorously handled from start and weakened in closing stages. PRECIOUS TIME saved ground and closed gamely. TELL ME had early speed and weakened. SERRANO broke down on backstretch.

Daily Double, GLITTER GIRL and FURR BUCKLE, Paid $13.10

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; claiming; steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Wond handily; place driving. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:07. Winner, Hugh O'Donovan's b. g. (8), by Shrewd King or Southanan—Toy Cap. Trained by R. Albright. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 3:50⅘.

†Lost rider.
Two-dollar mutuls paid—TAM O' SHANTER, $5.20, $2.80, $2.30; FOREST CHARM, $4.00, $2.80; WAR PORT, $2.70.
TAM O' SHANTER, not hurried for mile, moved up gradually and then closed gamely to win in hand. FOREST CHARM set pace far out in front, but weakened gradually after 1½ miles. WAR PORT was restrained early and was held safe when placed to drive. PERFECT LIAR fenced badly. GOLDEN REEL lost rider approaching tenth.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:38½. Off 3:40. Winner, R. C. Waple's b. g. (6), by Jamestown—Galloping Girl. Trained by M. H. Everhart. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:22⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BEACON QUEEN, $7.40, $4.30, $3.60; GOANTELL, $17.60, $8.60; FAIR HAIRED, $5.30.
BEACON QUEEN withstood challenge of SMALL CHANGE and held sway thereafter to win easily. GOANTELL was hard ridden while on inside for 3 furlongs, came wide and closed full of run. FAIR HAIRED was off slowly, moved up menacingly and was tiring at end. PATCHPOCKET closed willingly.

SIXTH RACE—About 1⅛ miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:36½. Off 4:36. Winner, M. B. Goss' gr. m. (5), by Kiev—Doubtful Hours. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:51⅘.

DEAR AL:

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who owns the best part of two race tracks, a breeding farm and a stable of horses, added a new role to his many yesterday when he acted as steward. M. C. (Ty) Shea, who has been holding down the position, was injured before the program began. Shea and Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan went on the fair grounds to get sandwiches. A soft drink truck backed up and struck Shea on the leg. He had to be removed to the hospital. Owner-Trainer Peg Hanna came out in front of the press box eating an ear of corn. Probably took it out of Chief Evergreen's stall. No wonder the old white-faced bum has been looking so thin lately. Jockey Danny Scozza, the Washington boy who broke his arm in a spill at Cumberland, is getting ready to ride again. The cast has been removed and as soon as he can get his muscles hard, he will climb back in the saddle. He was going good when the accident stopped him. The Maryland racing commission ruled four men off the turf at a meeting yesterday. They were involved in the Prairie Man battery case. Basil Hall, owner of the horse, got off lightly, being suspended for the remainder of the meeting. Jockeys Patsy Grant, Beverly Hacker, Carson Kirk and others got in from Wheeling. Bletzacker and Churchill tied for the riding honors with ten winners each at the West Virginia meeting

5% Increase In Crop Yields Seen This Year

'Abundant' Harvest Seen After Favorable August Weather

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that favorable growing conditions during August boosted crop yield prospects at least 5 per cent and virtually assured an "abundant" harvest.

The department said that during August production prospects for major crops increased as follows: Grain sorchums 20 per cent, cotton 12 per cent, spring wheat 11 per cent, oats 8 per cent, barley and flax 5 per cent, beans 3 per cent, corn, potatoes and sweep potatoes 2 per cent and sugar beets 1 per cent.

A few crops showed less favorable prospects September 1 than a month earlier, the department said. Indicated production was down 5 per cent for rice, 2 per cent for tobacco and apples and 1 per cent for peaches and peanuts.

1 Per Cent Larger Yields

Yields per acre are expected to be about 1 per cent larger than last year and 16 per cent above the ten-year ((1929-28) average.

The department placed corn production prospects at 2,297,186,000 bushels, an increase of about 49,000,000 bushels over the August 1 forecast. Such a crop would be considerably below last year's harvest of 2,619,137,000 bushels, but would about equal the ten-year average of 2,299,342,000 bushels.

Supplementing corn production for livestock feeding needs would be a record surplus of more than 650,000,000 bushels of old corn and prospects for a record crop of hay and forage crops, the department said.

Fruits Seen Lower

Wheat production was placed at 783,560,000 bushels, an increase of 22,937,000 bushels above the August forecast. This estimate compared with 754,971,000 bushels harvested last year and with 754,685,000 bushels fort he ten-year average. The spring wheat crop was estimated at 227,721,000 bushels with 191,540,000 bushels last year and a ten-year average of 183,619,000 bushels.

The department said fruit production was expected to be below last year's large crop. Commercial vegetable production, which has been increasing rapidly, will be large although it may not be much above last year.

U. S. Tobacco Exports Reach Three-Year Low

The steady decline in exports of American tobacco that started with the outbreak of European hostilities continued through the first seven months of this year, pushing the total value of exports to a new three-year low.

Department of Commerce figures list at $32,446,627 the total value of manufactured and unmanufactured tobacco products sent abroad during the first sever. months of 1940. This was a drop of $12,000,000 from 1939 and $24,000,000 from 1938.

Butter Prices Shoot Up On Government Bid

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Butter prices shot up 35 points to two-week highs in the futures market today as the Federally financed Dairy Products Marketing Association reentered the cash market for the first time since last March.

The Federal stabilization agency's offer to pay 27 cents a pound—1 cent under the price it paid last March—touched off active short-covering and speculative buying, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange reported.

U. S. Steel Shipments Up Sharply in Month

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—August shipments of finished steel products by United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries jumped to 1,455,604 net tons from 1,296,887 in July and were the highest since April, 1937, when 1,485,231 tons were shipped. Shipments in August last year totaled 885,636 tons.

For the first eight months of the year, shipments rose to 9,040,889 tons from 6,496,404 in the comparable stretch in 1939, a gain of 2,671,485.

1941 Chevrolets Are Previewed; 'Big Year' Seen

Detroit, Sept. 10 (AP).—Chevrolet, which produced more than 25 per cent of all the motorcars assembled during the model season just ended showed its 1941 cars today to nearly 300 news writers and trade publication representatives with predictions from company officials that "another big year lies ahead."

Addressing a dealers' meeting last night, C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors, of which Chevrolet is the leading producing unit, said Chevrolet would produce another 1,000,000 cars in 1941 and added:

"The immediate business future is good and our only worry is the possibility of interruption of production. Our working agreement with the union terminates this fall, but we have every reason to believe that we will be able to continue our friendly relations."

Ford has scheduled a press preview of 1941 models for tomorrow and on Thursday Chrysler will show the news and trade journal writers its Chrysler, Dodge and De Soto models. The "preview season" will end with the Packard showing next Monday.

Plymouth, volume leader of the Chrysler organization, already has its 1941 models on display. Chevrolet will present its new units publicly on September 21 and Ford has set September 27 for public introduction.

Westinghouse's August Orders Best on Record

Pittsburgh, Sept. 10 (AP).—Reflecting vast spending for national defense, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. today reported August was the "biggest month" in its history and that its employment was nearing the peaks of 1937 and 1929.

Bolstered by $36,000,000 worth of emergency orders for the Government's preparedness program, the month's business totaled $57,352,054, topping the prevoius monthly record of $50,000,000 in October, 1917, business for 1940 was running 67.1 per cent ahead of the same period last year.

At the beginning of August, the company had 52,300 persons on the payroll, 9,000 more than a year ago.

Presidnet George H. Bucher said, however, the defense orders had been taken "at a very moderate profit" because "we want to do our part."

Cash Circulation Jumps in August

A $1.28 jump in cash in circulation per person in the United States was reported by the Treasury yesterday as having occurred during August.

The average citizen went into the month with $59.63 of currency and coins in his purse and wound up the month with $60.91. There was $8,057,566,697 to divide on August 31.

Except for a few days during the 1933 banking holiday, this was an all time record. The figure, however, has been going up nearly every month for the last few years.

Canadian War Loan Sells at Slower Rate

Ottawa, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press)—Private subscriptions to Canada's $300,000,000 second war loan are coming in at a slower rate than for the first $200,000,000 war loan, an official statement said today. Cash sales totaled about $141,000,000 by noon.

The first war loan last January was heavily over-subscribed, a large response coming from small investors.

Home Building Climb of 38% Noted in July

$101,200,200 Volume Up $19,927,000 Over Preceding Month

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Home building advanced sharply in July, gaining 38 per cent over the preceding month, it is announced by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The percentage increase is based on analysis of the residential construction index adjusted for normal seasonal variations. The index stood at 53.2 for July as against 36.6 in June, index base of 100 used being for 1926.

Not only did residential building rise in July as compared with the previous month but July construction was also 21 per cent better than in July, 1939, when the index was 43.9. Home construction in cities of 10,000 and more population during the first seven months of 1940 aggregated 171,794 units, costing $610,362,100. This compares with 159,884 units erected in the first seven months of last year at a cost of $476,941,100.

In July, new dwellings built or projected by all types of builders amounted to 28,463 and their value was $101,200,200. In the preceding month there were 22,476 units valued at $81,273,200 and in July, 1939, 23,479 units were reported with a valuation of $85,610,100.

For some time, building figures in cities generally, have reflected a forward trend in single-family dwelling erection and the bulk of the gain has been due to broadening activity on the part of private builders. The board's statistics on dwelling units in cities are based on monthly study of an analysis of construction permits reported to the United States Department of Labor.

Local Salesman Honored

Warren S. Stone, of the Washington branch of the New York Life Insurance Co., has qualified for membership in the Top 200 Club for the past 12 months. This is an organization of 200 of the leading salesmen out of 7,000 representatives throughout the country. Mr. Stone, a member of the American College of Life Underwriters, is the leading agent of New York Life in the Washington territory for the year ended August 15, according to Earl D. Krewson, director of the Washington branch office.

P.-C. A. Traffic Continues Up

More revenue passengers have been carried by Pennsylvania-Central Airlines in the first eight months of 1940 than were carried during the entire year of 1939, it was announced yesterday by Edward Sullivan, general traffic manager of the air line. One hundred and thirty-five thousand eight hundred and seven revenue passengers have flown P.-C. A. in the first eight months of this year, representing an 11.04 per cent increase over the 122,303 revenue passengers last year. Pennsylvania-Central's traffic so far this year is running 79.37 per cent ahead of last year.

Foreign Markets

London, Sept. 10 (AP).—The securities market kept its price balance fairly well today in the face of severe bombing of the city itself. While most changes were toward lower level, no concerted selling pressure developed. British government bonds lost an outsied of ¾ point but steadied at the declines. Kaffirs were offered from Johannesburg. Domestic rails, possibly as a result of fears of war damage, declined. Most coppers and other base metals maintained an even course, along with oils and rubbers.

Liverpool.—Cotton futures lost 1 to 4 points today under influence of the continued decline in the Egyptian market, where traders were worried about the possible unsettling effect of freer supplies in the near future.

Defense Head Says Boost in Lumber Prices Unjustified

By the Associated Press

Defense Commissioner Leon Henderson asserted yesterday that the United States preparedness program did not justify any increase in lumber prices, and that recent boosts resulted from "unfounded rumors" of defense needs.

Those rumors, he said, arose from the award of several contracts for cantonments. Lumber requirements for that construction are well within the normal capacity of the industry, Henderson asserted.

Henderson also said that well-informed lumbermen themselves believed that the present production situation would provide enough lumber for defense agencies, as well as civilians, "at reasonable prices."

$15,000,000 Issues Of Dow Chemical Offered to Public

First public offering of newly registered industrial securities since amendment of the Securities Act liberalized the waiting period required for the sale of new issues is being made on behalf of the Dow Chemical Co. The offering by a group of seven investment banking firms headed by Smith, Barney & Co., consists of two issues of debentures—$7,500,000 of 10-year 2¼ per cent debentures due September 1, 1950, priced at 101½, and $7,500,000 of 1 to 10-year serial debentures due annually in amounts of $750,000 and priced at 100 for all maturities.

Approximately two-thirds of the net proceeds from the sale of the two issues of debentures and from an offering to stockholders of 103,199 shares of common stock at $100 a share will be added to the cash funds of the company for development and plant expansion. Of the net proceeds, the company will apply $5,125,000 to the redemption of its outstanding $5,000,000 principal amount of 15-year 3 per cent debentures at 102½.

Sonny McNew, Young Sailor, In Cup Races

13-Year-Old Pilot Will Compete in President's Events

To 13-year-old Patricia (Sonny) McKnew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. McKnew, of Washington, will go the honor of being the youngest participant in the sailing races of the President's Cup Regatta scheduled Saturday and Sunday off Hains Point.

Young Miss McKnew's entry was received yesterday by H. Arthur Clephane, sailing chairman, and raised the number of entries to more than 125.

Sonny's boat, the Frolic, is a comet from the Gibson Island fleet. She will compete in the regatta and enter the comet races for the first time, Clephane stated.

Sonny's dad bought Frolic this summer from Bill White, a well-known Washington sailor, who last season was the comet fleet champion hereabouts.

Entries weer received yesterday from Arthur Zucker, who is entering his Gem, a comet from the Raritan Yacht Club, Perth Amboy, N. J., and from Fred Carlson, who is entering Puddles II, a 20-footer, from the Annapolis Yach Club.

A twelfth class was added to the sailing races yesterday by Clephane as a result of an overabundance of entries from the Sea Scouts of the Corinthian Yacht Club. The latest will be for class C yachts, boats 12 feet and under. Two other handicap groups are on the program which opens Saturday at 1:30. They are class A for boats more than 18 feet and class B for yachts under 18.

Sea Scouts will enter three of the 12 classes, Frederick Tilp, Skipper, informed Clephane. The 23-foot Bobcat and Wildcat will enter Class A. Hardtack, a 16-foot catboat, will compete in Class B. Sea Scouts also will have in Class C Sizzle, Kitten, Hoya I, Hoya II, Hoya III—all 10-foot sailing dinghies.

Registration of boats and assignment of skippers will take place at Capital Yacht Club Friday morning.

Don McNeill Heads S. American Tour

New York, Sept. 10 (AP).—Don McNeill, newly crowned National Singles tennis champion, will head an invasion of South America next month if a financial agreement is reached with the Argentine Lawn Tennis Association.

Ed Moss, secretary of the U. S. L. T. A., said today that Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg.; Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., and Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, will accompany McNeill.

Plans call for the quartet to sail around the middle of October for Buenos Aires. The Argentine association also is trying to arrange matches in Uruguay and Brazil, according to Moss.

Montsin Captures Larkspur Purse

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP).—Montsin, a 4-year-old filly owned by Hyman Friedberg and Edmund Axton, of Lexington, Ky., outgamed the favored Lexbrook Stable's Potranco in the stretch to grab a neck victory in the Blue Larkspur Purse at Hawthorne today.

Third went to Mrs. J. F. Waters' Talked About.

Bo Fiddle, cofavorite with Gallant Sis in the fourth race, broke the 18-race string of losing favorites, winning handily.

Columbia Eleven Carded by Penn

Philadelphia, Sept. 10 (AP).—Columbia will replace Michigan on the University of Pennsylvania's 1941 football schedule Director of Athletics H. Jamison Swarts announced today.

The New York aggregation, coached by Penn Alumnus Lou Little, will return to the schedule after a three years' absence.

Swarts said that the six-game contract between Penn and Michigan ends this year with the October 26 meeting of the two teams at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The rest of the schedule remains the same as this fall's engagements. The 1941 card opens with Harvard on October 4, then on October 11, Yale at New Haven; October 18, Princeton at Princeton; October 25, Maryland at home; November 1, Navy at home; November 8, Columbia at home; November 15, Army at home; November 22, Cornell at home.

Jimmy Walthour Enters 6-Day Race

Announcement of the signing of three world famous competitors for the International Six-day Bicycle Races to be introduced at Riverside Stadium a week from Sunday night, September 22, at 9 o'clock, was made by Promoters Ray Alvis and Harry Mendel yesterday.

Mendel, who returned to New York yesterday after a flying visit here, long-distanced Alvis late yesterday afternoon that Jimmy Walthour, a New York resident and greatest of All-American six-day bicycle stars, had agreed to compete in a field that already includes the internationally celebrated Torchy Peden, of Victoria, British Columbia, and Gustav Killian, daredevil wizard from Dortmouth, Germany.

Reds Buy Shortstop

Cincinnati, Sept. 10 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds today acquired Woodrow Wilson Williams, shortstop for the Louisville American Association club, for the waiver price from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Cardinals Sign A Brother Act

St. Louis, Sept. 10 (AP).—Morton and Walker Cooper may do a brother act in the St. Louis Cardinals' battery next year.

Purchase of six players, including Walker Cooper, 6-foot 3-inch catcher with Columbus, whose brother, Morton, is a starting hurler for the Redbirds, was announced by the Cardinals today.

From their Columbus farm the Cards also obtained Outfielder Harry Walker in exchange for Pitchers Francis Barrett and Tom Sunkel and Infielders Bob Repass and Bert Haas plus cash.

In exchange for Pitcher Gene Lillard and cash, St. Louis will get Pitchers Henry Gornicki, John Grodzicki and Herschel Lyons and Infielder Frank Crespi from Rochester, another farm team.

'Sleepy' Glenn's Wife Golf Winner

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Marshall Glenn, of Charles Town, W. Va., captured the Ladies' Championship of Opequon Golf Club here over the week-end, defeating Mrs. W. H. Flanagan, of this city, in the tournament finals, 1 up.

It gave the Glenn family a clean sweep in championship matches at the club, Dr. Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn, former coach at West Virginia University, having previously captured the President's Cup in handicap play.

Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Flanagan fought on even terms throughout the match, with Mrs. Glenn gaining her advantage within the last three holes.

At the same time, Mrs. C. H. Dovenbarger, this city, took second flight honors by defeating Mrs. Douglas Thomas, 3 and 2.

Nebraska Starts With 19 Veterans

Lincoln, Nebr., Sept. 10 (AP).—Maj. Lawrence M. Jones lined up veterans at 19 of 22 posts on two elevens today as Nebraska got down to hard work in preparation for the football campaign.

Breaking his big squad into four teams and several unassigned players, the Major took full advantage of snappy weather and had his players hustling through last year's best plays in a long afternoon drill.

On the No. 1 and No. 2 units, the only non-lettermen were End Marvin Thompson, Guard Francis Greenlief and Fullback Wayne Blue on unit two. Further, Thompson and Blue were so outstanding as freshmen that they were given opportunity to work with the varsity last fall.

Slugging Vol Catcher Is Purchased by Cubs

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 10 (AP).—Charley (Greek) George, husky hard-hitting catcher, was sold today by the Nashville Baseball Club of the Southern Association to the Chicago Cubs of the National League for delivery next spring.

Manager Larry Gilbert, announcing the sale, said Nashville would receive an undisclosed amount of cash and Julian Tubb, right-handed pitcher who won 12 games and lost 11 for Tulsa of the Texas League this summer. George batted .335 in 140 games this season.

Contract Bridge

Happily, not every optimistically bid hand is defeated in the play. Quite often the declarer is fortunate enough to win help from his adversaries, pull off a brilliant coup or find a favorable lay of the cards to fulfill his contract. This is what happened to F. M. K., who tells us about a slam at hearts he made, though three aces were held gainst him, including the ace of trumps.

F. M. K. writes: "You might be interested in the accompanying hand, which, although not too well bid, and perhaps poorly defended, does make a small slam with three aces offside, one of which was the ace of trumps.

"Of course, the only lead which would permit the hand to make the ace of clubs, and I immediately took advantage of this by trumping and then leading the ace and a small diamond, which was trumped in dummy. The club king and queen provided discards for hte two spades in declarer's hand, after which the spade king was led and trumped. The diamond king was played (and luckily was not trumped), as diamonds were split four and three.

"After this the hand is merely a matter of cross-trumping (unless East overtrumps the fourth diamond, which, incidentally, he did not do). If he overtrumps and returns a trump, the last diamond in declarer's hand is good."

Listen! with Glynn

There's a Washington composer who, unlike a lot of other composers, is quite honest about crediting themes in his works to their original sources. In fact he goes so far as to write to other composers to ask them if it's all right if he borrows a few bars from their works.

Thus far he's met with complete success. For instance, a couple of days ago he received an autographed copy of the score of the theme music of the CBS and WJSV radio show, "The Adventures of Ellery Queen," from its composer Lyn Murray.

This was in response to a frank note to Murray saying: "I am now composing a piece. I have completed the first movement of it and have started a second. To get down to brass tacks, at the very end of your program there are seven or eight notes that I think would fit in very nicely. If I may use those notes will you please inform me?"

You should know who this rare Washington composer is, of course. His name is David Flodin (of 3225 Oliver street northwest), and he's all of 11 years old. The few borrowed notes are being used in a cheerful litle opus called "March of the Skeletons."

Seriously though, Master Flodin is naturally musical. His father's cousin, Robert Kajanus, was conductor of the Helsingfors Symphony Orchestra. Another cousin, Karl Flodin, is a well known Finnish music critic. Still another is a prominent Finnish concert harpist.

Today's Radio Highlights

11:30 a. m.—WMAL—Elizabeth Pitt, of the United States Forest Service, conducts a radio visit to Mark Twain National Park in Missouri during the National Farm and Home hour.

1:00 p. m., WMAL—The first annual Conference on Science, Philosophy and Religion in relation to the democratic way of life is aired from New York, with talks by Dr. William Albright, Dr. Caryl Parker Haskins, Dr. Karl K. Darrow and Dr. Harold D. Lasswell, on how better understanding and integration may contribute to the advancement of democracy.

1:00, WOL—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lewis Compton addresses the Baltimore Advertising Club on "Our First Line of Defense."

6:00, WJSV—Lanny Ross devotes his Memory Lane song parade to music associated with the United States Navy.

7:00, WMAL—Cynthia Cline, 14, makes her tenth consecutive appearance on Quiz Kids. Edith Lee James and Jack Beckman, both 13, are other holdovers, while the newcomers are also oldsters, Jack Ducal, 13, and Geraldine Hamburg, 14, all of Chicago and its environs.

8:30, WJSV—Bernard Herrmann conducts the Columbia Concert Orchestra: "Preciosa," overture, Weber; Serenata, Miaskovski and Polka from "The Golden Age," Shostakovitch.

8:30, WRC—Mr. District Attorney has gotten to be such a big shot radio name that tonight there are film executives in the audience looking over the piece as potential fodder for the cameras.

9:15, WOL—James J. Jeffries and John L. Sullivan are fighting tonight in The Squared Circle. Of course it originally happened on September 7, 1892, but this quarter-hour is making novel entertainment by reviving the battlers of the past.

9:30, WJSV and WMAL—President Roosevelt addresses a meeting of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs at Constitution Hall.

Lightning, Fire Are Discounted In Plane Crash

3 Witnesses Testify They Found No Evidence Bolt Struck Airliner

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Lightning or fire as causes of American commercial aviation's costliest crash were ruled out yesterday by three experts testifying before the Civil Aeronautics Board investigating the disaster.

All three witnesses, two of whom were radio experts and the other in daily contact with planes of the type which crashed August 31 near Lovettsville, Va., with loss of 25 lives, had carefully examined the scattered wreckage. All said they found no evidence whatever of lightning or of fire before the plane struck the earth at terrific speed.

"It is difficult," said Herbert M. Hucke, manager of aviation radio for Radio Corporation of America, "to conceive of a lightning strike which would not leave characteristic marks on one or more of the areas examined."

"I know of no case where a plane was struck by lightning so as to disable the crew but left no mark," declared R. G. Nichols, CAB radio inspector. "I am forced to conclude that the theory of lightning striking the pilot cannot be supported by reason."

"No Evidence of Structural Failure"

W. Howard Clark, assistant superintendent of maintenance of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, which operated the airliner, said he examined the wreckage minutely and found "no evidence of structural failure or of lightning."

"However," Hucke cautioned, "lightning plays tricks and you can't say it's absolutely impossible the plane was struck, but you can say it's highly improbable."

He and Nichols both stressed the tendency of electricity to follow the path of least resistance, which would have been through the metal body of the plane or the radio antennas and sets, rather than through the pilot compartment. All extremities of the plane, except part of the nose, they said, were located, identified and examined and were found to bear none of the characteristic punctures and fusings left by lightning.

"If we could find the entire nose section," Nichols said, "I believe we could establish that lightning of sufficient intensity to cause a crash did not strike the air plane."

Radio Functioning Normally

Nichols and Hucke both examined the radio equipment minutely and agreed that it was functioning normally at the moment of impact with the ground and that Capt. Lowell V. Scroggins, the pilot, had made none of several possible adjustments to eliminate static. All but 11 of 36 radio units were found, Nichols said, and one or more of those examined would almost certainly have borne evidence had the plane been struck. They agreed that the possibility of lightning disabling the flight crew without damaging the plane was remote.

Eyewitnesses testified on the opening day of the hearing that a brilliant flash of lightning had preceded the crash by a few seconds.

Questioning of Clark by members of the board and by its technical advisers indicated the idea was entertained that Donald Staire, jr., P.-C. A. employe riding on a small jump seat in the pilot compartment, might in some manner have interfered with the pilot. Clark, describing the location and construction of the seat, said such interference would hardly be possible.

Inquest Opens Today

Board members also indicated by intensive questioning of C. A. B. air traffic control employes earlier in the day that some amendment to civil air regulations covering handling of emergencies and of cooperation with airlanes might be under consideration. These witnesses detailed what took place after the plane, which crashed, had failed to report by radio over Martinsburg, W. Va., on schedule and failed to arrive at Pittsburgh.

It was brought out that the pilot's flight plan, which he prepares to indicate the course, speed, altitudes and elapsed times in each proposed flight, includes in bad weather a designated alternate field on which he will land should weather prevent his landing at the scheduled terminal. Notice of this alternate field, air traffic control men said, is given to them only in case the pilot adopts it and then only in order that they may avoid conflicts with other flights in the new area.

Hearings probably will be concluded today, Fred M. Glass, presiding, said, after two more experts on lightning, a representative of the engine manufacturer and several weather experts have testified. An inquest into the fatal crash will be opened at Leesburg, Va., today by Dr. John A. Gibson, Loudoun County coroner.

U. S. Grand Jury Studies Sales of School Supplies

Richmond, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—The United States Government investigation into the sale of school supplies reached a Federal grand jury here today.

The grand jury was summoned by Judge Robert N. Pollard at the solicitation of the Department of Justice in Washington.

United States District Attorney Sterling Hutcheson turned over one of his offices today to four deputy United States attorneys general and their staff, who, it was said, had been working in this district seeking evidence for several months.

First reports of Government agents activities came with the appearance of large number of witnesses in the court corridors this morning, including Harris Hart, former State superintendent of education, who said he had been summoned to appear.

V. H. Manning, Jr., D. C. Native, Dies

New York, Sept. 10.—Van H. Manning, jr., 41, a secretary and adviser to the late William Evarts Benjamin, retired financier, died yesterday in the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center after a short illness.

Mr. Manning was born in Washington, D. C., a son of the late Dr. Van H. Manning and Mrs. Emily Stevens Manning. He studied at the National Cathedral School and was graduated from Columbia University in 1923. During the World War he was secretary to Dr. James H. Garfield, head of the fuel administration.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pamela Henry Manning; his mother, a daughter, Pamela Sedgkick Manning, and a brother, Steven S. Manning, of San Marino, Calif.

Nest of Snakes Found in Log

Buckingham, Va., Sept. 10 (AP).—For a while W. W. Whorley thought he would be killing snakes all day.

He shot at a large copperhead moccasin as it crawled into a hollow log on his farm. When the shotgun charge struck the log three more moccasins slithered out. After he dispatched these, he struck the log with an ax.

Then a "grandpappy" snake came out—as big around as his arm, according to Mr. Whorley, when he split the log open, he found a dozen more.

Tour to Decide Opening of Md. Oyster Bars

State Commission Plans Inspection Week of Sept. 23

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 10.—Edwin Warfield, State conservation commission chairman, said today the commission would inspect oyster dredging areas in the bay during the week of September 23 to determine which of the closed bars should be opened this season.

The commissioners, who will make the trip aboard the State yacht DuPont, also will inspect oyster rocks to determine the results of shell planting.

Next month the commission will hold separate meetings with oyster packers and dredgers to acquaint them with the conditions of the rocks and to discuss possible oyster legislation with them, the chairman asserted.

Several meetings will be held with the dredgers on the Eastern Shore, he added.

Wharfield said at present there are about 95,000 acres of oyster-producing rocks in the bay proper, but that only about 4,000 acres were productive "to some degree."

He said up to 1939 most of the bars were opened to oystermen. The commission decided last year to close rocks in the large area from Seven Foot Knoll to Plum Point on both sides of the bay.

The tonging season already is under way and the dredging season opens November 1. The tonging season in the Potomac River will open September 15. The area is controlled jointly by the Maryland and Virginia conservation commissions.

Maryland Police Group Urges State-Wide Teletype System

By the Associated Press

Ocean City, Md., Sept. 10.—The Maryland Police Association urged today in a resolution adopted at its third quarterly meeting that a State-wide police teletype system be established in Maryland in order to facilitate enforcement work.

Baltimore City is the only place in Maryland now having such a police communication system.

The advantages of a teletype system, especially in cooperating with other States in crime detection and prevention, was stressed.

Another resolution called upon the legislature to repeal the Bouse act as it relates to search and seizure. The act was passed during the prohibition area.

Work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in espionage, sabotage and related laws was explained by E. A. Soucy, special agent in charge of the Baltimore field division.

J. Hanson Hooper, Baltimore, was nominated for president; George E. Carlson, Baltimore, for secretary, and Frank R. Gatch, Baltimore, treasurer.

First, Sergt. Joseph B. Nolte, Montgomery County police department; second, Chief Grason Price, Cambridge police; third, Chief Arcade D. Huffman, Chevrolet motor police service, Baltimore; fourth, Capt. Edward McK. Johnson, Maryland State police; fifth, J. J. Condon, Cumberland police.

Lutheran Leader Dies Of Crash Injuries

Special Dispatch to The Post

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 10.—George W. Bender, 75, prominent churchman and retired farmer, died yesterday in the Warner Hospital here from auto accident injuries he received August 3.

A former business manager of the Messenger, Lutheran Church publication here, and former member of the St. James Lutheran Church council, Mr. Bender for the last five years had been the local representative for Hammaker Bros., Thurmont, Md., memorial builders and designers. A daughter and two sisters, both living in Gettysburg, survive. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon in Gettysburg with interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Rev. Mr. Collis Heads Martinsburg Pastors

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 10.—The Rev. Joseph R. Collis, pastor of Second United Brethren Church, was elected president of the Martinsburg Ministerial Association at its monthly meeting yesterday.

He succeeds the Rev. William Pierpoint, last spring transferred from Calvary Methodist Church here to Calvary Church, Annapolis, Md.

The Rev. O. B. Smith, pastor of Bunker Hill Methodist Church, was elected vice president, and the Rev. Carl E. Talbert, pastor of Second Baptist Church here, secretary-treasurer, succeeding the Rev. Ernest S. Worden, pastor of Winchester Avenue Christian Church, who has been acting as secretary.
